U. S. Defense Balance May Be Dropped, Bradley Says

Suggests 'National Specialization' for Atlantic Pact Lands In Future Expansion

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Gen. Omar Bradley suggested yesterday that the United States and other powers in the North Atlantic Pact might well give up the concept of balanced land, sea and air forces in favor of "national specialization" in what they can do best.

Speaking in Chicago, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said that to provide an "over-all balance for collective defense," America might increase its Air Force and Navy beyond what "we ourselves would normally be willing to provide."

By inference, Bradley indicated that his own branch of the service—the Army—would be proportionately smaller than the American air and sea forces if this were done.

"Traditions must give way to reality," said Bradley, even though we sacrifice a "small bit of sovereignty" in the process.

Contingent on Expansion

But he emphasized that any such concept as this was in the future and was contingent upon any expansion of our present armed forces. Present plans for the common defense of the North Atlantic powers, he stressed, do not call for any change in the present balance of our Army, Navy and Air Force, nor the division of appropriations for next year.

Bradley's remarks on the sacrifice of sovereignty and change in the balance of forces referred only to our own military services. But there were clear indications he was talking to the 11 other nations under the treaty as well as our own people.

He said the question had been raised by a spokesman for one of the small nations in the pact. And it is known that the questions he raised have been under intensive study behind closed doors at the recent conference at The Hague.

For example, Great Britain might well deactivate some of its many famed guards regiments, which have a long and glorious history in the creation of the empire, and concentrate more on an expanded Royal Air Force. The English took the lead in the development of jet warplanes and are ahead of other Western European powers in aviation.

Similarly, the Netherlands might place greater reliance on the United States Navy and cut down its own sea power—rather extensive for its size—and concentrate on some other phase of defense. France might build up its army further at the expense of its air force and Navy, and the United States—with its great technological

Nancy Oakes Robbed Of $10,000 in Jewels

West Los Angeles, Calif., April 14 (U.P.).—A burglar stole jewelry worth nearly $10,000 early today from socialite Nancy Oakes' guest bedroom in the home of Donald M. Nelson, former chief of the War Production Board.

The gems belonged to Miss Oakes, the Nelsons' house guest. She is the former wife of Count Alfred de Marigny, who was acquitted in 1943 on a charge he murdered her millionaire father, Sir Harry Oakes, in the Bahamas. The case is unsolved.

U. S. Plans Atomic Engines In Submarines, Other Craft

The Atomic Energy Commission announced plans yesterday to build a second and smaller type of atomic engine for submarines and other warships.

At the same time it disclosed additional scientists are being assigned to the atomic energy production plant at Hanford, Wash., to step up output of plutonium for bombs.

The increased plutonium production could be used either for more A-bombs or to make more A-bomb "triggers" required to explode the projected H-bombs.

Shifts Work Emphasis

This "extensive revision" of the AEC's research program shifts the work emphasis at the Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory, Schenectady, N. Y., as well as Hanford, and may well affect the program at the Reactor Testing Station at Arco, Idaho, officials said.

It brings the General Electric Co. into the development work on atomic ship propulsion, a field in which Westinghouse Electric Corp. already has made considerable progress. Already the Electric Boat Co., the Nation's chief builder of submarines, has been given a contract to fit the Westinghouse "ship propulsion reactor" to submarine use.

Meanwhile, Lewis L. Strauss, one of the original AEC commissioners who helped get the tremendous atomic program going, had some words to say on atomic questions as he retired from the commission.

Gonzalez Asks 'Democratic International'

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Gabriel Gonzalez Videla of Chile yesterday proposed creation of a democratic international to stop the spread of communism.

He made the proposal at a luncheon in the National Press Club, after describing Chile's struggle with Communist "fifth columnists working blindly for a tyrannical foreign government."

Senor Gonzalez said that a democratic international, made up of free countries, would seek to bring back into the democratic fold nations which have abandoned democracy. In South America, he said, democracy had fallen in some nations and given way to Communist chaos or military dictatorship.

"Dictatorships," President Gonzalez said, "do not make good allies of democracies when democracy is in imminent danger of beng overwhelmed by dictatorship."

He said a great majority of the countries in Latin America live "an existence filled with fear, anguish and privation."

He continued:

"Such conditions are the reason for the continuous political upheavals that have affected some American nations. There are several democratic regimes that have found themselves impotent to stop the onrushing avalanche. At the fall of a democratic order a Communist chaos or a military dictatorship arises.

"To stop the spread of international communism, I suggest the creation of a democratic international. We must join in defense of the principles of freedom, but these principles must also contain insurance of human existence with full recognition of man's economic and social dignity.

"We must give effective aid to

2 Liberal Peers Switch to Tories To Fight Laborites

London, April 14 (U.P.).—Two leading Liberal members of the House of Lords caused a political sensation tonight by switching allegiance to the Conservative Party for a knockout fight against the "grave menace" of Labor rule.

Both Conservatives and Liberals, they said, have declared their "resolute opposition" to socialism. They said they were "unable to see any major question which separates Liberals and Conservatives into hostile camps."

The action of the Marquess of Reading and Lord Rennell is expected to start the Conservatives on a new campaign to take over the Liberals for a united fight against Labor.

Record Cold Continues Here; Crop Loss Runs Into Millions

For the second day, Lady Spring will be a cold, rampaging Amazon today, blasting Washington and much of the nation with below-freezing temperatures and causing multi-million dollar damage to fruit and garden crops.

The Weather Bureau's forecast was for a low of 28 in the city and 22 in the suburbs early today. First relief from the Canadian cold air mass is expected late this afternoon with a possible high of 50.

Yesterday the temperature hit a low of 24 degrees at 5:45 a. m., an all-time record for April 14 here. The previous low for the date was 30, in 1885 and 1940. If the forecast for today is correct, another record will fall, a low of 28 for April 15, set in 1904. At Greenbelt a low of 21 was recorded yesterday, and 22 in other suburbs.

The Carolinas and north Georgia wrote off their peach crops as a 16-million-dollar loss.

Snow- and ice-packed roads in North Dakota led to a declaration of seven counties as a disaster area with the Army flying in "weasels" and other emergency equipment to carry food, fuel and forage to isolated farmers and their stock.

Virginia and Maryland growers sustained heavy losses in fruit and early vegetable crops, but full extent of the damage cannot be determined until frosted trees and plants can be inspected in warmer weather.

Exhibition ball games were canceled in several cities and club officials anxiously studied reports that warmer weather is anticipated for the season opening Tuesday.

Archdiocese Paper Turns On McCarthy

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The Catholic Review, official organ of the Archdioceses of Washington and Baltimore, yesterday called on Senator McCarthy to "put up or shut up" on his charges of Communist infiltration in the Government.

In a strongly worded editorial, the weekly Catholic newspaper said it was time for McCarthy "to cut out the talk and come up with the facts."

The paper referred to the Wisconsin Republican's "key case," on which he has said he is willing to stand or fall, that of Johns Hopkins professor and Far East expert, Owen Lattimore. The editorial said:

"Lattimore's appearance (last week before a Senate investigating subcommittee) and complete rejection of Senator McCarthy's accusations make it imperative that the Senator produce the proof, by documents and witnesses, which he claims to have in his possession. Let him put up or shut up . . .

"Partisan Outlook" Deplored

"It will do no good to say that the evidence cannot be used, has disappeared, is confidential. Those are things the Senator should have considered before making his promise of documentary proof. If documents have disappeared without photostats, that too was a foreseeable event for which the Senator must take the blame."

The editorial went on to deplore the "partisan outlook" of the members of the Senate investigating subcommittee, and their division "on the basis of political bias." But, said the paper, "things now have reached the point where all this will have little to do with the matter."

The editorial was the more impressive in view of reports that certain segments of the Catholic Church have been behind McCarthy in his charges of Communist infiltration in the State Department.

In particular, there have been several attacks in the past from members of the Catholic clergy on the State Department's Far East policy, at the center of McCarthy's accusations.

Budenz Scheduled Thursday

McCarthy's major endeavor to "put up" on his charges against Lattimore may come next Thursday when his key witness, Louis F. Budenz, former Communist, will testify to the investigating subcommittee.

Meanwhile, the man who has admitted supplying material for some of McCarthy's charges paid the Capital another visit yesterday. He is Alfred Kohlberg, wealthy New York importer of Chinese textiles and reputedly a central figure in the vocal pro-Nationalist, pro-Chiang Kai-shek group in this country.

Kohlberg was spotted by reporters in a Capitol corridor. He said he was calling on "Senate friends" whom he declined to identify and declined to state any other purpose for his visit.

He said McCarthy got in touch with him March 15 and asked him for data on Lattimore. Kohlberg said he gave him information on March 24. This was just six days before McCarthy's Senate floor speech dedicated to an attack on Lattimore and Ambasador-at-Large Philip C. Jessup.

Curley Given Full Pardon By President

By The Associated Press

President Truman disclosed yesterday he has granted a full pardon to Boston's 75-year-old former mayor, James M. Curley, for two Federal felonies, involving mail fraud in 1942 and impersonation in 1903.

Curley had already served his time for both offenses—a total of seven months in prison—and the pardon was regarded as chiefly a gesture to followers of the long-time stormy petrel of Massachusetts politics.

The White House said the pardon was granted Thursday, but it was not announced until Curley sailed yesterday on a Holy Year pilgrimage to Rome.

Ironically, one of his last comments to newsmen before departing was to speak out in praise of the investigation of alleged communism in the State Department launched by Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.), Mr. Truman's bitter enemy.

Curley said he would like to see all subversives "put on a slow boat to Siberia that wouldn't hold together if a storm arose"—and said he'd "hope a storm would arise every day."

Ferguson Critical

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) criticized the President's action as an "encouragement" to those who commit illegal acts.

Ferguson said that on Thursday Mr. Truman announced he had ordered an investigation of crime, but yesterday he pardoned Curley.

"He was discouraging yesterday to those who engaged in gambling and illegal acts," Ferguson told newsmen, "but today he gives a little encouragement."

[The New York Herald Tribune quoted Senator Kem (R., Mo.) as saying: "The password at the White House seems to be: 'Pardon me, Mr. President.'" Kem has been demanding a probe of the alleged alliance between crime and Democratic politicians in Kansas City.

["This is an unusual way to start a crime investigation," he added. "Mr. Curley now joins the long list of members of the Pendergast machine who have been pardoned by Mr. Truman."—Editor's Note.]

Reached by ship-to-shore telephone after sailing, Curley's son, George, told the Associated Press his father was "deeply grateful to the President."

After the White House announcement, the Justice Department disclosed that Mr. Truman also pardoned Donald Wakefield Smith of Pittsburgh, a former member of the National Labor Relations Board, who was convicted with Curley in 1946 in the 1942 mail fraud case.

Mr. Truman's action in granting the pardon came a few days after Representative McCormack (D., Mass.), the House majority leader, announced that he was seeking a Presidential pardon for Curley.

McCormack said Curley was unaware of the move. He said he considered it "just and proper, particularly because of the recent tragedy" involving Curley's family. Curley's son, Leo, and his daughter, Mary, died recently within 24 hours of each other.

One of the last of the old-style big city bosses, Curley was four times mayor of Boston, three times elected to the House in Congress, and once Democrat Governor of Massachusetts.

NLRB Clears Point

Strikes After 60-Day Notice Ruled Legal Despite Contract

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday ruled that a union has the legal right to strike for a modification of a work contract before the expiration date of the agreement, so long as it gives management 60 days' notice.

The ruling, first of its kind, clears up a controversial section of the Taft-Hartley management-labor relations act.

The specific ruling deals with a dispute between the CIO United Packinghouse Workers and Wilson & Co., but the impact will be felt by all labor-management activities.

A spokesman for the CIO Communications Workers of America, which has set a strike deadline for April 26, said that the NLRB decision removes any doubt as to the legality of some 150,000 members participating in a nationwide walkout. The 150,000—including 42,000 CWA employes of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. here—are working under contracts which do not expire until next year.

In the cases of local Divisions 36 and 50, CWA, the contract with C&P does not terminate until May 1951, and the company has held that no legal strike may take place until then. The locals have maintained they had the right to strike for higher wages under a wage-reopener clause.

The five-man NLRB panel unanimously upheld the right of a union to strike for modification of a contract before the termination date of the contract.

A majority of the board—John M. Houston, James J. Reynolds, jr., and Paul L. Styles—ruled that the union must give 60-days' notice of such a strike.

Two members, Chairman Paul M. Herzog and Abe Murdock, in separate dissents, held that the union did not have to bother with the 60-day pre-strike notice in such a strike, but they reached their conclusion for different reasons.

Murdock said his conclusion was based on what the law seemed plainly to state; Herzog said his conclusion was based on the legislative history of the law.

The board's decision overruled the conclusion of Trial Examiner John Lewis, who held that a union is forbidden, under the Taft-Hartley Act, to strike during the life of a contract, and then only after 60 days' notice.

The NLRB made it clear that its unanimous decision on the right to strike covered those contracts which do not include a "no-strike" provision.

No Reference to Sheriff

County Conditions Called Good By Prince Georges Grand Jury

The Prince Georges County grand jury yesterday reported that law enforcement and general conditions in the county are "very good."

In its report, the jury made no reference to the admission of former County Sheriff R. Earle Sheriff two weeks ago in Federal Court that he had accepted "protection" money from gamblers.

The grand jury did say, however: "Isolated instances of irregularities frequently occur throughout the Nation and such instances cannot be taken as an indication of general improper conduct or inefficiency of police and other officials."

No indictments were returned by the jury against Sheriff or Henry J. Nebol, ousted Bladensburg police chief, who was accused in town council meeting early this month of accepting bribes and failing to report liquor violations.

A total of 78 indictments were returned by the jury

Continuing its section on general county affairs, the report read:

"It is the conclusion of this grand jury that the county government, in general, is manned by conscientious and hardworking personnel of high caliber, who, notwithstanding that most are inadequately compensated, are sincerely interested in their work and the public welfare.

"If the ill-advised, even though perhaps well-meaning critics of county officials and employes would give at least the credit due those who deserve it for work well done they would serve the public interest better and furnish added incentive for even greater efforts in the public service."

The report made no mention of gambling in the county, although two prominent civic leaders appeared before the jury to complain of the "notoriety" the county has received as a flourishing center of gambling.

Judge Edgerton's Daughter Dies in Plunge From Bridge

Miss Ann Edgerton, 29, daughter of Judge Henry W. Edgerton of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here, and Mrs. Edgerton, died at 9:15 p. m. yesterday at Emergency Hospital, 13 hours after she jumped from the Massachusetts ave. bridge.

She fell 85 feet to the Rock Creek valley below, and suffered fractures of both ankles, shock, possible internal injuries and possible skull fracture.

Employed as a stenographer by the National Labor Relations Board for nearly a year, Miss Edgerton was rated this week for advancement on her job and her civil service status, according to Henry Shover, the organization's personnel director.

Shover said she had been doing fine work and he had talked with her early this week about the advancement.

Miss Edgerton's immediate superior at the agency, A. Norman Somers, said last night she had been meticulous about reporting for duty and when she did not appear yesterday, he telephoned her physician, Stanley Olinick, a psychiatrist. Later, Dr. Olinick learned that the girl who had leaped from the bridge lay unidentified at Emergency Hospital and went there.

Then he summoned her parents, who arrived about 5 p. m., and made the identification positive. Police and hospital attaches said that all marks of identification had been removed from her clothing before she leaped from the bridge.

Maryland Extends Tax Deadline— But Not District

Maryland income-tax officials yesterday gave taxpayers two days of grace because the payment deadline—April 15—falls today when offices are closed. District income-tax collectors decided to stick by the midnight tonight deadline.

Returns bearing Monday's April 17 postmark will be considered mailed on time, Maryland announced. In addition, Maryland tax offices in Washington, Cumberland, Hagerstown, Salisbury, Annapolis and Easton will be open as long as necessary Monday to receive returns.

The District tax collection offices will be closed today, but returns postmarked before midnight will not be subject to penalties.

Jail Term Suspended For Death-Car Driver

A Fort Belvoir Army sergeant, convicted March 15 of manslaughter in the traffic death of a companion, received a suspended one-year sentence yesterday in Arlington Circuit Court.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy suspended the jail term previously imposed on Sergt. Marvin E. Taylor, 32, and put him on five years' probaton.

Nursing School At Md. U. Must Accept Negro

Annapolis, Md., April 14 (AP).—Maryland cannot deny a Negro an education at a State institution solely because of race, the Court of Appeals declared today.

The Supreme Court has already decided the question, the court said in ordering the University of Maryland to admit 19-year-old Esther McCready of Baltimore to its school of nursing.

"We cannot subtract anything from what the Supreme Court has said," Judge Charles Markell declared for Maryland's high court.

In separate cases involving Missouri and Oklahoma Negroes, the Supreme Court held those two States could not throw a racial barrier before the doors of their law schools.

Neither can Maryland discriminate, the Appeals Court said.

And it cannot substitute training in another State under the Southern Compact for Regional Education.

The State had contended it would have provided equal educational facilities by sending Miss McCready to the Nursing School of Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tenn.

The State University denied Miss McCready's application in February, 1949. It offered her the Meharry course at a cost no greater than that in Maryland.

Chief Judge W. Conwell Smith of the Baltimore Supreme Bench ruled the State could thus meet its constitutional obligations.

The Appellate Court unanimously overruled Judge Smith.

[President Harry C. Byrd of the University of Maryland, in commenting on the ruling, said the school could take "one of two steps. The board of regents could appeal the decision of the Court of Appeals, or we could make preparations for providing facilities in Maryland."

[Dr. Byrd said that "the only course to be taken, as far as I can see, is to make preparations for providing equal facilities." He said the matter will probably be discussed at the board's next meeting on April 28.—Editor's note.]

Railroad Strike May Be Called Any Day, Locomotive Men Say

The Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen said yesterday its dispute with the railroads over an extra man on diesel locomotives may lead to a strike call any time.

A committee of chairmen of firemen and enginemen on major railroads will meet in Chicago the next few days to determine the extent of the threatened strike and the date a walkout might be called

The announcement came from Union President David B. Robertson in Chicago, who said a last-minute effort had failed to negotiate a settlement with representatives of the Nation's railroads in the long-standing dispute.

Similar negotiations were being held in Chicago by negotiators for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Officials said it has not yet been determined whether to strike all of the railroads at one time or to walk out on a few of the lines.

The 110,000 members of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen authorized a strike in a referendum several months ago. The committee of general chairmen was authorized to fix the strike date.

A Presidential fact-finding board decided in 1948 that no extra man was needed on the Diesel locomotives. But the firemen and engineers' unions continued to fight for a third man on those locomotives as railroads accelerated the conversion to oil-driven locomotives from steam-powered coal locomotives.

Vicious Acts Undisclosed In District, D. A. Warns

Backs Up Truman's Statement on City's Problem; Barrett Agrees in Part

(Copyright, 1950, by The Washington Post)

Washington is still in the grip of rackets that spawn vicious crimes never reported to police, United States Attorney George Morris Fay said yesterday.

Fay seconded President Truman's statement that Washington is one of the Nation's large cities in which rackets exist.

Gambling, he declared, is Washington's No. 1 racket but from it have grown offshoot rackets of violence.

Barrett Agrees In Part

Other reactions to the presidential statement:

1. Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, did not dispute Mr Truman's statement. He agreed with Fay that gambling does exist as a racket in the District. But he denied there are organized gangster mobs using methods of violence.

2. Commissioner John Russell Young would not comment on the White House statement. "I don't want to comment on what anyone else says," he told a reporter.

3. Congressional sources were interested in Mr. Truman's remark. "I certainly agree with the President that there is organized crime in the District," said Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.), who headed a special House subcommittee that recently delved into the Capital's crime.

Spawned Other Rackets

United States Attorney Fay had a good deal to say about organized rackets here.

"Two years ago," he reminded, "in asking for a special grand jury to investigate gambling here, we took cognizance of the fact that there was a widespread gambling racket and from it had been born other rackets.

"In recent months we have seen examples of the offshoot rackets. Gunmen have come here to prey on gamblers. The final result is that the gamblers, once victimized, hire gunmen to prey on other gunmen for revenge.

"In asking for the grand jury we then pointed out there were numerous crimes against gamblers—vicious crimes that were never reported to police or to the public, and gamblers were using their own kind of law. That is still the situation today."

Fay said gambling is but one of the rackets. This is his analysis of other rackets:

1. Narcotics. While not alarming in size, the dope racket is here, as evidenced by the mass raids late

Executive Officer On 'Mo' Cleared In Grounding Case

Norfolk, Va., April 14 (AP).—Comdr. George E. Peckham executive officer of the battleship Missouri, was absolved of blame today in the grounding of the ship in Chesapeake Bay January 17.

Rear Admiral Allen E. Smith, commander of Atlantic Fleet cruisers, disclosed the naval court of inquiry which investigated the grounding had recommended that Peckham receive a letter of reprimand, the most severe of the Navy's three letters of censure.

Smith said he did not think a letter of reprimand was warranted, but that he had ordered Peckham to show cause why he should not receive a letter of caution, the least severe of the letters of censure.

After receiving Peckham's letter of reply, Smith advised him today that he will not receive a letter of caution or any other letter of censure.

Carrollo, Former Kansas City Boss, Is Seized in Raid

Kansas City, April 14 (AP).—Charles Carrolo, former convict and political figure who preceded the slain Charles Binaggio as leader of the First District Democratic Club, was arrested today with three other men on charges of trafficking in untaxed liquor.

The raid was led by E. N. Ahlfeldt, director of the Alcohol Tax Unit and close friend of President Truman.

Accompanied by a dozen agents, Ahlfeldt seized 1053 cases of liquor which the agents valued at between $45,000 and $50,000.

Arrested with Carrolo were his son-in-law, Mike Arnone; Tony Marcelli, and Sam Tortorice.

GOP Brands Truman 'Miserable Failure'

GOP Chairman Guy Gabrielson yesterday issued an "indictment of failure" against President Truman who Thursday claimed credit for national prosperity.

Despite the President's "smugness," Gabrielson said, his five years in office boils down to one conclusion: that he has "failed miserably."

Mr. Truman, summing up as the fifth anniversary rolled past, told reporters he would take credit for the country's prosperous condition.

Gabrielson, in a statement, said the American people would bring against the President this 10-point "indictment" and "not again be misled by slanders and libels against the American Congress and the Republican Party":

1. "Under the Truman Administration we lost the cold war in Asia . . . Due to stupid and short-sighted conduct of our foreign affairs."

"Squandered More Money"

2. "We have a staggering national debt . . . Mr. Truman has squandered more money than any President.

3. "We have the highest peacetime tax rate."

4. "We have more socialism in Government than we ever had" and are threatened with ventures to "regiment our farmers, shackle business and eventually destroy it as a private institution."

5 "In times of the Nation's greatest prosperity we have nearly five million unemployed."

6. Mr. Truman cannot work even with a Democratic Congress.

7. "Harmony does not exist even in the executive branch."

8. "We have had five years of coddling of Communists and their fellow travelers in the Government service."

9. "We have seen extravagant waste of food—the actual dumping and burning of mountains of potatoes at the very same time we were importing potatoes from Canada; the piling up of huge farm surpluses all because of the scandalous administration of the farm program."

Sordid Politics

10. ". . . the sordid political philosophy of the Pendergast machine injected into our national affairs. And just recently we have seen a President lower the dignity of his high office to covertly block a fair and impartial proble into the crookedness of that same machine and others like it which are part and parcel of the Democratic Party."

Meanwhile, it was announced that President Truman will make at least four and possibly six scheduled speeches on his cross-country trip starting May 7. The White House said yesterday he had accepted an invitation to speak at Madison, Wis., May 14 on the way back East.

Other speeches already set are in connection with dedications at Kortes Dam near Casper, Wyo., May 9; at Grand Coulee Dam in southeastern Washington May 11, and at a Democratic rally in Chicago May 15.

Other speeches may be made at Grand Forks, N. Dak., and in one of the twin cities of Minnesota—Minneapolis and St. Paul—although officials will not confirm these plans yet.

Will Make Whistle Stops

The President is expected to make many whistle stops for train appearances in addition to the set talks. He told his news conference Thursday the trip will be nonpolitical except for the speech in the Chicago Stadium concluding a huge Democratic Party rally.

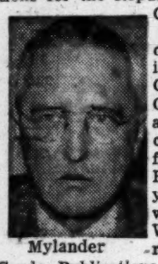
Mr. Truman is expected to make another cross-country swing later before the congressional elections. Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross said Mr. Truman's speech at Madison, Wisc., will be at the dedication of a new international headquarters building of the Credit Union National Association, Inc.

He said this non-profit self-supporting organization will lay the cornerstone of "Filene House" in Madison in honor of the "practical idealism" of the late Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant and philanthropist. Filene gave one million dollars of his fortune and many years of his life to the credit union movement.

Veteran Writer

GOP Names Mylander to Publicity Job

William H. Mylander, 46, a veteran political writer, yesterday was named director of public relations for the Republican National Committee.



Mylander

Mylander, once a reporter in Toledo and Columbus, Ohio, has been a Washington correspondent for 15 years. For the last six years he has worked in the Washington Bureau of the Cowles Publications, which include the Des Moines Register and Tribune, the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, and Look, Quick and Flair magazines.

He will assume the new job April 24. The committe's last publicity director, William C. Murphy, jr., died last November 27.

Mylander's appointment was announced by GOP National Chairman Guy G. Gabrielson. He said Mylander will be in charge of all publicity activities of the national committee—newspapers, radio, magazines and the women's division.

Mylander was born at Oak Harbor, Ohio, a small town near Toledo, and graduated in 1924 from Ohio State University, where he was editor of the college daily.

He worked on the Ohio State Journal at Columbus, the Toledo Blade and for the Associated Press in Cleveland before he transferred to Washington in 1935.

He was Washington correspondent for the Toledo Blade from 1936 until 1942, when he helped form the press division of the wartime Office of Censorship. He joined the Cowles bureau in 1944.

As a political writer, Mylander covered the Republican and Democratic National Conventions in 1936, 1940, 1944 and 1948. He covered the campaigns of the late President Roosevelt and of President Truman in 1944 and 1948.

Mylander is married and has two daughters, Mrs. James G. Bowman of Charlottesville, Va., and Sally, 20, a college student.

Record Home Building Boom Is Under Way

A record-smashing home-building boom is in progres.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday that 110,000 homes were started in March, which topped all previous figures.

In the first three months of the year, 270,000 home units were started. This is 59 percent above the 169,800 units on which construction was begun in the same period of 1949, the previous record year in home-building.

So builders are well on their way to exceeding the annual record set in 1949, when 1.025.100 dwellings were started.

The March figure of 110,000 units started is 38 percent above the 80,000 units started in February and 59 percent over the 69,400 in March a year ago.

Housing starts spurted in March in practically every section of the country. Cities showing the greatest increase included Los Angeles, Boston, Detroit, St. Louis, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Dallas, Houston, Forth Worth and Milwaukee.

All this homebuilding activity is spurred by a giant demand for housing. A survey just released by the Federal Reserve Board shows that one million people "definitely" plan to buy new homes this year. The survey further shows that about as many home purchasers are in prospect for 1951.

Builders are also stepping up construction of apartments, most of which are occupied on a rental basis.

The bureau said apartments accounted for only about 12 percent of the home construction total in 1946 and 1947. The figure was 18 percent n 1948 and had grown to 23 percent in 1949.

Senate Rejects Columbia Basin Amendment

By The Associated Press

After beating back a series of economy amendments proposed by Senator Douglas (D., Ill.), the Senate last night delayed until next wek a final vote on a $1,840,000,000 (b) waterways authorization bill.

When the Senate finally gave up shortly before 9 p. m. (EST) in its effort to pass the bill yesterday, Senator Douglas still held the floor with another of his proposals to trim huge amounts from the measure.

Earlier in the day, after a full week of debate, the Senate rejected the Administration's Columbia Basin amendment.

The bill, as it now stands, would authorize numerous individual flood control and rivers and harbors projects which would increase the backlog of approved public works by some $1,600,000,000. The bill also would include $200,000,000 for reclamation projects in the Missouri River basin.

Passed last year by the House, the bill has been increased about $475,000,000 on the Senate side.

Seeks Huge Reduction

Douglas told the Senate that proposed to eliminate items totaling about $840,000,000. However, in a series of amendments he time after time the Senate rejected his proposals. Doggedly he kept offerng them.

Late in the evening he announced that "the skirmishes are over—I'm ready for the real stuff."

Thereupon he offered an amendment to eliminate 250 million dollars proposed for the Missouri River basin. He said he also would follow this with amendments to eliminate 200 million dollars for the lower Mississippi River; 100 million dollars for the Ohio and 89 million dollars for the Arkansas.

Then the Senate decided to give up until Monday.

The Columbia Basin proposal would have authorized additional reclamation and power projects costing $412,700,000. It also would have created a Columbia Basin account to which all power and other revenues from present and future projects would be credited and from which reimbursable power and irrigation costs would be paid.

The amendment, approved by the Senate Interior Committee and presented by its chairman, Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), was killed by a roll call vote of 43 to 22.

Subsequently, the Senate rejected two other versions of the Columbia Basin amendment in the same manner, by adopting Chavez motions to table them.

One, by Senator Taylor (D., Idaho), would have authorized the same 13 reclamation and power projects, but without the basin account provision.

The other, by Senator Gordon (R., Oreg.), would have authorized the same new projects, but with all 13 units treated as a single project and without the basin-wide accounting system.

Senators Magnusen (D., Wash.), and Taylor (D., Idaho), immediately introduced the O'Mahoney amendment as separate bills.

The Senate also rejected an amendment by Senator Williams (R., Del.) that would prevent work starting on any of the projects in a year in which there is a budget deficit.

Ingrid, Lindstrom Reported Near Legal Settlement

Hollywood, April 14 (U.P.)—Negotiations toward a settlement of Ingrid Bergman's martail status with Dr. Peter Lindstrom are "well advanced," attorneys said today.

Because of the progress, a deposition hearing asked by Miss Bergman's lawyers was postponed until next Wednesday. Dr. Lindstrom's attorney also got an agreement delaying his answer to the Swedish star's suit for an accounting of funds and division of more than $250,000 in community property.

The surgeon's answer had been scheduled to be filed by Saturday.

The chief point awaiting settlement was reported custody of 12-year-old Pia Lindstrom, daughter of the estranged couple. It was understood the lawyers are trying to work out an arrangement under which Dr. Lindstrom would have Pia most of the year, with Miss Bergman getting her during the summer.

'Tough' Potato Controls Given Approval Over Proposed Trial Run of Brannan Plan

By The Associated Press

A proposal for Federal potato controls "so tough as to force compliance" won the approval of a Senate Agriculture subcommittee yesterday.

Senator Ellender (D., La.), chairman, said the group recommended tight controls over both planting and marketing of Irish potatoes in an effort to end multi-million dollars Government losses through potato price supports.

"We made the penalties as stiff as possible," he told a reporter. "The idea is to force compliance or penalize excess production and planting so much the growers will want to take part in the future."

The subcommittee rejected a proposed "trial run" of the Brannan Plan on potatoes. That plan, sponsored by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, calls for the payment of Government subsidies to growers of perishables who cannot get a "fair return" for their crop on the market. President Truman has indorsed the principle repeatedly, mentioning it in connection with potatoes at his news conference Friday.

Instead, Ellender said, the group followed the general pattern of Federal controls now used on cotton and tobacco "except the penalties are larger and unlike cotton and tobacco, surplus potatoes cannot be stored from year to year to fill later quotas."

Only Senators Ellender and Holland (D., Fla.) attended the closed-door session of the five-man subcommittee. Holland refused to sign the report but Ellender said he had favorable proxy votes from Senators Lucas (D., Ill.), Thye (R., Minn.) and Aiken (R., Vt.).

The measure now goes to the full Agriculture Committee, with Ellender asking a decision next Tuesday.

Unless Congress approves a new system of potato controls—and growers accept them by a two-thirds vote—existing Government price props on potatoes will end with this year's crop.

This cutoff was tacked on a cotton and peanut bill recently signed by President Truman after sharp congressional protests that the potato price props had cost nearly half a billion dollars since the war.

Potatoes now are supported at 60 percent of parity, a price computed to give farm products a fair exchange value.

Penalties under the new controls would amount to 75 percent of the parity price.

A potato grower would be expected to pay the penalty on his excess potatoes or turn them over to the Government, for diversion uses such as food for needy persons or fertilizer.

The first buyer or purchaser of potatoes would be required to withhold this penalty from prices paid for "excess potatoes." If he failed to do so he could be sued along with the grower for the amount of penalty plus interest.

The penalties would apply to the excess above normal yields on allotted acreage or all production from acres above allotments.

Ellender explained that a farmer with a fixed acre allotment, based on average or normal yields for the past three years, could use a lot of fertilizer or plant close together and so greatly increase his production.

Farmers who opposed the controls still would get an allotment but if they marketed excess potatoes would face penalties on all the excess. Unless such penalties were paid off or cleared up at the end of a season, all future production would be subject to penalties.

Although Irish potatoes are grown in every State and on most farms, the controls would apply only to "commercial growers" defined as those producing three or more acres for sale. The Secretary of Agriculture could apply controls below three acres if he found it necessary.

Free Butter, Cheese For Relief Agencies

The Government yesterday offer surplus butter and cheese for free distribution to people on relief.

Agriculture Department officials placed 15 million pounds of butter and 5 million pounds of cheese on a domestic give-away list which already carries potatoes, dried eggs and powdered milk.

Arlington Man, G.I. Traffic Fatalities

An Arlington resident and a soldier, formerly from Washington, died yesterday as the result of separate traffic accidents.

Pfc. Gardner

The Arlington resident was George Ritchie, 80, of 2007 South Glebe rd., who suffered head injuries when struck by a car as he walked along Glebe rd. near Seminary rd. in Arlington, April 3. He died at Arlington Hospital.

No charges have been placed against the driver of the car, Harvey William Fox, 18, of 3706 South 16th st., Arlington. Fox told police he was traveling 15 miles an hour when Ritchie suddenly appeared in front of his car.

The soldier, Corpl. William J. Gardner, 32, formerly of 1335 22d st. nw., died yesterday at Seattle, Wash., of injuries received in a collision Wednesday between a jeep and a truck at Fort Louis, Wash., the Associated Press reported.

Gardner was the son of Mrs. Effie Gardner, who lives at the 22d st. address, and was wounded in action in the southwest Pacific area during the war while with the Sixth Army. He was a native of Philadelphia and has received his schooling in Washington and Massachusetts.

Two men escaped serious injury yesterday when their coupe struck a telegraph pole on the curve along MacArthur blvd. between the Dalecarlia Reservoir and the Army Map Service building in Montgomery County and overturned down a six-foot embankment.

The men were Jack M. Peake, 39, 3517 T st. nw., and his brother, Gilbert R. Peake, 27, Dernwood, Md., who was driving, police said.

In another accident early yesterday at 22d and P sts. nw., three passengers in a car driven by H. E. (Mike) Hunnicutt, 41, radio station disk jockey, were injured. Hunnicutt, who lives at 4512 Lowell st. nw., escaped injury.

Police said Hunnicutt's vehicle collided with a car driven by Fred Schellhammer, 48, of 1132 Connecticut ave. nw. Shellhammer was charged with passing a red light.

The injured passengers in the Hunnicutt car were his wife, Mrs. Mary Hunnicutt, who sustained knee injuries; Mrs. Brooks Harper, 48, of Knoxville, Tenn., also knee injuries, and Alvin Harper, 52, of Knoxville, who suffered chest injuries. All were treated at Emergency Hospital and later released.

Fonda's Wife Kills Herself In Hospital

of the bathroom of her suite in the sanatorium about 7 a. m.

A sanatorium official announced that brief funeral services were held in Beacon this afternoon. Fonda, star of the Broadway hit, "Mister Roberts," and Mrs. Fonda's mother, Mrs. Sophie Seymour, were at the services.

Mrs. Fonda left a note for Dr. Courtney Bennett, a doctor at the institution, in which she was reported to have said, "Very sorry, but this is the best way out." Details of the note were withheld.

Dr. Edwrad Cotter, deputy medical examiner, officially listed the death as a suicide.

Tonight, Fonda asked Producer Leland Hayward and Director Joshua Logan, "do you think I should go on?"

They told him they thought he should, and he then played his 873d performance, keeping intact his record of never having missed a show.

The Fondas had been reported estranged since late last year, and the star's name was coupled romantically with that of Susan Blanchard, stepdaughter of author-producer Oscar Hammerstein.

Fonda was understood to have been living alone in New York for several months, visiting his Greenwich home only occasionally to see their two children, Jane Seymour, 12, and Peter Henry, 9.

The Fondas were married in 1936.

Hotel Thieves Get $807

A prowler or prowlers entered several rooms yesterday at the Roger Smith Hotel and took $807 and 10,000 francs belonging to three Frenchmen and two Americans.

The entry was obtained sometime between midnight and 7 a. m.

Taken from the fourth floor room of Jean Truiouiller was a wallet containing $551 and 10,000 francs. From a nearby room rented by Jean Delpire $85 was taken. From the room of Georges Feldis $51 was taken.

The three Frenchmen were here to study public works under a program of the Economic Cooperation Administration.

Looted from the room of Virginia Conrad was $45 and from Robert W. Culp another $75.

2d-Story Man Surprised, Escapes in Thicket

A prowler yesterday jumped from a porch roof after being surprised while rifling the home of William J. Tidball, Water Department employe, at 2144 Cathedral ave. nw., shortly before noon.

His escape set off a search of the brush and tree covered areas near the Calvert st. bridge and Rock Creek Park. Two men were picked up, but were released when Miss Louise Johnson, 238 W st. nw., maid in the Tidball home, who surprised the prowler, failed to idenify them.

Only a man's brown topcoat was missing, police were told. Entrance was made through a jimmied window in the basement, police said.

Miss Johnson said she heard noises in the second story as she unlocked the front door. She looked up and was told by the prowler, through the second-story window, to keep quiet. Grabbing her purse, she turned and ran, informing a neighbor.

Gilbert was driving the car which overturned down a 6-foot embankment. Both were treated at Georgetown University Hospital

Lone Ranger Speeds to Aid Morale of Badly Burned Boy

The Lone Ranger yesterday sped to the rescue of a 6-year-old boy here whose doctors esaid he was fighting too feebly against critical burns.

The lad, Joseph Fox, 4th, of 6608 47th pl., Riverdale, Md., suffered severe burns to an estimated 40 to 50 percent of his body two months ago.

Since then, an aunt told the Lone Ranger in a telephoned plea to the Armory, "Joe" has been "wasting away" in apathy and refusals to eat. A visit from his radio and comic-book hero might give him just the boost he needs for his first skin-grafting operations Saturday, she pleaded.

The L-R, appearing here in rodeo antics, took off for Casualty Hospital at matinee's end yesterday. With the slight bribe of a silver bullet, his 'trade mark," and several autographs, he got the patient's promise to "fight this thing out."

"Joe almost jumped out of the good skin he has left when he saw his visitor," one of the hospital physicians said. "He really got a boost."

Today, the patient will be given four skin grafts, two from his father and two from an uncle, the hospital said. He was admitted to Casualty on Monday, after continued care at Leland Memorial Hospital, in Riverdale, since he was burned on March 17.

The boy suffered burns from his chin down, across the front of his neck and chest, and over both arms, hands and thighs. The accident happened, his parents said, when matches he was playing with set fire to a sister's nightgown that he was wearing.

Doctors have since been building him up for the skingrafts needed to stem the loss of precious body fluids. Plasma, whole blood and intravenous feedings have been given liberally, but his appetite loss and refusals to eat have kept him on the critical list, his doctors said.

The Lone Ranger, 'his mercy mission completed, went back to the Armory for last night's performance and today's final matinee and night routines. Yesterday, one of his admirers, Miss Patty Kisner of 2515 K st. nw., won the giveaway bicycle.

Today's matinee grand drawing award is a pony.

Knife Restores Sight of Three

Macon, Ga., April 14 (AP).—Three little sisters, sightless two weeks ago, stepped from a train here today and complained of a bright sun hurting their eyes.

The Hall sisters, Eloise, 14; Elaine, 10, and Faye, 7, were seeing for the first time. All were born blind, with congenital cataracts. The girls are students at the Georgia Academy for the Blind in Macon.

A specialist removed the cataracts at Savannah two weeks ago and they returned to school today.

Their vision is far from perfect. They can't distinguish details, and objects nearby are blurred. They will have to wear bandages about 10 days. Stitches are still in their eyes. And it will be several weeks before final results of the operations are known.

The girls' father, a World War I veteran, died last Thanksgiving at their Acworth, Ga., home. The children went home for the funeral. Their mother is partially blind. A baby sister, still at home, also is blind from cataracts.

Brooklyn Street Bundles Reveal Human Flesh

New York, April 14 (AP).—Four bundles of sliced-up flesh were found in a Brooklyn street today and a medical expert said they were from a human body.

The bundles contained 23 separate pieces of flesh, weighing 40 pounds, wrappd in old, worn, wine-colored draping material.

Two doctors and a veterinarian at first labeled them animal flesh. But some hours later Dr. Benjamin M. Vance, deputy chief medical examiner, tested one of the pieces and said he was convinced it was human flesh.

Father Denies Bolivian Girl's Betrothal Tale

La Paz, Bolivia, April 14 (U.P.).—The grieving father of a Bolivian beauty today denied her charges that he wanted to marry her off to a wealthy diplomat twice her age whom she "couldn't love."

In fact, he said he gave his consent for her to marry an American and that he believed they actually were married in Tulsa, Okla.

The international love entanglement was disclosed Thursday when pretty Mireya Urquidi, 22, now a student at a Tulsa (Okla.) business college, entreated immigration authorities to extend her visitor's visa because going back to Bolivia meant marrying a man "I can never love" to whom she said her father betrothed her at birth.

Interrupting his international law class at Cochabamba University where he is a professor, Jose Macedonio Urquidi, 65, Mireya's father, said:

"Mireya was engaged here in Cochabama to marry an American, Rolla E. Wiley, with whom she contracted matrimony at Tulsa, with my consent.

Wiley's sister, Mrs. Neal Wright, said at Tulsa that Miss Urquidi and her brother argued over a church marriage and the engagement was broken.

Mrs. Wright said Wiley is now in Beirut, Lebanon, his duties as a pipeline contractor taking him all over the world. She said the Bolivian girl has continued living with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wiley, the parents of her former fiance.

The girl told Naturalization Chief J. C. Stewart that with the aid of her mother she left Cochabamba hurriedly, in the midst of preparations to wed her father's friend. "My father will never forgive me and he says I cannot come home unless I marry his friend."

The Suburban Hospital Association announced yesterday election of ten members to serve on the board of trustees for three years.

Those elected were: Francis W. Hill, jr., president; Mrs. J. William Herron, secretary; Dr. John G. Ball, Mrs. William Sharron Farr, Mrs. Page Hufty,, Joseph M. Mathias, Judge James R. Miller, C. Carroll Morgan, Robert H. Meyers, and Malcolm Scates.

Princess Elizabeth Reported Expecting Her Second Baby

London, April 14 (U.P.).—A source close to the royal family said today that Princess Elizabeth, heiress presumptive to the British throne, is expecting her second child this summer.

The source said an announcement that the Princess "will carry out no more public engagements during the next few months" probably will be issued as soon as Elizabeth returns from Malta.

Cancellation of engagements is usually the first public acknowledgment of a royal pregnancy.

Buckingham Palace press officials said the princess' engagement book is clear until mid-October, but they said they knew nothing about her expecting another baby.

The birth of the princess' second child would come almost two years after the birth of Prince Charles November 14, 1948.

Official silence is customary until an announcement has been issued by the royal family. Buckingham Palace sources have been denying for more than a month any knowledge of reports of the princess' pregnancy.

The princess, who will be 24 April 21, flew to Malta March 28 to join her naval officer-husband, the Duke of Edinburgh.

The princess is expected to remain there until HMS Chequers, Philips' destroyer, leaves for its annual summer cruise, probably during the first week in May.

Judge Edgerton's Daughter Dies in Plunge

tal showed last night that she was a patient there from April 11, 1947, to October 29, 1948. The last six months, however, she had been on a "visiting" status, living outside the hospital and reporting periodically for treatment. Nature of her ailment was not disclosed.

Besides her parents, who live at 2853 Ontario rd. nw., she is survived by a brother, John D. Edgerton, an attorney for the Federal Communications Commission here.

Police who were checking into circumstances back of the tragedy, said they were informed that Miss Edgerton had lived with her parents until about a week ago when she had taken a small apartment at 2512 Q st. nw.

Judge and Mrs. Edgerton were so stricken by the tragedy that they were unable to discuss it.

Friends said Miss Edgerton had attended Cornell University, where her father was a member of the law school faculty before his appointment to the Court of Appeals here. She studied at the university three years and had not graduated.

Miss Mary Ellen Saunders, 3619 Upton st. nw., said she was driving to work with a group of others, crossing the bridge, and noticed Miss Edgerton walking westward on the south side of the bridge.

She said Miss Edgerton stopped suddenly, put her left foot and leg up on the bridge rail, and then rolled across the top of it into space. She uttered no sound, Miss Saunders said.

Joseph S. Cochran, 12 Aspen st. nw., said he was in an auto on Rock Creek pkwy. under the bridge, when he noticed Miss Edgerton's body rolling a short distance down an embankment. He said he left the car, ran to the body, and found the victim unconscious, but breathing and with a regular pulse. He said he put his coat over her until an ambulance arrived.

Miss Edgerton, in 1944, served as a nurse's aide here and previously had been secretary to the chief of the orthopedic section at Walter Reed Hospital.

Judge Edgerton, a native of Rush Center, Kans., has been a member of the law faculties of both Cornell and George Washington Universities. He was appointed to the Court of Appeals here in 1938 and took office in 1939. He is known as a liberal member of the court.

'Hysteria' Warning Is Issued By Arnall

Ellis Arnall, former Governor of Georgia, warned last night against mass hysteria growing out of the cold war.

"Peace must be based on public opinion and public opinion must rely on the proper evaluation of facts," he said. "It must not be formulated on hysteria, emotion and fear."

Arnall, president of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, addressed the United States National Commission for the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

He recalled that throughout history the world's peoples always feared that the next war would wipe out civilization. But, he said, there always was another war.

"Our nation," he said, "must be prudent and wise and our policies must be determined free from mass hysteria . . . it is unlikely that war will end because of its horrors. It can end only when some of the fundamental and underlying causes of war are eradicated. That is why we of UNESCO undertake to direct our attention toward the enemies of mankind—poverty, disease, ignorance, injustice, misunderstanding and hysteria."

He indicated a belief that much of the fear in individuals was caused by newspapers' black headlines and the excited voices of news commentators on the radio.

Nelson H. Cruikshank, director of social insurance activities for the American Federation of Labor, echoed Arnall's concern.

"It would be easy for us to land this meeting on the front pages of most newspapers in America," Cruikshank said, "if I should accuse any of my colleagues on the commission of being Communists.

"The right of an individual to have access to important information is far from achieved when he must rely on a press which finds news only in conflict. It is easy for us to see that there is no freedom of the press where truth is defined as that which serves the purposes of a police state. It is not easy for us to see that we have not achieved complete freedom of the press where truth is defined as that which increases circulation or guarantees advertising revenues."

Delays Appeal

Coplon Asks Retrial; 'Tap' Made Basis

Judith Coplon disclosed yesterday that she will seek a new trial on her first Red spy conviction on grounds that the Government case was based on the illegal use of evidence obtained through wiretapping.

Attorneys of the former Justice Department analyst asked the United States Court of Appeals to hold up a hearing, scheduled for April 28, on an appeal from the conviction here last June.

The lawyers said they plan to challenge the conviction in the United States District Court and no action should be taken on the appeal until the lower court rules on the motion for a new trial.

Miss Coplon was found guilty in Washington on pilfering secret documents from FBI files to pass on to Valentin A. Gubitchev for Russia. She was sentenced to a jail term of from 40 months to 10 years.

Later, she and Gubitchev were convicted in New York on espionage conspiracy charges. He was deported to Russia and she was sentenced to 15 years. Miss Coplon is appealing both convictions.

Home Rule Debate

"Home Rule for Washington" will be debated from 1:30 to 2 p. m. today over Station WQQW by Edward F. Colladay, counsel of the Washington Board of Trade, and Sturgis Warner of the Washington Home Rule Committee.

Disbarring Asked For Attorneys in Communists' Trial

New York, April 14 (U.P.).—Two bar associations moved today to prevent Harry Sacher and Abraham J. Isserman from ever again practicing law in any Federal Court in the country because of their conduct in defending the 11 American Communists convicted of conspiracy.

The petition for disbarment was signed by Robert P. Patterson, former Secretary of War, as president of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and I. Howard Lehman, as president of the New York County Lawyers Association.

Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard ordered the two attorneys to show cause on May 23 why they should not be disbarred.

The motion charges that the two lawyers behaved during the Communist trial "in provocative manner without regard or respect for the dignity of the court, the judicial office and the administration of justice."

Comedian Seeks Divorce

Hollywood, April 14 (U.P.).—Comedian Groucho Marx, 58, brought suit for divorce today against former night-club singer Kay Gorcey Marx, 29, charging mental cruelty. They were married in 1945.

Student Attends New York Forum

MARGARET ANNE SMITH, 22-year-old political science major, is representing George Washington University today at the seventh annual college forum sponsored by Mademoiselle magazine at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York City. Fifty-five outstanding students will discuss "The Welfare State in a Free Society" during an all day conference. Miss Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Smith, 6286 29th st. nw.

Ship Strike Is Delayed

New York, April 14 (AP).—AFL ship officers on the East and Gulf coasts agreed tonight to delay for one week a strike which had been set for midnight Saturday.

The agreement was brought about by the Federal Mediation Service, which was conducting last-minute negotiations between the union and employers today.

Record Cold, 1.6-Inch Snow Hit New York

New York, April 14 (AP).—A snowstorm accompanied by subfreezing temperatures pelted the metropolitan area today, ending New York City's brief taste of spring.

The fall, which began at dawn, dumped a 1.6-inch blanket of snow over the city, 3 inches in the suburbs, just one day after the city had sent a rainmaker on a cloud-seeding flight over the watershed area.

But the rainmaker, Dr. Wallace E. Howell, disclaimed any credit for the unseasonable snowfall, attributing it instead to the vagaries of Mother Nature.

The snow was accompanied by a 25.2-degree temperature, a record low for April 14. Snow also fell in upper New York State, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New England. An 8-inch fall was reported at north Adams, Mass.

Two Restaurants Suspended for ABC Violations

The District Alcoholic Beverage Board yesterday suspended alcoholic beverage licenses of two restaurants.

The Model Seafood Cafe, 1543 7th st. nw., lost its license for three days, starting April 18, for purchasing alcoholic beverages from another retailer for resale. Suspended five days starting April 17 was the license of the Spring Road Cafe, 3700 14th st. nw., which was found guilty of permitting gambling on its premises and allowing drinking there at an illegal hour.

Tuesday at 10 a. m. the board will hear charges that Lane's Liquor Locker, Inc., 3108-3110 Rhode Island ave. ne., bought and kept on its premises beer stolen from an interstate shipment.

Rackets Spawn Vicious Secret Crimes in District—Fay

last year in which 44 persons were arrested.

2. Prostitution. It exists, but is not an organized racket. It consists, by and large, of the street walker, the small house of assignation and the call-house madame and her crew. Locally, the problem is less now than it was during the war.

3. Swindlers. They are here in number. They are smart. But for the most part they are individual operators.

Fay had this to say about small gangs of thugs:

"Their presence was forcefully called to my attention a year ago when I sat on the parole board at the National Training School for Boys. I was amazed at the number of youths who with their fellows were preying late at night on citizens and on the drunk and the pervert.

"While these crimes may not make up a large percentage of the total, their viciousness and potential danger to all of us makes for a bad situation."

Fay said it is difficult to say what is needed to remedy the situation but it is clear something must be done.

"Washington," he said, "is a clean city physically and a beautiful city. The educational level is higher here than in other parts of the country.

"From all this you would think that crime would be at a minimum and the city would be clean morally, but this is not true.

"I have not compared this city with other cities and have no information as to how its rackets would compare with other localities. However, I would like to obtain this information."

Fay said that another investigating grand jury would not be the answer in itself, but investigation would help lick the problem.

He declared law enforcement techniques have not kept pace with Washington's rapid growth in the past 20 years.

"In other cities," he said, "the law agencies have trained, highly-skilled, highly-paid investigators specializing in such fields as business, accountancy and medicine. These specialists are needed in a metropolis.

"But here, neither in the United States Attorney's office nor in the Police Department, do you find such a staff. And the city's racketeers, they are smart, and they know there is an inadequacy.

"Because of this, they are careful that they do not violate the laws where the trained forces of the FBI or other investigative agencies will be brought to bear against them.

"They know the dividing line between Federal and local jurisdiction as well as I do, and they do not cross this line if they can help it. They generally report scrupulously all their income to the tax authorities and stay winthin the Federal laws where they can."

His staff is greatly overburdened with work at present, Fay said, and he has asked for 12 new assistants to raise the number to 45.

Fay found himself in agreement with Barrett and with Emmitt Warring, the one-time Georgetown gambling great, on one subject. On Thursday Warring told a reporter he was distressed about the crime wave in Washington. Too many kinds carrying guns, he said.

Barrett said simply "there are too many guns around."

Fay commented: "Warring said there are too many guns here. Warring is Warring, but he hit the nail on the head there. There are too many guns and there are too many kids with guns. It took time, but the predictions of many authorities that during the postwar period a lot of the guns the men learned to use in wartime would be used in crime seems to be true here."

Barrett, asked for comment on the presidential statement, said Mr. Truman is every familiar with what goes on in Washington.

He did not dispute the President's statement, but did say, however, that there are no organized mobs in Washington. He explained that by mobs he meant organized gangsters that go in for violence.

"Everybody is familiar with the numbers game setup here," Barrett said. "That is a racket, not only here but nearly everywhere. However, no out-of-town people are involved in this and no one man or group of men controls the racket.

"Our department is making every effort to cope with the type of holdup we have been confronted with in the past two months. We have good reason to believe these holdups will be cleared very shortly.

"It's an all-out project with every police officer to break up crime."

Barrett suggested that the sensational million dollar Brink's robbery in Boston two months ago may have encouraged holdup men all over the United States.

Commissioner Young was asked about the Truman statement, and more specifically what rackets might be operating here and what he intends to do about them.

"I don't want to comment on what anyone else says," he replied.

He was asked if there are any plans for an investigation of rackets or crime in the District.

"I imagine the chief of police is always looking into that," said Young.

He added: "I think Barrett is trying to do everything he can to get the most out of his force."

Representative Davis, reached at Decatur, Ga., said he agreed with the President that there is organized crime in the District but "how much, I really can't say."

He said he feels the numbers racket is a "flourishing business."

Of his subcommittee's work, Davis said, "Our whole program of recommendations, if adopted, will go a long way toward curbing all types of crime, including gambling and dope peddling."

The subcommittee had asked $40,000 to finance a probe of gambling in the District but is not pressing the request because of the resolution introduced in the Senate by Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) calling for a Nationwide investigation of organized crime.

Davis said the request will be renewed, however, if the proposed Kefauver probe does not go deeply enough into the local situation.

However, Kefauver said yesterday: "Washington is one of the cities in which there have been many allegations of organized crime."

Kefauver, whose resolution probably will be acted on by the Senate early next week, perhaps on Monday, said:

"I have read Fay's report carefully (referring to Fay's report on local gambling) and was terribly impressed with it. I have a great deal of confidence in Fay. I have conferred with him several times on the situation."

Several days ago, Kefauver told reporters Washington will be one of the cities looked into if his investigation is authorized by the Senate.

Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.), chairman of the Senate District Appropriations Subcommittee, said he read the President's statement with a great deal of interest.

"I would be in favor of giving the Police Department whatever they might need to cope with the crime situation," he said.

Hill indicated that it is not yet too late to grant extra money to the Police Department and other law enforcement agencies, pointing out that the appropriations bill for the District has not been voted on by his subcommittee.

The Police Department asked for an increase of 44 in personnel this year. However, police officials testified before the Davis House subcommittee that at least 500 more men are needed if the city is to be properly policed.

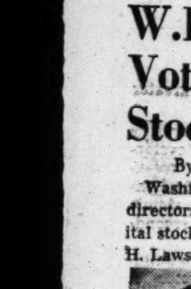
W.L.&T. Board Votes 10-for-1 Stock Splitup

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington Loan & Trust Co. directors have decided to split capital stock 10 for 1, President Alfred H. Lawson announced yesterday.



Lawson

Stockholders will be asked to vote on the proposal at a special meeting on May 10.

Lawson said the splitup is expected to result in wider public distribution of the bank's stock. At present W. L. & T. stock sells in the neighborhood of $340 a share, with yesterday's bid price $335 a share on the Washington Stock Exchange.

W. L. & T. has 10,000 shares of $100-par stock outstanding. The proposed change would put 100,000 shares of $10-par stock in the hands of present stockholders on the basis of 10 new shares for each old share. Actually, the bank's capital would remain unchanged at a million dollars.

Last year, the bank's stock paid $12 a share dividends. For the first two quarters this year, $8 a share has been paid or declared.

Lawson also reported that net earnings for the first three months this year were substantially in excess of the same 1949 period.

EASTER SALES: Washington department store sales in the final pre-Easter week showed 2 percent improvement over the same 1949 week when Easter came one week later. This was a more favorable showing than in the Fifth Federal Reserve District where the sales in the week ending April 8 displayed no change.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Benjamin A. Ragir, former associate solicitor and general tax counsel for the Alien Property Custodian in Washington, has been elected president of Ekco Products Co. Ragir, at 36, becomes one of the youngest men to head a major industrial corporations. Ekco, with annual sales of about 30 million dollars, is a leading producer of kitchenwares. During the war, Ragir participated in management operations of hundreds of manufacturing enterprises taken over by the APC.

ANNIVERSARY: Washington Permanent Building Association, which celebrated its sixty-ninth birthday on Friday, now has assets in excess of 16.4 million dollars and serves nearly 8000 savings and loan accounts. Surplus and reserves approximate 1.6 million dollars. The association at 629 F st. nw., has experienced its greatest growth since 1944, with assets advancing more than four million dollars. Carl J. Bergmann, president, has served the association for 46 years.

OVERRULED: Protests of a Washington stockholder notwithstanding, the New Haven Railroad board Thursday agreed to pay $3,250,000 for securities bought five years ago by their present owners for $2,256,800. Eugene Havas, $1, who lives at 3205 R st. nw., attended the Connecticut meeting and charged the railroad's directors with having "betrayed the interests" of the stockholders. Among the owners of the purchased stock is Frederic C. Dumaine, president of the New Haven Railroad.

ANOTHER SESQUI: Alex Brown & Sons, oldest name in the American investment banking business, will celebrate its 150th anniversary on April 24. The business, founded in Baltimore in 1800 by Alexander Brown, has been carried on by his direct descendants for a century and a half. In addition to the principal office in Baltimore, offices are maintained in Washington, New York, Frederick, Md., and Winston-Salem, N. C.

Plastiras to Form New Greek Cabinet

Chile's Day Here

Parties Keep Gonzalez Group Busy

Yesterday was Pan American Day in the Americas, but it was Chile's day in Washington.

The handsome President, Gabriel Gonzalez Videla and his lovely Senora, hewed to a line of parties in their honor yesterday, topped it off by giving a dinner in honor of President and Mrs. Truman and a reception for several thousand guests at the Pan American Union afterward.

Senora Honored

At 10:30 yesterday morning while the President attended the special meeting of the Council of American States, Senora de Gonzalez was guest of honor of the Inter-American Commission of Women, at a reception also held in the Pan American Union building.

Hosts and guests, numbering 91, sat down at a U-shaped table in the Shoreham's red and white muralled Palladian room for President and Senora de Gonzales' dinner. Spring flowers in tall silver vases were spaced down the table; a fountain splashed in the center of the sunken garden of red and white tulips and azaleas.

Chief Justice Fred Vinson was among the dinner guests without Mrs Vinson who is still in Kentucky. The Secretary of State, Dean Acheson, also came alone as Mrs. Acheson is in Saranac, N. Y., with her daughter, Mrs. William Bundy who is ill.

Cabinet Represented

Secretary of Defense and Mrs. Louis Johnson were there, and also from the Cabinet Attorney General and Mrs. Howard McGrath, Postmaster General and Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Oscar L. Chapman, Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles Brannan and the Secretary of Labor, Maurice Tobin, and Mrs. Tobin.

Senator Tom Connally, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, came with Mrs. Connally. Senator Alexander Wiley was in the group and also Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, the Army Chief of Staff and Mrs. J. Lawton Collins, the Air Force Chief of Staff and Mrs. Hoyt Vandenberg, Under Secretary of State and Mrs. James Webb, Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Edward G. Miller, jr., Presidential Assistant John Steelman and Mrs. Steelman; President Truman's Air Military, and Naval Aides: Brig. Gen. Robert B. Landry, Major Gen. Harry H. Vaughan and Rear Admiral Robert L. Dennison, were there with their wives, and the guests also included Chief of Protocol and Mrs. Stanley Woodward, the dean of the Diplomatic Corps; Norwegian Ambassador Wilhelm Munthe Morgenstierne and Mme. Munthe Morgenstierne; the Brazilian Ambassador, Mauricio Nabuco and his sister, Miss Carolina Nabuco; United States Ambassador to Chile, Claude G. Bowers; Luis Quintanilla, chairman of the Council of OAS, aand Senora de Quintanilla; the Secretary General of the Pan American Union and Senora de Lleras.

The Chilean Ambassador and Senora Nieto del Rio were guests, and members of the Presidential party who attended were the Minister of Foreign Affairs and Senora de Walker; the Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs and Senora de Trucco, Alfonso Campos, member of the Chamber of Deputies, and Senora de Campos, who are son in law and daughter of President and Senora de Gonzalez; the Chilean Ambassador to the U. N. and eSnora de Santa Cruz, Col. Santiago Bobles, Senor and Senora de Vergara.

From the Chilean Ambassy staff were the Minister-Counselor and Senora de Rodriguez, the Air Attache and Senora Gatica; the Naval Attache and Senora de Escobedo. Others were Gen. Walton Ojeda and Senora de Ojeda, Admiral and Senora de Holger, Comdr. Eduardo Middleton and Senora Ana Figueroa.

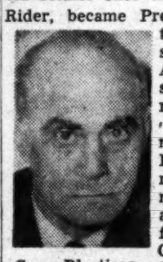
Trumans Receive

From the Shoreham the Presidential cavalcade moved down Connecticut ave. to the Pan American Union. In the Columbus room President and Mrs. Truman and their hosts greeted the already assembled Latin American Ambassadors and their wives and the Ambassadors to the Organization of American States and their senoras.

It was an occasion for President Truman to offer his congratulations on the sixtieth birthday anniversary of the Pan American Union.

At 10:30 the first guests began to arrive. Welcoming them in line at the head of the starway were the Chilean Ambassador, Felix del Rio; then President Gonzalez, Senora de Gonzalez, Senora Nieto del Rio and the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Horacio Walker and Senora de Walker.

Athens, April 14 (AP).—Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, a white-haired old soldier once called the Black Rider, became Premier-designate today in a shakeup under American pressure for Greek reforms.



Gen. Plastiras

He got the mandate from King Paul I, a royal son of the man Plastiras and others forced from the Greek throne in the 1922 revolution—King Constantine. He was Premier briefly once before, in 1945.

With a reputation of being both anti-Royalist and a leftist, Plastiras will head the nineteenth government to be formed in this country of many political hues since World War II.

It is expected to be a broad coalition based on his own mildly leftist party, the National Progressive Union.

Plastiras said he hoped to finish the job Saturday picking a cabinet that will represent a parliamentary majority and "make full utilization of the valuable American aid under the Marshall Plan."

After only about three weeks in office, the Royalist-backed Liberal government of Premier Sophocles Venizelos resigned to make way for the change. Plastiras was originally scheduled for a shot at the premiership in a deal with Center Party leaders, including Venizelos, after the March 5 parliamentary election, but the deal fell through.

The No. 1 reason listed by Venizelos' government stepping out was "allied factors." This referred to the declaration by United States Ambassador Henry F. Grady in a letter to Venizelos March 31 that the Greeks must put their political and economci houses in order if they expect further American aid.

Grady's letter was interpreted here at the time as an invitation to Venizelos to broaden his government or resign. Venizelos' Liberals won only 57 of the 250 parliamentary seats in the election, which showed a national swing to the left. But the Populists (Royalists) and other right-wing parties had pledged votes to give it a majortiy.

The one nonliberal in the cabinet, National Unionist Panayotis Kanellopoulos, resigned as deputy premier and defense minister April 2 to help Venizelos broaden the representation and meet the American criticism.

Plastiras, 66, is a bachelor who lives in Spartan simplicity in an apartment in Athens. Ailing now, he still keeps his white mustache twirled up sharply at the ends in the manner of the mounted officers of his youth.

representative democracies and we must induce those nations that have abandoned democracy to return to that system of freedom and dignity of the individual."

President Gonzalez said the world political crisis today "dwarfs all historical precedent." He said it was not merely a problem of geography, security zones or spheres of influence.

Struggle Against Time

"We are engaged in a struggle against time," he said, and emphasized that this time must be used to relieve man's hunger and misery and thus make him immune to Communist propaganda.

"We must prove to our peoples," he said, "that democratic ideals are not in conflict with the principles of economic security."

In Chile and other Latin-American countries, he said, it is much harder to defend democracy than it is in a country like the United States with its high living standards and great wealth.

Dog Drowns Girl, 14

Strasburg, N. Dak., April 14 (U.P.). A 14-year-old farm girl, Etta Umber, was drowned when a playful dog apparently pushed her into a creek, authorities said today.

Actress in Tears Receives Divorce

WANDA HENDRIX

Sobbing throughout a brief court hearing in Hollywood, Calif., tiny Wanda Hendrix, received a divorce from war hero-actor Audie Murphy on a mental cruelty charge. "From the beginning of our marriage he made it a point to criticize my dress, the way I talked and moved, my expression, the way I prepared food and anything I said," she told the judge.

Baltic Search Continuing As Hope Fades

Copenhagen, Denmark, April 14 (U.P.).—United States Air Force officers abandoned hope tonight of saving the 10 airmen aboard a Navy plane which disappeared last Saturday on a flight from Wiesbaden, Germany, to Copenhagen.

But officers in charge ordered "maximum effort" maintained tomorrow in a continued search of 60,000 square miles of the Baltic Sea. They hoped, at least, that some clew to the plane's fate might be found.

No doubt was held at Copenhagen search headquarters that the plane was shot down by the Russians, who announced one of their fighter planes fired on an American plane over the Latvian coast. But discovery of wreckage might give some clue to the spot where the plane actually was fired on—possibly, Air Force officers believe, over a Russian maneuver area out in the open Baltic.

Ten of the 25 American planes engaged in the search were called off late today. Ten minutes later Air Force headquarters at Wiesbaden ordered "all possibilities exhausted" in a continued attempt to find the plane. It was believed the order originated in Washington.

Chiang's Ships Sink Junks

Taipei, Formosa, April 14 (U.P.).—Nationalist warships and planes today sank more than 120 Communist junks off Central and South China, breaking up what appeared to be attempted invasions of two strategic island bases, official announcements said.

A navy communique said two gunboats sank more than 100 vessels of a fleet of more than 200 Red junks, intercepted as they sailed across Hangchow Bay toward the Nationalist-held Chushan Islands.

Earlier the air force reported that bombers caught more than 200 junks off the Fukien coast, where the Communist Have been reported massing troops to invade the island. The communique made no mention of damage to the Communist fleet.

Off the Luichow Peninsula, staging area for Communist attacks on Hainan Island, the air force said its planes attacked 85 junks apparently bound for Hainan and sank 20. Two motor-powered, heavily laden junks were reported damaged.

Point 4 Called Inadequate to Meet Problem

Philadelphia, April 14 (AP).—The United States was challenged today to help bring about a "social revolution" in the "underdeveloped countries of the world.

President Truman's Point Four program is not enough, the American Academy of Political and Social Science was told by George Hakim, counselor of the legation of Lebanon.

Hakim was one of a half-dozen speakers at a symposium on Point Four at the academy's Fifty-fourth annual meeting.

The Point Four program, as conceived by the President, would supply United States economic know-how to the war-ravaged countries of the world. The President called it a "bold new program."

Hakim said the program is "too small to provide any effective contribution" to the economic development of poverty-stricken nations.

Masses Need First to Live

The masses of the underdeveloped lands, which Hakim said make up two thirds of the world's population, "are not interested in concepts of free enterprise, free competition, democracy and human rights. . . . It is necessary first to live and not to starve," he asserted.

And, he said, Point Four improperly places too great an emphasis on (1) free enterprise, and (2) private capital.

"What is needed," the Lebanese official said, "is no less than a social said, "is no less than a social revolution involving the transformation of a semifeudal reactionary social order into a new industrial system under which the forces of production can develop and expand freely so as to raise the standard of living of the people as a whole."

And, he said, "so far the Western powers have allied themselves with the reactionary forces in the underdeveloped countries which stand for the maintenance of an outworn social system."

In other addresses:

Dr. Herman J. Friedericy, special adviser on Netherlands-Indonesian affairs at the Netherlands Embassy, said that only "Americans of my generation" can answer the question: "Is Point Four too little or too much?"

He said "the immediate problem for the Indonesian government . . . seems to be political," because it constitutes "a target of the greatest importance to the Communist forces."

"A production organization," said Dr. Friedericy, "requires security—general security."

Dr. Robert R. Nathan, consulting economist, in praising rapid strides in industrialization of the Middle East, said "the economic development of Israel will help in the preservation and broadening of the democratic process throughout the Middle East."

Rebel Chief Surrenders

Jakarta, U. S. I., April 14 (AP). Rebel Capt. Andi Abdul Aziz surrendered today, but left his Makassar revolt simmering in the hands of a subordinate.

The Government considered the arrival of Aziz by plane—a day late on the third summons—as "unconditional surrender." There was doubt, however, whether the rebels will give up without bloodshed.

Defense Minister Sultan Hamengku Buwono said Aziz was taken into custody as a prisoner and will not be allowed to return to Makassar, state capital of East Indonesia.

"I do not know what order Aziz gave his troops," Buwono said. "They are still holding the town and they are still insurgents. Our military operations will continue until I am positive the matter is completely settled."

The East Indonesia Information Minister, W. J. Ratulangi, arriving with Aziz, insisted Aziz had come to Jakarta not as a prisoner, but as an army officer.

Ratulangi said Aziz had come after assurances the East Indonesia state would not be liquidated militarily and that the Indonesian Corps of the Dutch army, immobilized since independence, will be reorganized to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Moscow Setting

Lie May Seek Red Parley On Big Issues

Lake Success, April 14 (NYHT). Secretary General Trygve Lie said today that when he is in Europe next month he will decide whether to go to Moscow in efforts to break the United Nations East-West deadlock through talks with top Russian officials, probably including Marshal Josef Stalin.

At his weekly news conference, Mr. Lie indicated that a Moscow visit is such a definite possibility that he is taking with him to Europe Konstantin E. Zinchenko, a Soviet citizen and U. N. assistant secretary general for political affairs, whose services would be "helpful" in the Russian capital.

Mr. Lie, who heads an organization that now has suffered 19 Russian boycotts or walkouts in three months, asserted that he might simply inform the Russians that he was in Europe in case they wanted to see him, or he might take the initiative himself and tell the Soviets he wanted to visit Moscow.

In any case, he indicated, he should seek an exchange of ideas on every big Russian-Western problem that now bedevils the U. N.—Chinese representation, atomic energy control, admission of new members, world police force and the prospect of an extraordinary session of the Security Council somewhere in Europe, probably attended by foreign ministers.

U. S. May Drop Arms Balance

superiority—in the same way devote itself to fields where this can best be exploited.

How far such ideas were spelled out at the Hague and at other meetings is not known, but that is the idea under study which Bradley put forward for public discussion yesterday.

The JCS chief spoke at a luncheon of Chicago business leaders. Later, answering questions, he declared that Alaska is a weak spot in our defenses, but "undercover agents" are the greatest threat to our security.

"Never before have we been threatened so much from within," he said. "Even our school kids are being corrupted by these agents."

Speaking of the defense plans evolved at the Hague, Bradley said that as they develop "traditions will have to give way to reality."

"And even our own balance of United States forces—if we expand beyond the present levels—may have to give way to the theory of national specialization, which will fit into an over-all balance for collective defense.

"For example, the North Atlantic Treaty defensive plans might require from us a greater air force, or a greater Navy, than we ourselves would normally be willing to provide.

"With such an arangement, of course, a small bit of sovereignty is relinquished. But when I think that national pride and sovereignty are often paid for with the life and blood of soldiers, I feel that we must accept the more difficult alternative which comes with this joining of hands in collective defense.

"The defensive plans made at the Hague, and submitted to our Government, need not change the balance of forces, nor decrease the appropriations requested from the Congress for the armed forces this year.

"The forces of the North Atlantic Treaty organizations are so modest and so needful that every soldier, every ship, every plane and every weapon counts, and will not be wasted. But in future years, we must consider most carefully what our friends can best contribute before we decide what the American dollar should buy for the collective defense."

Leahy Book Seen Basis for Petain Appeal

Paris, April 14 (AP).—A French lawyer announced today he will seek a retrial for Marshal Philippe Petain on the basis of new facts "which have come to light since the court passed sentence in 1945."

The World War I hero who was convicted of treason and collaboration with the Germans for his work as Premier of Vichy France in World War II is serving a life term at an island prison. He is now 94.

His attorney, Jacques Isorni, said new facts with a bearing on the case include about 10 passages in the recently published memoirs of Admiral William D. Leahy, who was United States Ambassador to France from 1940 to 1942. The book is titled "I Was There."

The lawyer declined to quote the passages. But the book recalls, among other things, that the late French Admiral Francois Darlan told Leahy that Petain's last words to him before the Germans cut their communications were: "We must always remain friends with the United States."

Leahy himself commented in Washington today that Petain "was a friend of mine. He helped me at times."

"The material about Petain in my book are statements of fact as it appeared to me at the time," he said. "I checked the manuscript very carefully."

Petain asked Leahy in 1945 to come to France and testify in his behalf. Leahy replied that he was unable to appear, but a letter from him was read in court saying Petain had "expressed the hope of Nazi destruction."

Berlin Reds Deny Plan For 'Putsch'

Berlin, April 14 (U.P.).—Germany's Young Communists today denied any intention to "invade" West Berlin next month, while 1500 United States soldiers with bared bayonets rehearsed the welcome they will give any who might try to "crash the gate."

The Communist Youth newspaper, Junge Welt, said in a one-million-copy special edition the Reds "do not even think of pushing their way by force into West Berlin" during their May 27-30 convention in the Russian sector.

It was the most emphatic of several recent Communist statements climbing down from the February announcement that delegates would climax the convention by marching into West Berlin.

The official program for the rally, which the Reds hope will be attended by about 500,000, said all activities will be kept well away from the border area where clashes with anti-Communists or with West Berlin police are most likely.

The program for the four-day rally includes speeches by leading Communists, sports events and fireworks, climaxed by a torchlight parade through the main streets of the Russian sector.

In the anti-riot maneuver, U. S. soldiers took the part of 20,000 Communists who theoretically entered West Berlin.

U. S. Plans Atomic Engines In Submarines, Other Craft

Strauss declared he was confident the atomic program "is in good hands," and he holds no fears that the hydrogen will destroy the world.

While passing up questions on American and Russian progress with the H-bomb, he said he deplored "extreme statements" by some persons in the field.

"Such extreme statements are not warranted by the facts as I know them," said Strauss. "The H-bomb is not going to destroy all life on the planet. It isn't something you can hold in your hand like a firecracker, but it also isn't going to blow a chunk off the earth the size of the moon."

The shift in the AEC's program to get another high-priority project going in the high-propulsion field led to speculation as to the reason back of it.

AEC spokesmen said "technical considerations" led to the general revision of the program, but other officials felt that "changes in the international picture" contributed to the decision.

This undoubtedly referred to the Russian development of atomic bombs, and perhaps a need to step up our prograss in undersea warfare, in view of Soviet emphasis on new-type submarines.

It could be that the Westinghouse engine is far enough along so that the need for a smaller atomic power plant is seen as necessary. The Knolls laboratory, it was said, will give first emphasis to supporting "expanded" production program planned at Hanford, and second priority to a "ship intermediate reactor."

In this type of reactor or "pile" the control of fission would be held at a slower rate than with the "Ship Thermal Reactor" or atomic engine under development by Westinghouse. This change should make the General Electric reactor smaller than the Westinghouse and require a different type of cooling system.

Both take the place of boilers to generate heat in conventional engines and this power must be harnessed to a turbine. Chief advantage of such an atomic power plant for submarines is that they could operate for long periods completely submerged — without snorkel breathing tubes—and probably be capable of much greater speeds.

Previously, Knolls laboratory had put its emphasis on development of a "power breeder" reactor project, with assistance to Hanford and development of an atomic engine for land use given secondary roles.

Work scheduled to start on building a power-breeder reactor at West Milton, N. Y., will be deferred, it was said. A power-breeder is a pile designed to create new nuclear fuel faster than it consumes it, so that a net gain results.

Development of this "ideal" power plant will be carried on elsewhere, AEC officials said. The purpose of the action is to concentrate on more immediate objectives such as ship propulsion and increased bomb output rather longer-range goals, one official declared.

There has been no decision whether the GE ship propulsion reactor will be built at West Milton when ready, or whether it will be set up at Arco, where the Westinghouse reactor is expected to be started late this year. Both will be land prototypes of a shipboard installation, which undoubtedly would require modification for use at sea.

Officials said that most of the development work already done on the power-breeder reactor can be utilized in the ship project. If the latter is successful, it will contribute greatly to development of commercial use of atomic power on land.

U. S. Embassy Attacks Czech 'Spy' Trial

Prague, April 14 (U.P.).—The United States Embassy in Prague today said that statements made at the espionage trial yesterday of two United States Information Service employes were "either demonstrably untrue or so twisted and distorted as to produce a false, inaccurate and misleading picture" of the service.

The two employes, Lubomir Elsner, 28, and Miss Dagmar Kacerovska, 23, were sentenced to 18 and 15 years, respectively, on charges of turning over secrets to United States Press Attache Joseph Kolarek, working against the republic and insulting allied states.

Truman On Crime

President Truman has shown good judgment in identifying himself with the present effort to throw the influence of the Government against interstate criminal rings. He did not speak too soon, for some of his followers in Congress had apparently feared that an intensive investigation into big criminal operations ignoring State lines might prove embarrassing to him. Instead, the President says that he initiated himself the grand jury inquiries into crime in Kansas City and some other large centers where the underworld has been especially active. While he did not discuss the proposed senatorial probe, the implication is strong that he favors it and would expect it to do a thorough job. In our opinion, that attitude is politically wise as well as in the public interest.

It seems to us a mistake, as we have previously pointed out, to take this investigation out of the hands of the Senate Judiciary Committee. But if that course is to be taken, the least that can be done is to assign the Senate's outstanding investigators to the special committee. An undertaking of this sort ought to command the best investigative talent from both the Republican and the Democratic side of the Senate. This unquestionably means that Senators Ferguson and Donnell ought to be included.

Meanwhile, it is encouraging to note that Senator Kefauver, the alert sponsor of the investigation, is planning, as the prospective chairman of the special committee, to hire an outstanding counsel at the rate of $20,000 a year. We hope that means will be found to carry out this plan, for the character of the investigaion will depend in no small measure upon the type of staff that is assembled to do the detailed work of probing into underworld activities.

Whose Civil Defense?

Preparation for coping with the aftermath of atomic attack is so closely related to other aspects of civil defense that we cannot see why it should be the exclusive province of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee in Congress. The dispute between the Atomic Energy Committee and the Senate Armed Services Committee is one of jurisdiction, but it has a great bearing on whether primary congressional responsibility for civil defense is to be unified or divided.

Civil defense is a tremendously broad field, covering not only recovery from atomic attack but also means of protecting cities against conventional warfare, prevention of sabotage, provision of shelter and medical treatment and the like. Why should the planning against atomic attack come under a different committee from the planning as to what a city should do if it were hit by an old-fashioned blockbuster? Civil defense is, of course, a responsibility of the whole Congress, but the primary supervision ought to be in one place. That supervision belongs to the Armed Services Committees, which have responsibility for "the common defense." The Atomic Energy responsibility is one of development and production.

Although civil defense is tremendously important, we cannot agree with one suggestion of the Senate Armed Services Committee that it ought to be made a "fourth arm" of the defense structure. There is just as much danger in too much preparation as too little; the Nation would be just as much crippled by expending its wealth in burrowing itself into caves as by attack. In any event, the real responsibility is at the local level. What the Federal Government must do is see that communities receive guidance based on intelligence estimates, to see that city plans are drawn up and necessary cadre training begun, and beyond this to set broad matters of national policy respecting the location of new plants and the like. This is a job for civilian direction, now carried out by the recently rejuvenated National Security Resources Board.

Neither, however, can we agree with the contention of Senator McMahon that some of the material on atomic defense is so secret that it can be handled only by his committee. If that is the case, it is a paradox of overclassification. It is people in communities, and not a committee of Congress, who need to know what to do in the event of attack. Cooperation of the Atomic Energy Commission with civil defense authorities is, of course, essential; but it already exists. There is no reason to narrow the necessary scope of civil defense preparation by implying that it is solely an atomic problem.

The Fight Over China

The current whodunit on China hides a truth that needs to be absorbed if the lesson of the American failure is to be learned. The truth is the very simple and elementary one that China is different from America! All countries, as a matter of fact, are different from America, and the greatest mistake of our diplomacy hitherto has been to think of and deal with other countries as if they were cast in the American image—or, at least, could be made over in the American image. Particularly is China different. Sooner or later every great power has learned by experience how sui generis China is. The Russians, for instance, found out in 1927. In that year the Russians intervened in China in much the same way that America did in 1947, viz, with arms and a military mission. Chiang Kai-shek's Kuomintang, or Nationalist Party, is, as Sir John Pratt puts it, as much a child of Soviet Russia as the Chinese Communist Party. But after a while it went its own way, and the day came when the Russians found themselves outside looking in. As soon as their usefulness was over, they were thrown out so neatly that they scarcely knew what was happening to them. The upshot was that in 1947 they relied on nonintervention, and with unconcealed satisfaction watched interventionist America take the same beating.

Doubtless some of the engineers of Russia's China policy were purged after the 1927 fiasco. But in a police state like Russia, where free discussion is not tolerated, the primary aim was to profit by the experience. The same exercise would be helpful in America. "The worst error of statesmanship," said a great statesman, "is to cling to the carcass of a dead policy." Yet that is precisely what we are now doing. Frustrated, we are swapping brickbats among ourselves (while another war is raging, too) in a frenetic dither—trying to purge and expiate and pass the buck instead of soberly seeking the lesson to the American interest and applying it. The Republicans are swearing that they are blameless, though, in fact, they were party to the intervention that failed. Bipartisanship there certainly was over China. The Republicans actually made intervention a condition of enacting the Marshall Plan for Europe, and Secretary Marshall accepted the string only with great reluctance. The Administration's responsibility lay in a waiting-for-the-dust-to-settle policy while it was still possible to save an American interest out of the general wreck, viz, Formosa.

To understand why Chiang Kai-shek lost China—and nobody else did—it is well to watch him in operation with his bloated army in Formosa. There he has a real stronghold. His greatest danger lies from infiltration, for the 100-mile channel between Formosa and the mainland is treacherous and perilous. Don't let us think, as so many of us do, that in Formosa he is on Chinese territory. He is not. Formosa is foreign to the Chinese, a gift from the great powers which the Chinese celebrated by massacring 5000 or 10,000 Formosans. For the time being the islanders are thus leaderless. But leadership will rise again, no matter how much treasure and aid the United States pours into the Nationalist lap in Formosa. On that the United States must reckon. And the rise of Formosan leadership from the ashes will be hastened by Chiang Kai-shek's tactics. Nobody can make as well as kill Communists as well as Chiang Kai-shek, and he is making Communists in Formosa as he did in China. Let a visitor, Robert P. Martin, writing in the current Reporter testify:

> For two decades Chiang Kai-shek was the most powerful man in China, but at no time did he understand that military power depends on a stable economic and political base. Today in Formosa he is making the same mistakes that brought on the mainland debacle.

Some writers have put all this down to Chiang's extraordinary stubbornness. He has that. But, more importantly, he is Chinese. He is not a leader of the Chinese people, but the patriarch of the Kuomintang, running what he runs like a medieval satrap. This is not the indictment of him that it sounds. For it merely reflects the stage of political development in China. The Chinese are still familistic, and don't think of China as a corporate entity to live and die for, for they are not a nation-state in the same sense that others are, but a civilization—with a background which makes it without a peer in human history. A little preoccupation with what China is, together with what the American interest is, would be far more profitable than the present hubbub.

Morals And Moviedom

It is reported that a congressional agent is to be dispatched to Hollywood to investigate the personal morals—meaning, as far as we can gather, the sexual morals—of the movie folk there. Just what his special qualifications for this work may be, we are not sure; we are advised that he was formerly of Hollywood himself, having had something to do with the movie production code, and, therefore, already well informed about the general subject. Anyway, he will make his report to the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

All this, as we understand, is to be a sort of overture or prosodion to the hearings that the committee is to hold on Senator Johnson's bill for the Federal licensing of movie and theatrical performers. The idea seems to be that nobody should be permitted to take part in movie or theatrical productions who cannot furnish proof of an exemplary private character. Thus, Senator Johnson believes the bad example now being offered to American youth by the scandalous conduct of certain of the movie brethren and sisters will be removed. The Senator, as probably you know, has worked himself into a good deal of frenetic indignation over the Bergman-Rossellini affair, although, according to our information, it all took place some thousands of miles from Hollywood.

We hope our readers will observe that in saying the whole thing strikes us as a rather silly and stupid idea, we are actually talking against our own material interest. The kind of hearings that Senator Johnson seems to be contemplating would undoubtedly sell a good many extra papers, particularly if the investigator manages to stir up anything of specially scandalous interest. And we doubt that airing it all on the front pages, where the Astor and Chaplin and Flynn cases were successively aired some years ago, would have a particularly salutary effect upon American youth either. Maybe our saying so will persuade you that the newspaper business isn't the cold-blooded, cynical game it is sometimes represented to be; maybe not.

Anyway, we can't help thinking that if the sexual morals of Hollywood and of Broadway are a matter of public concern, the concern properly belongs to the local authorities and not to the Federal Government. Also we can't help thinking how eminently qualified Miss Bergman herself, only one short year ago, might have seemed for one of Senator Johnson's licenses.

Pension Survey

Welfare Plans and Collective Bargaining, a booklet issued by the labor relations committee of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, throws much needed light on the problems of employers faced by union demands for pensions. No attempt is made to deal with the long-range effects of the current pension drive or to lay down hard-and-fast rules for the guidance of employers in setting up pension plans. After pointing out that, subject to certain restrictions, the Taft-Hartley Act requires employers to bargain over welfare funds, the survey confines discussion to such topics as the pattern of union welfare demands, the cost of pension plans, methods adopted in financing and administering them, and eligibility requirements.

It is generally recognized, the report says, "that the adoption of an adequate pension plan constitutes one part of a good labor relations program. But the abandonment of any previously installed plan, or its modification downward, presents an extremely serious labor relations problem for the employer and the employes affected." That statement reinforces the advice given employers to make certain that their welfare plans are "sound, workable, and flexible." That means, of course, that every plan has to be adapted to the requirements of the individual company, providing "adequate benefits to the employe without imposing overpowering costs on the employer."

In describing details of pension plans already in force and calling attention to the objections to certain types of commitments, the survey makes the employer aware of the dangers of snap judgments, and the importance of looking before he leaps. However, he is not urged to adopt any particular type of pension plan. On the contrary, he is warned against rushing out and adopting another company's program and told to seek competent advice from legal, actuarial, tax, labor relations, and other experts before he installs a plan of his own.

So many reports put out by business and labor organizations are colored by prejudice, or take the form of propagandistic appeals, that it is refreshing to discover a report addressed to employer groups that is singularly free from such defects. Based on the assumption that employers are not opposed to welfare plans, it wastes no time debating controversial issues, but makes an honest and, in our opinion, most successful attempt to throw light on the complexities of the problems involved in adopting pension plans.

The District Poor

Grossly inadequate District relief grants (based on 1946 living costs) will be cut by 8 percent on the 1st of May unless Congress promptly votes additional funds that would make reductions unnecessary. The steadily increasing number of relief cases this year have already produced a 12 percent cut in individual grants. After the May 1 reduction it is estimated that relief payments will be 45 percent below the amounts required to meet basic subsistence needs. This is a shameful situation, all the more shocking in view of the willingness of Congress to vote huge sums for the relief of the destitute of other countries.

Washington is a flourishing city, amply able to make decent, even generous, provision for its poor. But since Congress controls the purse strings, the municipality can do nothing to alleviate distress unless Congress votes the additional appropriations requested by the Welfare Department. The plight of the District poor (the result of congressional indifference, neglect or plain callousness) is another strong argument in favor of self-government for this subject community.

FIREFLIES

One firefly's little lantern makes,
Across the dusk, a point of light—
Then suddenly a myriad wakes
Against the vastness of the night!

So much world—and the wings so few
To bear, in this dark interim,
The glow that towns and pastures knew
In other times . . . when lights were dim!

In other lands, where men may trust
No longer anything so bright,
The fireflies lift from trodden dust
This continuity of light.

"Swimming Pools"

I and other people who reside in or near the vicinity of the Anacostia swimming pool are against nonsegregation when it comes to swimming in this pool. It will start race riots, like a match tossed carelessly into a pile of paper. Why not build a pool for the colored people in the Northeast section, and all this friction which is bound to occur would be stopped.

I think as American citizens we should be consulted before these things are done.

MRS. B. PARENT.
Washington.

In your April 10 editorial on the swimming pool situation, you displayed a conception of gradualism that would gradually take the Negro back to slavery. Has The Washington Post forgotten that all of the Departments of Interior pools were opened on an interracial basis last summer? There was an incident in one, the Anacostia pool, it is true, and it was closed for the remainder of the season, yet this came about because a small gang of hoodlums were bent on driving the Negro people from the pool. Many observers did not feel that the actions of the Police Department or the Recreation Board were those which would promote harmony. Rather it seemed that Mr. Wender and the Recreation Board may have set the stage for the riot by constant agitation for turning over the pools so that they could be operated on a Jim-Crow basis.

This year all the pools should be opened on an interracial basis, with perhaps a committee of leading citizens, ministers, rabbis, etc., to help promote harmony and understanding. Jim Crow in the Nation's Capital is becoming the Nation's disgrace.

That the editorials on the swimming pools and on Nijinsky should have appeared on the same day (April 10) was dramatic irony. Concerned with subjects worlds apart, in one sentence in the editorial on the dancer, they had a meaningful point of contact: ". . . most of us . . . cherish inner affirmations that we deny implicitly in our conduct." "Democracy," but —; "Equality,' if;—"Brotherhood," gradually. Schizophrenic America!

Flying Saucers

I am astounded at the inaccurate and biased thinking of both skeptics and upholders of the flying saucers! First, Mr. Keyhoe, writing in True magazine, states flatly there are but two kinds of "saucers" and both are from another planet. Competent observers have seen triangular, crescent, oval, square, 'V'-shaped and torpedo-shaped aerial objects. Mr. Keyhoe believes them strictly three dimensional.

But if they were so, why do they (1) change shape in flight? (2) Hover and disappear into thin air in an instant? The armed forces, in an attitude as phenomenal as the saucers themselves, abruptly contradicts its official published report of April 27, 1949 (after two years of study), in which it declares "the saucers are not a joke."

And radio commentators doggedly insist they are jet-propelled craft from this planet. They ignore the fact that many speed with absolutely no sound or exhaust trail and are of shapes it is safe to say no earthly engineer would dream of designing.

My theory, presented to the Air Force in July, 1947, that, if a third of the accounts can be believed, the aerial objects represent a form of supernatural phenomena and are no cause for alarm—has ridden the tempest of controversy like a cork, and still stands.

Public Religion

I desire to file a protest against the burning of the electric cross displayed during the night on the facade of the Naval Hospital in Bethesda.

I also protest the broadasting of sacred music from the hospital at intervals each day and on Sundays and holidays.

The basis of this protest is that the hospital was erected with public funds for the treatment and care of naval personnel and others authorized by law irrespective of their religious beliefs or affiliations. No part of such funds is properly expendable for activities related to religious matters.

JAMES R. KELLOGG.

Near East Students

A recent article in another newspaper concerns the hundreds of Near Eastern students who have been threatened deportation by the U. S. Immigration Service because their funds have been cut off.

Although my problem with the immigration authorities is not so "serious" as to cause deportation or anything of the sort, it still has its source in these recent Palestine hostilities. I would like to ask each and every single immigration employe to give a very careful consideration of the recent Palestine war before taking such unfair and drastic measures as detaining us on Ellis Island when we first arrive in this country; giving us some very detailed hearings every now and then—as though we are criminals or something; admitting us to the country on a thousand-dollar bond; and worst of all, deporting us.

We have come to this country to have some decent "American education." I beg the immigration authorities not to be so strict with students from America's most friendly part of Asia, the Near East. I wish the authorities would have a "second look" at the students' files, their petitions and their problems; and most of all, I wish the "Palestine question" would be given much more careful consideration.

No Police State In Korea

To an impartial observer who knows Korea inside and out and keeps track of every political move that is going on there, Mr. Yongjeung Kim's letter printed in The Washington Post on March 17, describing Korea as "a police state," is more than a misstatement of facts.

I have traveled the length and length and breadth of South Korea from the thirty-eighth parallel to Cheju Island, and talked with farmers, businessmen, day laborers, professional men, housewives, and officials. I saw no signs of a police state such as exists in the Communist state in North Korea.

During the first session of the National Assembly, a legislator moved to unseat a Communist member. President Rhee (then chairman of the Assembly) protested vigorously, saying that an Assembly member duly elected by his constituency is entitled to his seat regardless of his ideology. As a result, the lone Communist kept his seat with the other 197 legislators.

The constitutional committee put a proviso in the original draft that the President would have authority to dissolve the National Assembly. Chairman Rhee again suggested that that would smack of a monarchy, which the new nation should avoid. The provision was dropped. These are not the methods of a police state.

Mr. Kim mentions unfair judicial trials in South Korea. The greatest court battle in the fledgling republic since independence was the trial of Koreans who were accused of collaboration with the Japanese in prewar days. There was a popular clamor for vengeance and punishment. Yet public hearings were held individually for these collaborationists, and the Supreme Court of Korea dismissed their cases because of the extenuating circumstances.

Mr. Kim complains of the appointive powers of President Rhee. Under the constitution the President of Korea has full authority to appoint certain officials, as has the President of the United States. The judges President Rhee appoints are no more responsible to him than are the Federal judges in the United States to President Truman.

In South Korea all officials, including the President, are subject to impeachment by the National Assembly. I heard speeches and debates in the Assembly criticizing the President far more severely than any member of Congress ever criticizes the President of the United States. Many a cabinet minister has been forced to resign because of the savage attacks on him in the National Assembly. These are not the usual procedures in a police state.

Complete freedom of speech and press is guaranteed by the constitution, and is carried out in everyday practice in Korea, notwithstanding Mr. Kim's charge that President Rhee "has deprived the press of its freedom." I attended many a weekly press conference of President Rhee's. The questions asked by reporters are often sharp, and sometimes highly critical of his administration. Yet the elderly statesman listens to them all good naturedly, taking pains to explain his point of view. Foreign correspondents visiting or stationed in Korea also enjoy the same freedom. No news dispatch going into or coming out of Korea is ever censored.

When Mr. Kim says that the "police can arrest, imprison, torture, and kill anyone at will," he knows that there is not an iota of truth in the statement. The South Korean police, under the law, cannot arrest anyone without a warrant. Furthermore, the police cannot hold a suspect more than 48 hours without giving him a hearing.

With good reason the late Maj. Gen. Archer L. Lerch, former military governor of South Korea, the Korean National Police "one of the finest police forces in the world." Mr. Kim indeed owes an apology to the Korean police for this outlandish slander.

Mr. Kim takes the words out of the mouth of Communist propagandists when he says in the summation of his letter, "The United States will contribute to the communization of Korea and the whole Far East if it continues to support bloodthirsty opportunists, like Syngman Rhee who disregard human rights and life."

Rounding Up Cats To Kick

Why Things Go Wrong

(A meeting of the Association For Advancement)

CHAIRMAN—We have met to decide what Congress should do next.

Mr. Dare—As president of Atomic Age Citizens, Inc., I move we protest the way Congress is running for office before the world. It's making this country a laughing stock.

Mr. Trumpet—You sound like a traitor—no, no, I don't mean exactly that, I mean you sound disloyal——

Mr. Dare—Sir, I am 110 percent American! My mother was born in County Cork.

Mrs. March—We should demand that all these tons of butter, dried milk and eggs, potatoes, other foods be gotten to hungry people. Why isn't more of it going to the Christian Rural Overseas Program? Why isn't more reaching our orphanages and old peoples' homes?

Mr. Gumm—I'll tell you! A certain person is back of this whole food surplus. Why are we surfeited with potatoes? Because of an undercover plot!

Mrs. March—What I'm interested in is getting this stuff into people's stomachs before it rots.

Mr. Trumpet—You sound like a visionary—no I don't mean exactly that——

Mr. Wadd—Where's the money to move this food coming from?

MR. GROOVE — Anyway the Government's not allowed to pay to send it to do-gooders—only to industrialists.

Mr. Stepp—Wait! A law's just been passed giving the Government power to pay to have this food moved to people who'll eat it instead of make money out of it.

Mr. Gumm—I'm against having it moved. It'll fall into the hands of this spy ring.

Mr. Dare—Let's forget this cloak and dagger stuff and get some action out of Congress on education. A teachers' salary bill will be taken up in committee next week. Now we all know how alarming this teacher shortage is.

Mr. Gumm—Do you know what's back of this teacher shortage?

Mr. Dare—Yes! The master spy.

Mrs. McAddle—How does he get around so fast?

Mr. Trumpet—I don't like this man Dare's attitude. I demand to know if his name is Dare—or Dareovitch.

Chairman (rapping)—Order!

Mr. Hardpann—We haven't done anything about balancing the budget? This country's in a perilous position.

Mr. Gumm—And why? Because we have an arch traitor in a high financial post.

Mr. Dare—All this is infantile. Here we are in a cold war that may turn hot any minute. We should urge Congress to take bolder international measures.

Judge Pudd—We havn't time for any round-about foolishness. All we need is to catch the superspy and build the superbomb.

Mrs. Schooner—I move we appoint a committee to help Congress find the superspy.

Chairman—Mr. Stepp, will you be chairman?

Mr. Trumpet—I object. I have it from authorities whose names I can't divulge that this man Stepp once consulted a psychiatrist.

MR. STEPP—My agents inform me this man Trumpet is a card carrying member of the National Association of Manufacturers. Now mind, I'm not saying he's the superspy! But what would be the first thing a superspy would do? Why join the NAM! Get into a Union League Club!

Mr. Trumpet—I demand an apology!

Mrs. March — Something smells funny. We need a window open.

Mrs. McAddle—Maybe there's some dirty work——

Mr. Gumm—Mr. Chairman, I hate to say this but for some time there's been some suspicious things going on right in this organization.

Mr. Wadd—Yes! Why are our finances in the red?

Mrs. Schooner — Why are things run by a little clique?

Mr. Hardpann—Why can't we ever get a quorum?

Mr. Trumpet—Or any big notices in the papers?

Mr. Gumm—I hear a lot of talk that there's some undercover work going on.

Mr. Trumpet—I move we investigate the membership of this association.

Chorus—Who does he mean?

Chairman — Order, please! Mrs. Montclair St. Vitus, our ace project woman, wants to speak.

Mrs. St. Vitus—I have to leave to judge a men's necktie contest. I just want to say this investigation idea is simply wonderful! Our finances, as you know, are very low and this could take the place of a spring fete. We could make it public and charge admissions. We'd get some really stunning publicity.

Wrong Use Of Flag

I was surprised to see the Chilean flag displayed above our American flag on the Riggs National Bank Building here during the celebration honoring President Gonzalez of Chile. The city authorities certainly erred, in my opinion, as no flag, whatever the occasion, should be placed above our own American flag.

Falling Farm Prices

By Marquis Childs

Omens Of Republican Victory

THE REPUBLICAN National Committee is taking satisfaction from the returns in the Illinois primary election. A publicity release proclaims that the figures mean the defeat of Senator Scott Lucas by his Republican opponent, former Congressman Everett Dirksen.

Childs

The Republican vote in the country towns of Illinois was the largest on record, according to Chairman Guy George Gabrielson. And Cook County, the stronghold of the Democratic Party, fell far behind the hopeful predictions of party bosses. The Democrats dispute this claim.

Understandably, the Republicans are eager to find reasons for rejoicing. But it's just possible that these hosannahs may be a little premature.

Primary elections are notoriously unreliable indicators to what happens in the fall. In the primary in 1948, for example, the then Republican Senator, C. Wayland (Curly) Brooks, together with another Republican candidate polled more than 700,000 votes in the Republican primary. In the Democratic primary Paul Douglas got 550,000 votes. Yet in November the total for Douglas was 2,147,000 and for Brooks 1,740,000.

There are, however, factors in Illinois that lend color to the Republican optimism: a Republican victory in that State is possible and for reasons that may have very little to do with the larger and noisier issues of foreign policy and communism in Government. These last are the issues that Dirksen, who has now reverted to his old isolationism, is thumping as day after day he travels from town to town.

THE HARD-BOILED saying about people voting with their pocketbooks has in it a degree of truth. The pocketbooks of the Illinois farmers are being hit by the decline in farm prices of the past two years. The same thing is true in other States with critical election contests.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan has been talking about this for months, but leaders of his own party in Congress do not seem to realize the seriousness of the situation. In speech after speech Brannan has pointed out that farm prices have on the average dropped 23 percent in less than two years. The farmer is still paying within 5 percent of the price level of two years ago for what he has to buy, according to Brannan.

For individual crops the drop is much more precipitous. The Department of Agriculture estimates the decline in the price of feed grains and hay since the high point of January, 1948, at 47 percent. This means corn, which is the major crop of the farmers of Illinois and Iowa.

The decline for the same period in the price of eggs and poultry is put by the department at 37 percent; for meat animals, 31 percent; oil crops, including soybeans, 40; dairy products, 24; and food grains, which means wheat, 32. These are dramatic changes, and they are particularly dramatic when they are contrasted with the promises President Truman made in the 1948 campaign.

YOU CAN make a pretty good argument to the effect that those promises in the Middle West carried the day for Truman. Don't forget that the Democrats triumphed in normally Republican Iowa, contrary to the beliefs and expectations of almost everyone.

Of course, these changes are not nearly so drastic as those that occurred after World War I when there were no price supports. From May of 1920 to June of 1921 average farm prices dropped 53 percent. In the election in the fall of 1920 the Democrats were turned out of office and Warren Harding gave his amiable blessing to normalcy and isolation.

This is a precedent which may or may not have a bearing on what is in the offing for us today. Twenty-three percent is less than half of 53 percent. But, on the other hand, the farmer of today has become accustomed to stable prices sustained by Government subsidy.

It takes little imagination to see the consequences that would flow from a victory for the Republicans resulting from the votes of disaffected farmers. The isolationist and "get Acheson" faction would be certain to claim it as their own. That trend would be confirmed in the party.

You can imagine Senator Robert A. Taft returning from a triumph in Ohio in the full flush of confidence prepared to cement his hold on both policy and the 1952 nomination. Such a victory would not, of course, reverse American foreign policy automatically, since the man in the White House would still be a Democrat.

But it could produce two years of stalemate. And whether the farmers, whose votes brought it about, would gain is an open question. If 1920 is any precedent, the answer is no.

Soldier Goes On Trial as Would-Be Spy

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, April 14 (AP).—A 19-year-old United States Air Force corporal was quoted before a court-martial today as saying he offered Soviet Russia secret military information free because "I believe in communism."

The prisoner is Corpl. Gustav Adolph Mueller of St. Paul, Minn., a slim, sharp-faced youth who says he does not know his nationality—"I must be Swiss if anything."

Two United States Army agents testified Mueller gave them secret intelligence in the belief they were Soviet agents. He refused money and said he did it only for idealism and belief in the Communist cause, the witnesses said.

Mueller is the first American serviceman in occupied Germany ever brought to trial on charges of attempting to betray secrets to the Russians. Arrested last October, he pleaded innocent through his attorney, Elmo Gower of Cumberland, Md., who indicated he will raise a charge of entrapment.

Word "Treason" Not Used

No such word as treason or espionage was used in the official charge against Mueller. But trial officers said conviction could bring the death penalty because the United States still is technically at war with Germany.

Mueller is accused of attempting to deliver to a representative of a foreign power classified information relating to the United States national defense and of commencing correspondence with an agency of the Soviet Union without United States authorization.

Actually, no information ever reached the Russians from Mueller. A fellow soldier became suspicious and tipped off United States Intelligence agents after Mueller dispatched a telegram which the prosecution declared was addressed to the Soviet Embassy in Switzerland, seeking a contact.

Agents Faked Answer

American agents then faked an answer purporting to be from the Russians and posed as Soviet agents in two meetings with Mueller. At the first meeting, the agents said, Mueller told them it is easy to get secret American documents, "Americans are very careless."

The next night, they testified, Mueller handed over two secret documents from United States Intelligence files and described operations of the United States Intelligence School at Oberammergau, where he was a student in the Russian section.

Federal Borrowing

By Mark Sullivan

More Debt, Less Purchasing Power

THE United States Treasury this week took steps to borrow a billion dollars, to be done by selling what are called "91-day discount bills." The borrowing is, significantly, for a double purpose. Nine hundred million dollars out of the billion is to pay off that amount of 91-day bills coming due. The other hundred million is to provide the Treasury with additional cash.

Sullivan

It is the hundred million dollars of new borrowing that is important, for that is an addition to a Government debt that is already prodigious. And this mid-April new borrowing of a hundred million is only the comparatively small beginning of an enormous new borrowing in the near future. The Government is going deeper into debt at a rate of about 17 million dollars a day. The total deficit—that is, the total excess of expenditure over receipts—for the fiscal year ending next June 30, is expected to be above five billion dollars.

To meet this deficit the Treasury is expected to conduct, beginning May 15, a drive for the sale of Government bonds on a broad scale. The appeal, the solicitation to buy, is expected to be made to all classes of savers and institutions which are custodians of savings—savings banks, life insurance companies and the like, and that immense class of individuals to whom the Government sells the familiar small-denomination bonds.

IN THIS enormous number of borrowing transactions, there is a similar borrower, it is the Government. But the number of lenders is huge, the number of individuals who in the past have bought the familiar small-denomination bonds runs into tens of millions. If we could imagine all these lenders as one lender, we could also imagine him as putting the borrower on the carpet and asking him questions—the questions that any individual lender would in similar circumstances ask any individual borrower. Most of the questions could be summed up in one. The lender would say, "I have already loaned you a very large amount over a period of years, and now you ask me to loan still more. How come?"

In effect, that question has been asked, and earnest reasons given for asking it, by many qualified persons who feel alarm about continued Government borrowing, and the effects it must have on the Government and the people if it is kept up. One especially intelligent and earnest questioner has been Democratic Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, whose analyses of the Government's financial situation have been thorough and convincing. But the answer coming from President Truman, who is officially the symbol and spokesman of the borrower, was a trivial quip to the effect that there are too many Byrds in Congress.

Mr. Truman is about to make what is called a "whistle stop" journey through the country. It will coincide with the beginning of the campaign to elect a new Congress next November. If Mr. Truman's coming speeches are like the ones he made in his own presidential campaign two years ago, they will contain much class appeal to two groups, farmers and labor.

THERE IS another and larger group, indeed it embraces practically all the people. This is the aggregate of savers—depositors in savings banks, beneficiaries of life insurance, buyers of Government bonds, persons who contribute to old age pensions. These have a deep concern in continued Government borrowing, and they deserve more consideration from the President, in his coming speeches and generally, than they are likely to get.

The concern of the savers should be stated carefully. They need have no concern about the Government keeping the promises it makes in its bonds. Every dollar promised and the amount of interest promised will be paid. But strict adherence to the word of the promise is not enough. It is an equal concern that each dollar paid by a saver for a bond should have approximately the same purchasing power in goods when the Government pays it back.

Some Administration policies tend to reduce the purchasing power of the dollar. Mere increase of Government borrowing and Government debt over a prolonged period has that effect. A collateral policy tending to reduce the purchasing power of the dollar is the paying out of large amounts of money for the purpose of supporting at an artificially high figure the prices of farm crops, and hence of food. There is significance in the current coincidence of two figures. The average daily increase of the Government debt is about 17 million dollars. And the average daily amount which the Government has recently been paying out to take the farm crops off the market and keep the prices of them up, is about 15 million dollars.

Cancer Kills First Offspring Quicker, Mice Histories Show

A mother's first-born dies quicker from cancer than its succeeding brothers and sisters, a Yale scientist has reported.

At least cancers work that way with mice, reports Dr. Leonell C. Strong, geneticist at Yale University's School of Medicine, in the current edition of "Science" magazine.

The finding shows that an increasing or decreasing "something" in the mother's body is being handed down to her offspring, he concluded.

In his work on survival periods, the geneticist used eight litters of mice born of the same mother. Each mouse was injected with methylcholanthrene, a powerful tumor-producing chemical. As soon as the tumor developed, the number of days the mouse continued to live were counted.

The first litter, Dr. Strong reported, survived an average of 52.4 days, with the survival period gradually increasing with succeeding litters until the average survival time for mice of the eighth litter was 130 days.

Dr. Strong admitted the possibility that tumor reactions in mice may be connected with the father, but pointed out that evidence for such a concept has so far not been indicated.

Next stp in the research, he said, is to identify the mechanism which increases resistance to tumors in mice. Knowing what substance does this may lead to development of an extractable chemical to check the growth of tumors in other animals, he said.

New Episcopal Foundation to Seek Millions For Ten-Year Program in U. S. and Abroad

New York, April 14 (AP).—Establishment of an Episcopal Church foundation to seek millions of dollars for special church projects over the next decade was announced today.

Pierpont V. Davis, foundation president, said the foundation directors—leaders in business, professional and religious circles—would strive to raise support for projects not covered by the church's annual budget.

Davis said the foundation was a "unique thing in the religious world." He added:

"A strong, alert church must look ahead, as every sound business and educational institution tries to do. Our aim in the new foundation is to provide a channel through which supplementary funds may flow from those who have the means and a strong social and spiritual consciousness."

The foundation, he said, would seek gifts and bequests for its work. Ordinarily, funds for the church's annual budget are derived from local churches.

The Right Rev. Henry K. Sherrill, presiding bishop of the church, told a news conference that the special needs, apart from the annual budget, would aggregate 8½ million dollars for domestic and foreign projects in the next 10 years.

Bishop Sherrill listed among the church's 10-year needs:

Five million dollars in the field of theological education, including one million dollars for religious work in United States colleges; $985,000 to improve facilities at five Negro educational institutions identified with the church; $750,000 to expand religious work in towns and rural areas; $7,204,500 for work overseas, including $1,978,000 to be used in the Philippines.

The proposed town and rural expenditure would include $140,000 for buildings and equipment at the Roanridge Training Center, Parkville, Mo.

In the Philippines' budget is one million dollars to replace buildings at St. Luke's Hospital and Nursing School in Manila.

At Riverdale

Presbyterian Cornerstone Rites Sunday

Cornerstone laying ceremonies for the new Riverdale Presbyterian Church will be at noon Sunday at 6513 Queens Chapel rd., University Park, Md.

The service will begin at 11 a. m. at the present church, 4609 Rittenhouse st., with the Rev. Dr. John Bailey Kelly, pastor-emeritus of Georgetown Presbyterian Church, preaching the sermon.

Fifty-three years ago Dr. Kelly's father, the late Rev. Dr. Joseph Kelly, preached at corperstone laying ceremonies for the present building.

After the service, the congregation will go to the site of the new building for the ceremony at which the Rev. W. Keith Custis, pastor of the church, will officiate.

The new $190,000 building will seat 500 persons in the sanctuary and will have an office, study, and church school rooms. When it is completed in the fall, the present building will be used as an educational unit.

Among the items to be placed in the cornerstone are a Bible, histories of the church and Sunday school, membership lists and a picture of the old building.

Religious Art Exhibit Set at Episcopal Church

An exhibit of religious fine arts will open at Ascension and St. Agnes Episcopal Church, 12th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw., at 4 p. m. Sunday and continue for two weeks.

Included in the display, which is sponsored by the American Ecclesiological Study, will be paintings, sculpture, altar fittings, embroidery and books.

Guild Bake Sale Today

The Mary and Martha Guild of St. Michael's Episcopal Church, Arlington, will sponsor a bake sale at Ayer's store, 5853 N. Washington blvd., Arlington, beginning at 9:30 a. m. today.

Presbyterians To Burn Effigy Of Mortgage

Sixth Presbyterian Church, 16th and Kennedy sts. nw., will burn its mortgage in effigy at vespers at 5 p. m. Sunday.

The service will be similar to the dedication held in the building 20 years ago, using the same hymns, anthems and Scripture readings.

The Rev. Dr. Bernard Braskamp, who was moderator of the Presbytery of Washington City at the time the building was dedicated, will lead the responsive reading. He is now pastor of Gunton-Temple Presbyterian Church and chaplain of the United States House of Representatives.

Seven of the ten trustees who signed the mortgage in June, 1929, are still living and are expected to be present or represented at the ceremony.

Mrs. Harry A. Disney, a granddaughter of Mrs. Ammanda Thompson, at whose home the church was organized in 1853, Mrs. H. W. Scammell, oldest member of the church in seniority, and David H. Lum, treasurer of the building fund, will participate in the mortgage-burning ceremony.

Afterward there will be an informal reception at the church.

The mortgage, which stood at $55,000 at the time the building was dedicated in 1930, was paid off at noon on Good Friday, Lum announced at the Easter Sunday service.

Final payment followed an intensive drive for the last $9600 launched early in January.

At 11 a. m. the Rev. Dr. Earl F. Fowler, pastor since 1946, will dedicate brass pulpit and lectern lights given the church by Joseph C. Fish and Miss F. Hazel Fish. He will speak on "The Roots of Freedom," a sermon based on the Sesquicentennial theme "Freedom Under God."

Armenian Group To Give Operetta

An operetta "Arshin Mal Alan" will be given by the Armenian Church Purchasing Fund Committee at 8 p. m. today at St. Paul's parish hall, Webster st. and Rock Creek Church rd. nw.

At 1 p. m. Sunday there will be an Armenian Easter service at the Church of the Ascension and St. Agnes, 12th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw.

Young People to Cast $1 Ballots For Nippon University Sunday

Washington young people this week will "vote for peace and good will."

Their ballots will be dollar bills subscribed toward the 10-million-dollar fund drive to establish the International Christian University in Japan.

The local drive is part of a week-long Nation-wide effort by young people to raise funds for the university, which will be devoted to training Japanese educators.

Ballot boxes will be placed in churches of 12 sponsoring denominations in Greater Washington.

Each of the voters will sign a roster which later will be incorporated into a scroll containing the names of all contributors. This scroll will be sent to Japan to be exhibited as evidence of the youthful Americans' desire for friendship with the Japanese students.

John Preston, 1301 15th st. nw., president of the Washington Federation of Christian Youth, is chairman of the youth campaign for the District. Leader of the campaign in the South Atlantic States is Robert C. Gnegy, 4801 Colorado ave. nw.

Former Ambassador to Japan Jossph C. Grew is head of the national drive for funds for the university.

Early in May, an intensive campaign for funds will be carried on among adult members of churches in Greater Washington. Twelve clergymen representing different denominations are in charge of the drive.

Discussions Set On Children's Church Programs

Church programs for children will be discussed at four Tuesday night meetings, beginning this week at 7:30 p. m. at Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison sts. nw.

The programs are part of the annual spring leadership education institute sponsored by the committee on children's work of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Each week's program will include a general assembly period and class sections for church school teachers, parents and vacation church school workers.

In addition, there will be demonstration classes on April 29 at several churches and an observation school on May 6 at Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Church.

Featured speaker on April 25 will be Miss Edith Lovell Thomas, of New York, editor of "Singing Worship."

New Thought Groups To Hear Dr. Bitzer

Dr. Robert H. Bitzer, president of the International New Thought Alliance, will meet with New Thought groups at 1 p. m. today at the Lee House, 15th and L sts. nw.

He will consider plans for the I. N. T. A. convention to be held here in July. At 4 p. m. Sunday Dr. Bitzer will speak in the Cabinet room of the Willard Hotel.

Three Gospel Lectures Listed At Howard U.

Three lectures on "the Gospel for a Time of Fears" will be given at Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel, Howard University, on Tuesday.

Dr. Niebuhr

The lecturer is Dr. H. Richard Neibuhr, professor of Christian ethics at the Yale Divinity School and a brother of Reinhold Neibuhr of Union Theological Seminary.

Sponsors of the annual lecture series, sixth to be held, are the School of Religion of Howard University and the Washington Federation of Churches.

Students of Howard University, the Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria; Westminster Theological Seminary, Westminster, Md., and clergy and laymen of Washington will attend the lectures.

Dr. Niebuhr will speak on "Our Eschatological Time" at 10 a. m., "The Eternal Now," at 11:15 a. m., and "The Gospel for the Last Time," at 1:30 p. m.

Pageant to Depict Joseph Smith's Life

A pageant based on the life of Joseph Smith, founder and first president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, will be given at 8 p. m. today at the Washington L. D. S. Chapel, 16th st. and Columbia rd. nw.

The pageant will be given by Mormon missionaries working in Greater Washington in place of the regular weekly concert.

Religious Film Scheduled

"Into the Good Ground," a religious film, will be shown at the final family night dinner at 6:30 p. m. Thursday at the social hall of National City Christian Church, 1306 Vermont ave. nw.

3 Catholic U. Buildings To Be Blessed

Newly constructed buildings of the National Catholic School of Social Service at Catholic University will be blessed Thursday.

Shahan Hall, dedicated in memory of the late Bishop Thomas J. Shahan, former rector of the university, will be blessed at 10 a. m. by Edward Cardinal Mooney, Archbishop of Detroit.

The prelate and his assistants will then go to Agnes Regan Hall, 100-room dormitory named for the first director of the school, for blessing rites.

Afterward, Cardinal Mooney will bless the chapel of St. Vincent de Paul, named for the patron saint of the poor. At 11 a. m. the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle will be celebrant of a pontifical mass in the chapel.

The chapel will serve students of the School of Social Service and the School of Nursing Education and is located between dormitories of the two schools.

It will be the repository for a relic of St. Vincent de Paul which has been received from the Vincentian Fathers in Paris.

Briton to Lead Evangelistic Mission Here

The Rev. Stanley A. Baker, president of the British Christian Endeavor Union, will conduct a youth evangelistic mission here Sunday through Friday.

Sponsor of the mission, which is similar to evangelistic meetings to be held in six major cities, is the District of Columbia Christian Endeavor Union.

Mr. Baker recently resigned his pastorate of a Birmingham, England, Baptist church to devote full time to youth evangelism work.

He will speak at 8 p. m. at the following churches: Sunday, National City Christian, Thomas Circle; Monday, Memorial Evangelical United Brethren, North Capitol and R sts.; Tuesday, Eastern Presbyterian, 6th st. and Maryland ave. ne.; Wednesday, John Wesley A. M. E. Zion, 14th and Corcoran sts. nw.; Thursday, Rhode Island Avenue Methodist, 1st st. and Rhode Island ave. nw., and Friday, Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian, 712 Randolph st. nw.

100 Editors Ask Truman to End Vatican Mission

Syracuse, N. Y., April 14 (AP).—About 100 editors of Protestant church newspapers in the United States and Canada today asked President Truman to abolish the position of presidential ambassador to the Vatican.

The editors, members of the Associated Church Press, unanimously adopted a resolution which also commended the President for accepting the resignation of Myron C. Taylor from the post.

The resolution, to be forwarded to Mr. Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson, said that "in our reasoned judgment as editors of the Protestant Church Press an embassy at the Vatican violates the historic American principle of the separation of church and state."

Dr. Tabor's Topic

"The After Easter Faith" will be the Rev. Dr. L. Ralph Tabor's sermon subject at 9 and 11 a. m. Sunday at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas cir. nw.

Many Greater Washington Churches will salute Washington's Sesquicentennial celebration at services Sunday morning.

Some ministers and chaplains will preach on the religious theme of the observance "Freedom Under God" which has been accepted by the three major faiths.

Others will offer special prayers or will call attention to the celebration in church publications.

During the anniversary year, many of the District's churches will prepare histories of their congregations and the part played by the church in the District's growth. Several churches in the area have served residents since before the city became the National capital.

Protestant participation in the religious celebration of the anniversary is being planned by a 10-member committee of the Washington Federation of Churches. The committee has placed source material for the Sesquicentennial Sunday observance in the hands of the city's clergymen.

At St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Connecticut ave. and Everett st. nw., the Rev. Henry W. Snyder will preach on "Freedom Under God" at 11 a. m. in recognition of the day.

The Rev. Carl Heath Kopf, pastor of First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw., will give a sermon entitled "What, No Cornerstone?" on the anniversary theme.

Both morning and evening services at Calvary Methodist Church, 1459 Columbia rd. nw., will be devoted to the theme.

At 11 a. m. the Rev. Dr. Orris Gravenor Robinson will speak on "This Nation Under God."

Speaker at the 8 p. m. service will be Francis Pickens Miller of Charlottesville, Va., who will talk on "The Importance of Religion in American Life." Miller, an active Presbyterian layman, last year was an unsuccessful candidate for Governor of Virginia.

Doctor's Direction Necessary to Use X-Ray Shoe-Fitter

District Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger warned all shoe dealers yesterday that x-ray shoe-fitting machines may be operated only under the direction of a physician.

His letter informed the industry of this interpretation put out last month by the Commission on Medical Licensure on the Healing Arts Practice Act. A health official said it is hoped this ruling will ban the machines since shoe stores usually don't have physicians on their staffs.

The commission found the machines harmful to operators and customers and of no special help in fitting shoes.

MRS. HELEN LONGSTREET, 89-year-old widow of Confederate Gen. James Longstreet, says she's a candidate for the governorship of Georgia and all she needs to run as an independent is for some patriotic citizen to put up the campaign funds. The spry Mrs. Longstreet declared: "It is conceded that Governor Talmadge cannot be defeated by anyone in sight. I feel the obligation now falls on Georgia's women to furnish the type of governor the State deserves"

Cancer Drive To Inaugurate Home Canvass

House-to-house canvassing is being organized here for the local American Cancer Society fund campaign this year for the first time, drive workers were told yesterday at a box luncheon meeting held at the Willard Hotel.

Under the block captain plan, individuals will solicit in the one block where they live, it was explained by Charles C. Koones, general chairman, who presided.

Leigh Ore, American Cancer Society representative to the Federal Government, said every Government department has been organized for the campaign.

Richard C. Wilson, information director, explained that the funds will be used in a three-way campaign of research, education and service.

Boys 'Repeal' Maryland's Ober Statute

Annapolis, Md., April 14 (AP).—The YMCA boy legislature today passed and sent to the boy "Governor," John Diuguid of Cumberland, a bill repealing the Ober anti-subversive law.

The repealer had some difficulty in the House of Delegates. After passing comfortably, a motion to reconsider was made and approved. The second vote on the bill passed by only two votes.

It went through the boy Senate with ease. Richard Morgan of Frederick and Robert L. Muhlbach of Baltimore led the effective floor fight for repeal.

When the two chambers adjourned this afternoon to tour the Naval Academy, "Governor" Duiguid had acted on two other measures.

He signed a bill to restrict strip mining operations in Garrett and Allegany Countes, introduced by John Carroll of Cumberland.

He vetoed a bill by Edward Aus of Sparrows Point calling for conservation plan for the Monocacy River watershed as an experiment for "future improvement of the rivers of Maryland."

The boys, brought here each year by the Y to play at lawmaking and thus learn something about State government, will hold their final session tomorrow.

Youthful Legislators Reveal Taciturnity

Richmond, Va., April 14 (AP).—They stumbled over procedure and didn't worry too much over where the money was coming from, but outside of that the model General Assembly, sponsored by the YMCA, put on a pretty good show today at the State Capitol.

Furthermore, the junior Senators and delegates weren't the least bit windy. In fact, they had to be prompted to speak in support of their various bills. For the most part, though, they confined their remarks, in most instances very brief, to the measures in question without wandering far afield.

High point of today's initial session was the swearing in of William Childress of Roanoke, as "Youth Governor" of Virginia.

Dr. Arnett Heads VA Area Service

Dr. T. M. Arnett, chief of the professional technical section of the Veterans Administration's Professional Service, has been appointed medical director of the Washington area field supervising service, the VA announced yesterday.

Dr. Arnett, who is 43 and lives at 404 James ct., Falls Church, Va., suceeeds Dr. Delmar Goode. The Washington area for which he will be medical director includes nine States and Puerto Rico as well as the District.

A surgeon, Dr. Arnett served in the Army Medical Corps from 1931 when he graduated from the University of Maryland Medical School, until 1947, when he joined the VA. He commanded a general hospital overseas during World War II. He is a native of West Virginia.

commanded a general hospital overseas during World War II. He is a native of West Virginia.

Succeeding Dr. Arnett will be Dr. J. Herbert Smith of 3510 S. Utah st., Arlington, who has been in the physical medicine rehabilition division in the VA central office. A graduate of the Queens University Medical School, Kingston, Ontario, he served in the Army four years after five years of private practice.

Dr. Goode, who held the medical director post to which Dr. Arnett has been appointed, will become manager of the VA hospital at Little Rock, Ark., now nearing completion.

Nurse's Release Protested by Lady Officials

The board of lady managers of Alexandria Hospital has entered a protest against the replacement of Mrs. Irene M. Roszel, director of nurses.

In a letter delivered to Hospital Administrator Van C. Adams yesterday, the board expressed its belief that "Mrs. Roszel's loyalty and long and unselfish service to the hospital, as well as her standing in professional service, certainly entitle her to more courteous consideration."

The letter was drafted at a closed meeting of the board Thursday, but officials of the group declined to make its contents public until after it had been received by Adams. Copies also were sent to M. H. Burchell, president of the hospital's board of directors; Dr Thistle McKee, president of the hospital medical staff, and to Mrs. Roszel.

During the meeting the board discussed charges which reportedly form the basis for Adam's disclosure that Mrs. Roszel would be replaced June 1. However, a spokesman for the board declined to discuss the charges, which have not been divulged by either Adams or Mrs. Roszel.

Disclosure of Mrs. Roszel's ouster, without an explanation of the reason, also brought from the lady managers a "strong protest . . . for the manner in which this action was taken."

4 Junior, 2 Senior Highs Seen Needed in Arlington

Arlington County will need four more junior high schools by 1955 and two new senior highs by 1958, a special school construction committee, appointed by the Arlington County Council of P-TA's, has reported.

One of the senior highs and one new junior high will be necessary by September, 1952, the committee warned, to accommodate Arlington's rapidly swelling school population.

In addition, the county "urgently" needs an extra 30 elementary classrooms per year, for the next three years, the committee concluded.

The extra elementary construction will be necessary in spite of the six-million-dollar school building program undertaken with bond money voted in 1947 and 1948, the committee said. First-grade enrollment in county schools has not yet reached its peak, according to the committee.

It quotes a special 1948 school census to prove that three times as many children will have entered school in the period from 1948 to 1953, as will have graduated or dropped out in that time.

"A new senior high, preferably south of Lee blvd., is clearly a must" by September, 1952, the committee states, noting that "at Washington-Lee (Arlington's only white senior high) 2249 students are now jammed into facilities which were designed for fewer than 1700 students."

"Immediate purchase of a (senior high) site and the development of plans is strongly recommended,' the committee concludes.

Despite the scheduled completion of the 1000-pupil Stratford Junior High by next fall, a new junior high will be required in the following year to take care of an expected 800-pupil increase in junior high enrollment from 1951 to 1952, the committee continued.

Moreover, it says, "the site of Dolly Madison Junior High School is so inadequate, with no present possibility of expansion, that it would be desirable to discontinue the use of Dolly Madison as a junior high."

The total recommended building program in the committee's report would cost roughly $13,500,000, according to figures of School Superintendent Early. He said cost of a senior high would be about two million dollars, cost of a junior high about $1,250,000, while elementary classrooms cost approximately $3,000 apiece.

Kiner and Nats Test New Stadium Fences Today

Especially in the Movies

Once a Crook, Always a Crook

By Red Smith

NEW YORK, APRIL 14 (NYHT).—There is a guy in town who saw Frankie Darro pull Broadway Bill, the horse, in the movie of that name about 15 years ago, and this guy has seethed ever since with implacable hatred of the little screen jockey.

The other evening Broadway Bill came back to Broadway, this time in a film called "Riding High," and there was Frankie Darro playing his old role. There in the opening night audience was the guy who has hated him all these years.

Red Smith

Sure enough, when the big race started, Darro reached down and took a choking hold on the horse, same as he did 15 years ago. Once a crook, always a crook. The guy that hates him gripped the arms of his seat; in the darkness of the Paramount Theater, his knuckles gleamed like luminous watch dials.

A steward of Hollywood Park was in the audience. "Why," he gasped, "he's choking 'em!" showed astonishing perception, for a steward. A man fresh from Jamaica sat a row or two farther front.

"Leave that horse loose!" he kept bellowing in the silence of the theater. "Leave that horse run!"

The evidence seemed to suggest that it was an effective scene. Matter of fact, it is. You got to feel sorry for Broadway Bill, not only because of the cruel way the jock saws on his mouth, pulling him, but because he's got to carry Frankie Darro, whose size has not dwindled between pictures.

THE SCREEN NAME of the dishonest jockey is Ted Williams, not to be confused with the honest ball player of the same name. Trouble is, at first glance you could confuse them. Although the big race is called the Imperial Derby because it is run at Imperial Park (played by Tanforan), you realize when they get the riders up that this is really the fall highweight handicap.

Chances are Tanforan qualified for the role of Imperial Park because it has a fairly long home stretch, 150 feet more than three-sixteenths of a mile. There were no clockers in the Paramount on opening night so Broadway Bill's fractional times were not announced. It was estimated he covered the final three-sixteenths in 2:01 2/5.

Citation has done better, but this, of course, was dramatic license taken in the interests of suspense and it is quibbling to mention such minor matters. Fact is, "Riding High" is a swell picture. It was a swell picture as "Broadway Bill," featuring Warner Baxter, and it is just as good now, featuring Bing Crosby. Better, because Bing sings better than Warner.

The notion here is that Crosby's genuine interest in horses shows through and warms his performance, giving it sincerity and authority. This is so, for example, when he tells how Broadway Bill was the foal of a blind mare and how the colt used to devil his mother by hiding from her in the paddock, until they hung a bell around his neck so she could find him. In the movies this could sound like corn, but such a thing has happened and Crosby managed to tell it for what it was, a true story straight out of the fields of Lexington, Ky.

THERE IS pleasant realism, also, in the parade of owners and trainers through the racing secretary's office, all of them complaining about the condition of the track or the weight assigned to their horses. Reminds one that Francis Patrick Dunne, steward at the New York tracks, originally was considered for the role of racing secretary in "Riding High" but was rejected for two reasons: (a) he had actually been a racing secretary and (b) he was too old.

Swayed especially by the latter consideration, the producers selected Jimmy Gleason who, Mr. Dunne insists, could have dandled little Francis on his knee if they'd been within dandling distance during the Grover Cleveland Administration.

Having seen the picture, one is inclined to agree that Mr. Dunne would not have suited the role. He could never have kept a straight face while delivering the little speech about the American way of life which the racing secretary makes when they're burying Broadway Bill in the infield.

Not that Mr. Dunne is either opposed to the American way or ignorant of matters pertaining to funerals. It was he, remember, whose long association with zillionaire horse owners inspired him to invent a coffin with a built-in lock box, so that you could take it with you.

PROBABLY THE real reason why he didn't get the part was that he has never been properly respectful of movie royalty. When he was racing secretary at Hollywood Park he received a phone call from a film tycoon who shall be called Mr. Colossi, complaining about the weight assigned to a Colossi steed. This was the first good horse Mr. Colossi had owned—"and there is nothing," Mr. Dunne has said, "brings out the louse in a man so surely as his first good horse."

Thinking the call came from a race track prankster, Mr. Dunne gave a curt reply and hung up, which miffed Mr. Colossi considerably. Then a peacemaker became aware of the misunderstanding, explained it all to Mr. Colossi and sought to square it with Mr. Dunne. As long as he'd believed the call a joke, Mr. Dunne had been mildly amused but when he learned it had really been Mr. Colossi who called he was burned up.

"What shall I tell Mr. Colossi?" the peacemaker asked.

"You tell that suchandsuch and soandso," said Mr. Dunne, using regrettable language, "that if he'll tell me how he makes $600,000 a year out of those stinking pictures of his, I'll tell him how to handicap horses."

It is possible to understand why Mr. Dunne was not hired as a movie star.

Jenkins Quits After He Is Fouled, Jack Gets TKO

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Beau Jack, former world's lightweight champion, was awarded a technical knockout over Lew Jenkins, one-time 135-pound king himself, near the end of the fifth round of a brawl last night at Uline Arena.

Referee Ray Bowen raised Jack's hand in victory as the battered Jenkins sat in his corner while his handlers shouted that he was unable to continue because Jack had felled him with a low blow which practically everyone of the 937 spectators had seen.

Given a five-minute rest, Jenkins got up off his stool and appeared ready to absorb more of the punishment Jack had dealt him.

At this point, however, his handlers protested that he was unable to continue, after Dr. Leon Gordon of the District boxing commission, had ruled he was able to resume fighting.

Referee Has No Choice

Referee Bowen had no alternative other than to award the crude fight between the two hasbeens to Jack, who was penalized three times for punching low.

"In my opinon, Jenkins was perfectly able to continue and was willing to," Dr. Gordon stated.

The foul blow was struck by Jack 28 seconds before the end of the fifth round and Jenkins crumpled to his corner as if he had been hit on the head with a sledge hammer. While Jenkins' seconds worked over him, Jack stood in his corner, hanging his head either in shame or in disgust.

To the surprise of no one, Jenkins proved that he's all washed up and would be much wiser to stick to singing hillbilly songs in a Philadelphia tavern, as he's currently doing, rather than risk his life in a ring.

The fight was a scheduled 10-rounder promoted by the Liberty Athletic Club, primarily for the benefit of Madison Square Garden television commitments.

The 937 local non-video set owners who attended chipped in to a net gate of $1424, hardly enough for a night's carousing for either Jack or Jenkins when their names meant something.

In preliminaries, Sam Kelsey of Washington, 139, defeated Gurney Van Hook, Philadelphia, in five; Red Gaddis, 128, decisioned Joe Wilkinson, 122, in four, both being from Washington; Ralph Brown, 145, beat Baltimore's Andy Nathan,, 150, in four, while Lucky Boy, 143, Washington, stopped Don Brown 138½, Washington, in two.

Ethel Barrymore Picks Yanks, Bums To Win Pennants

Hollywood, April 14 (U.P.)—Ethel Barrymore, the first lady of the theater, said today she has a system for picking the major league pennant winners that puts Brooklyn and the New York Yankees on top this year.

Her predictions are based on pitching and "spirit".

"It should be Brooklyn in the National League," she said.

"If Joe DiMaggio plays regularly I think it will be the Yankees again, provided the pitchers help him. DiMaggio gives the Yankees a wonderful spirit."

"I'm in love," she confided recently, "with Ted Williams."

Yanks Sell Shea To Kansas City

New York, April 14 (AP).—Frank Shea, rookie pitching sensation of the New York Yankees in 1947, has been sold outright to the Kansas City Blues of the American Association, a Yankee farm property, it was announced today by General Manager George Weiss.

Also going to the Kansas City club are First Baseman Fenton Mole and Pitcher Wally Hood, both sent to the Blues on option, and bonus pitcher Paul Hinrichs, who has been sold outright.

IN A BAD WAY—Lew Jenkins, one-time lightweight champion, looks much the worse for wear as he sits in his corner after losing on a technical knockout to Beau Jack at Uline Arena in the fifth round last night. Happy Keltner Joins Bosox After Release by Indians

MILWAUKEE, APRIL 14 (AP).—You'd never have guessed his "legs were gone" if you'd seen Ken Keltner today as he booked plane reservations for Boston to join the Red Sox.

"I've wanted to play for them for several years," grinned the big infielder, who made a deal for himself with Boston General Manager Joe Cronin after being handed his unconditional release by Cleveland two days ago.

Keltner

"You tell them I'll be there as soon as I can," he added. "The best I can do is Sunday night, though."

It was Cleveland Manager Lou Boudreau who said Keltner's legs were gone as he announced the release at Topeka, Kans., Wednesday.

Keltner, who made his Boston deal by telephone from his home here, indicated he held no hard feelings for Boudreau, with whom he'd played for 11 years. He didn't have much to say, though, for Indian General Manager Hank Greenberg.

"If Greenberg wants to run the club, let him," Keltner grunted.

He wouldn't elaborate, but Boudreau admitted himself, when he let Keltner go, that he'd been playing him regularly through most of the spring training season in an attempt to persaude Greenberg to keep him.

Hoyas Edge Generals, 2-1

Lexington, Va., April 14 (AP).—Georgetown U. dealt Washington and Lee its first baseball defeat at the hands of a college team today, defeating the Generals, 2 to 1, in an abbreviated seven-inning contest.

Pitcher Frank Mattingly, who kept the Generals' eight hits well scattered, singled Dick Falvey across with the winning run in the seventh.

Aberdeen Passes G. W., Takes Lead in U. S. Gallery Rifle

Aberdeen Proving Ground fired a 1419 to take the lead in the team matches of the fourth annual United States Aggies Gallery Rifle championships at College Park last night.

Paced by Francis Conway, 290, the soldier five topped the 1415 scored by George Washington University last night in the week-long tourney.

The University of Maryland's varsity squad had posted a 1414 Monday night and led until the Colonials fired. Defending champ in this division, Maryland fired a 1424 in last year's tournament. Fort Belvoir, considered a top contender, shoots today.

Allan Luke, of the Staunton Military Academy, fired a 1431 to assume the lead in the close battle for the junior class grand aggregate score.

Terps Expect Millikan to Sign Today

Bud Millikan, 29-year-old former Oklahoma A & M all-America, is expected to sign a contract today to become Maryland University's varsity basketball coach.

Millikan, currently coaching high school basketball at Newton, Iowa, arrived at College Park yesterday and met with Athletic Director Jim Tatum and members of the Maryland Athletic Board.

No. 1 on a list of 73 candidates for the job, Millikan will contact Iowa authorities today and request his release in order to take over at Maryland immediately and begin spring basketball practice. Millikan is basketball coach at Newton, Iowa, High School.

Haynes Faces Bucs; Noren, Robinson Will Play

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Today for the first time, Griffith Stadium's newly shortened left and center field distances will be thrown open to public view, and also viewing 'em with interest will be such as Ralph Kiner, the Pirates' National League home run king.

Bucky Harris, one of the stadium's older landmarks himself, who is back for a third term at managing the Nats, will be unveiling his 1950 hopefuls at 2:30 o'clock in an exhibition game with the Pirates.

The remodeled fences which have shortened the home run distances by 19 feet, hold a new interest for such of Harris' right-hand hitters as Sam Mele, Eddie Yost, Clyde Vollmer, Al Evans and Mickey Grasso.

Instead of the prohibitive 405-foot distance down the left field line, Kiner and his fellow right handers of the Pirates and Nats will be shooting at a 6-foot barrier only 386 feet down the left field line. In left center, it will be a mere 372-foot jolt.

Fences May Come Down

Harris hopes to discover in these early games what value the shorter distances may mean to his team. Their status is only temporary at this stage, despite the 854 box seats that have been installed, and Harris may view them with alarm if visiting clubs benefit more than the Nats. In that case, the original dimensions will be returned.

Games today and tomorrow with the Pirates will give Washington fans their first glimpse of Irv Noren, the $70,000 rookie outfielder from the Coast League, whose hitting has drummed up some hope that the club will divorce itself from last place.

Noren will be back in the line-up today after three days on the bench with a swollen right fist that was crashed by a pitch in Charlotte, N. C. He isn't gripping a bat with his usual vigor as yet, but he's eager to play and maintain his hitting edge.

Also in the Nats' lineup today, for the first time in a week, will be their other notable convalescent, Eddie Robinson, who was a victim of virus X in Florida. Robinson, who banged Grapefruit League pitching at a .438 rate, is chafing to return to action, and will play at least a few innings.

Opening Day Preview

The team Harris will put on the field otherwise will be a preview of the lineup that will meet the Athletics in the opening game on Tuesday. Robinson will be at first base, Al Kozar at second, Eddie Yost at third, Sam Dente at shortstop, with Noren, Sam Male and Gil Coan in the outfield.

Today's game holds a special interest for Harris in that Joe Haynes will start against the Pirates. Haynes was impressive in his last two outings.

Ray Scarborough will follow Haynes to the mound for a three-inning turn and it will be his final unlimbering before the Tuesday's opener.

Harris and the Nats were happy en masse when last night's game at Baltimore was called off on account of cold weather . . . they had crawled out of their Pullman berths at 1:30 a. m. and bumped smack into the local cold spell . . . visiting pitchers have been remanded to their old bullpen beyond the left field foul line, with plans for a visiting bullpen in left center field junked . . . Umpire Bill McGowan, visiting Griffith Stadium three weeks ago, called attention to the fact that the visiting bullpen was in line with the batters' vision and counseled against it . . . with the addition of the 854 box seats in left and centerfield, Griffith Stadium will house its largest opening-game crowd in history, 33,000 when the President throws out the first ceremonial pitch on Tuesday.

Heafner Tops Atlanta Open With 67-137

By Sterling Slappey

Atlanta, April 14 (AP).—Clayton Heafner, the golfing giant who consistently wins big prizes but seldom tournaments, today was half way toward winning the $10,000 North Fulton Open.

Heafner whipped par by four strokes in the second round and shot a 67 to win the lead with 137 strokes on the long, par 71 layout.

Just behind Heafner, who plays out of Charlotte, N. C., came Lloyd Mangrum, former National Open champion from Chicago, and Sam Snead, the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., PGA champion, with 138 strokes each.

Jim Ferrier, the Australian who last week lost the Masters on the final nine holes, and Amateur Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, were tied for fourth with 139s.

Snead Has 67 Also

Snead matched 67 with Heafner while Mangrum took a 69 on round two. Strong mid-April winds died away a bit during the day and temperatures rose to make low scores easier. Generally scores ranged about two strokes under the first round.

Ferrier, now from San Francisco, had a 68 and Stranahan a 69. Johnny Palmer, coleader with Mangrum after the first 18 holes with a 69, rose to par 71 today for a 140 total. Masters Champion Jimmy Demaret also had a 140.

The hero of the crowd, including the leaders, was an Atlanta boy, Bob McCoy, who shot a 69 even though he suffers from leukemia. Until recently, he played weekend golf on a mtor scooter to conserve his strength. His 142 total left him in a three-way tie for ninth place.

10,288 Watch Lakers Win; Mikan Gets 28

St. Paul, Minn., April 14 (AP).—The Minneapolis Lakers tonight whipped Syracuse, 91-77, to take the lead in the National Basketball Association best-of-seven final series, 2 games to 1. The teams meet here in the fourth contest Sunday night.

A crowd of 10,288, the greatest ever to see a professional contest in Minnesota, saw the game, played here because the Lakers' Minneapolis floor was unavailable.

George Mikan and Vern Mikkelsen tallied 55 points between them as the Lakers broke away from the nets in a third-period flourish. They extended the margin at one point to 22 points at 87-65.

Mikan scored 28 points and Mikkelsen, 27.

Navy Lacrosse Team Seeks 18th in Row Over Penn State

Annapolis, Md., April 14 (AP).—Navy's lacrosse team will be seeking to increase its win streak to 18 games tomorrow against Penn State on Farragut Field.

Stroked by a youngster and manned by green hands in all but one berth, the Navy crew takes to the Harlem River tomorrow for its season's opener with Columbia.

As varsity, junior varsity and plebe shell-loads embarked from the Academy, 6-foot-2, 202-pound Pearson of Arlington, Va., still rated a slight edge for the key No. 8 seat.

The last time the midshipmen lost a college lacrosse contest was in 1948 to Johns Hopkins, 9-8.

The academy baseball team will open its Eastern Intercollegiate League campaign in meeting Columbia at Lawrence Field.

Opening its season, the Middie track team meets Maryland in Thompson Stadium.

Havre de Grace, Md., April 14. On a day when it was cold enough to freeze the leaves off a potted plant, the feature race was named "The Arbutus." After watching the favorite perfome miserably, the majority of the 5000 present were renaming the sprint "The Trifling Arbutus."

The affair, exclusively for fillies, was taken by the Thorncliff Farm's Busy Pat, kept busy all the way by Jockey Bobbie Strange. The fleet miss came into the finish line two and a half lengths ahead of Brookfield Farm's Iltis, which lasted by a nose margin over Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Coming Event.

Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' Fais Do Do, a busy campaigner last year in the best juvenile filly circles, was the public choice, coupled in the betting with Grace O'Malley, as Trainer Oscar White's entry. Fais Do Do finished in fifth position. Busy Pat, a winner and a second in her only starts this year, was lukewarm in the betting and paid $8.20.

Jeffords colors were more prominent in the fourth event, the day's secondary feature and named, of all things, "The Spring Flowers" which would have been appropriate if the words "in deep freeze" were added.

Red Rover, a $5.80 favorite, came from behind to defeat Grant Thorn's Scheming World in a test that drew a dozen 3-year-olds.

The daily double on the 1 and 11 combination paid $38.40. G. R. Watkins' Zest proved best in the first race. Under Apprentice Eddie Sanders' handling the 4-year-old filly brought a price of $6.40. Bobanet Stable's Brazen Brat, with Mike Basile subbing for Johnny Gilbert who said, "it's too darn cold to ride today," accounted for the second race at $7.

Joe's Sun, owned by Galt Davis, one-time Washington marble-shooting champion, won the sixth race with daylight to spare. Jack Robertson sent the 6-year-old to the front approaching the stretch and the veteran held sway thereafter. Bernadotte Stable's Viva Teddy, the favorite, was second with M. Kornblum's Air Force II third in the field of eight. Joe's Sun paid $7.40.

Gonzaga Wins As Burke Hurls One-Hit Game

Behind Dick Burke's one-hit pitching, Gonzaga High defeated St. Anthony's, 7-2, yesterday at Taft field.

Bud Landry's single with two away in the seventh inning spoiled Burke's no-hit bid. He retired 13 men in a row from the second to the seventh inning.

Big Virginia Horse Faces Field of 10

By John Chandler

New York, April 14 (AP).—Hill Prince, a prime contender for the Kentucky Derby three weeks hence, gets the sternest test of his career tomorrow when he tangles with 10 rivals in the $25,000 added Experimental Handicap No. 2 at Jamaica.

The Virginia-bred colt won the sprint section of the Experimental 10 days ago without much difficulty. It was his first start of the year.

This time, however, he must take on some tough competition and run a longer distance than he has ever raced before. The No. 2 Experimental is a mile and one-sixteenth, compared to 6 furlongs for No. 1. Hill Prince won at 6½ furlongs last year.

A victory for Chris Chenery's colt tomorrow, therefore, will put him in more solid than ever and could find him the favorite when he hits Derbytown. He will have top weight of 124 pounds tomorrow and will be ridden again by Eddie Arcaro.

Eight of those entered tomorrow are Derby nominees: Greentree Stable's Guillotine, 122; Brandywine Stable's Greek Song, 112; Hal Price Headley's Lotowhite, 107; George D. Widener's Lights Up, 114; James Cox Brady's Casemate, 116; F. N. Phelps' Sturdy One, 106, and Willorene Farm's Trumpet King, 114, plus Hill Prince.

Hill Prince undoubtedly will be the heavy choice, but strong support will be given Ferd, a non-Derby eligible owned by Mrs. Andy Schuttinger.

Gaithersburg High Upsets Blair, 11-2

Gaithersburg High upset Montgomery Blair, 11-2, at Gaithersburg yesterday.

Blair First Baseman Bob Foy's first-inning homer was matched by Gaithersburg Right Fielder Jack Mannix's grandslam wallop in the sixth. Dick Tetlow pitched three-hit ball and struck out nine for the winners.

Banner Field of 17 Run Today In Rich Chesapeake Stakes

Havre de Grace, Md., April 14—Twenty-ninth running of the Chesapeake Stakes for 3-year-olds, headline attraction of tomorrow's program here, drew a banner field of 17 horses ready to vie for the main portion of the $20,000 added money, hung up for this mile and a sixteenth test.

Three share high weight of 119 pounds. They are Palatine Stable's Quiz Show, winner of the Chesapeake Trial a week ago; Brookmeade Stable's Greek Ship, winner of the Louisiana Derby and Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' Suleiman, beaten by a nose in the trial and winner of last season's Grand Union Hotel Stakes.

In at 116 pounds are Harry B. Cohen's Jess Linthicum, W. Taylor Leatherbury's Eastern Flyway, Dion K. Kerr's Fleet Argo, all of whom were stakes winners either this season or last.

Tomorrow's field will be trying to emulate the feats of Whiskery in 1927, Cavalcade in 1934, War Admiral in 1937 and Citation in 1948. Each of these went on to score in the Kentucky Derby, the latter two also taking the Preakness. Capot, last year's successful bidder here, won the Preakness and Belmont, after being second in the Derby.

With such a large Chesapeake field, racing luck may be a deciding factor. Off the past performances, it appears that Quiz Show and Kinsman will have strong backing in the race while the Bookmeade and Jeffords' entries also are likely to carry considerable support from the public.

Jockey assignments for the Chesapeake include Johnny Gilbert on Quiz Show, Mike Basile on Androcles, Bobbie Mitchell on King Mowlee, Willie Downs on Blue Zac, Nick Combest on First Glance, William Balzarettl on Noblest, Ernest Wood on Eastern Flyway, Carson Kirk on Fleet Argo, Ronnie Nash on Balkan, James Lynch on Gigolo, Bobbie Strange on Suleiman, Aubrey Snellings on Post Card, Consolato Errico on Greek Ship, and Jack Robertson on Sunglow

The time record for the Chesapeake is 1:43 3/5, set by Cavalcade in 1934.

More Lay-Offs Slated By Export Office at Commerce Department

Commerce's battered Office of Export Controls will make another lay-off of 130 employes soon. The office will be down to 230 people by July 1, compared to 1300 a couple of years ago.

The new cut will be a tough one to make. About 120 of the 130 to go are career people, some with 25 and 30 years of service. Many of them will be career veterans as well as nonveterans. The department promises to do what it can to find other jobs for them, but it isn't optimistic over the possibilities.

NOTES: The Patent Bar Association is objecting to the President's reorganization plan that would transfer the duties of the Patent Commissioner to the Commerce Secretary . . . The Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee has okayed the nomination of Osborne Pearson of California, to be Assistant Postmaster General . . . The apprentice bill approved by the committee would definitely prohibit the Bureau of Engraving and Printing from holding promotion tests among its own employes. It would also limit apprentice jobs in Government to veterans. It's a safe bet the bill will be vetoed if it gets to the White House.

VETERANS PROMOTIONS: The Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee has another meeting set for Monday noon on H. R. 87, the bill to give postal veterans of World War II credit toward automatic promotions for time served in the armed forces.

Meantime, a report on the bill is being delayed. The measure was reported out of the full committee Thursday by a 4-to-3 vote, but several absent Senators want to be heard on it. A quorum failed to show up at a hastily called meeting yesterday.

It's a good bet another attempt will be made to get the committee to indorse the House-approved bill which provides for a July 1, 1950, cut-off date. The bill reported Thursday carries a July 1, 1947, date. That means veterans hired since that time wouldn't benefit by it. Also, an attempt may be made to apply it to veterans throughout the Federal service.

NAVY: AFL's East Coast Metal Trades Council conferred yesterday with Navy Undersecretary Kimball on their No. 1 gripe—that Navy men are taking over the jobs of civilian employes. Kimball contended the percentage of uniformed men in civilian jobs is no greater than it has ever been. The council was unimpressed and it will seek a congressional inquiry of their charges.

GRAND IDEA: Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) is doing what he can to offset some of the destructive criticism of Federal agencies and their employes. He has adopted a constructive approach—one aimed at telling the people what the Government does.

The Senator has persuaded a score of top Federal officials to transcribe radio talks on the work of their agencies. The records are being played on 23 radio stations in Minnesota and Wisconsin, and they are being piped into high school auditoriums and college assemblies. The response to the Know Your Government series, the Senator reports, has been excellent. George Reedy, a radio correspondent here, is helping to arrange the programs.

Among the Federal officers participating are James Mitchell, GOP member of the Civil Service Commission; Dr. Earl McGrath of the Office of Education; J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI; Lyle Watts of the Forest Service; Dr. James Boyd of the Bureau of Mines; Carroll Wilson of the Atomic Energy Commission; Albert Day of the Fish & Wildlife Service, and Jess Larsen of General Services, among others. Other Senators may pick up the excellent programs.

ITEMS: A Civil Service exam is open to fill deputy United States marshal jobs ($3100 to start) here and in nearby States . . . The big and independent National Federation of Federal Employes is making plans for its September convention in Los Angeles . . . Representative Miller (D., Calif.) is drafting a bill to pay Federal workers in cash for accumulated sick leave when they retire . . . Two other House members have bills ready to introduce to reduce annual and sick leave for most Government people.

$1300 Offered For Solution to Store Slayings

Lansburgh Proffers $1000, Police $300; Conviction Objective

Rewards totalling $1300 were offered yesterday in an attempt to solve the Good Friday murders of two night watchmen in the Lansburgh & Bro., department store.

Officials of the store announced they have posted $1000 of the money, and Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, said the department is offering $300.

Both rewards are for "information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer or slayers."

The two victims were Oliver R. Hess, 56, of 1324 Massachusetts ave. nw., and John C. Carpenter, 66, of 506 G st. nw. They were stabbed to death with a butcher's boning knife which had been taken from a store kitchen.

The murders occurred shortly after midnight on the morning of Good Friday. Carpenter was slain on the first floor, and Hess on the sixth floor.

Detectives yesterday kept up their questioning of employes and former employes of the store, and of employes of companies servicing the store. More than two dozen were interrogated, but no progress toward solution of the crimes was reported. The detectives are conducting the questioning both at police headquarters, and at temporary headquarters set up in the Lansburgh store.

Gale Delays Arrival of Elephants

Arrival here of two baby elephants from India has been delayed by a southwesterly gale and snowstorm in the Atlantic.

Presentation of Ashok and Shanti has accordingly been postponed from today to 4 p. m. Sunday in back of the Zoo Elephant House.

The babies are only a year old and don't have a proper set of sea legs. Out of consideration for his celebrated passengers, the master of the SS Steel Fabricator has revved down his engines.

Latest estimated-arrival time in New York is 8 a. m. today.

The elephants are gifts of India Prime Minister Nehru to the children of America and come as symbols of peace.

Abandoned Car Believed Used By 3 Bandits

A stolen sedan which police believe may have been used as an escape car in a $400 holdup here Wednesday was found abandoned yesterday in the 1400 block of Webster st. ne.

The car, a maroon Mercury, was taken to headquarters and carefully dusted for fingerprints.

Police have reason to suspect the car was used by the three bandits who slugged an employe of the Fruit Growers' Express Co. with a pistol in the company's ninth floor offices, at 1101 Vermont ave. nw., and fled with more than $400.

The same trio is believed responsible for the $1000 stickup at headquarters of Local 102 of the Sheet Metal Workers here on March 30, and a $3700 holdup the following day of an Arlington sheet metal and roofers concern.

Zoning Hearing Set

The Arlington County Board will hold a public hearing on its proposed new zoning ordinance and land use map at 8 p. m. Monday in the Arlington Courthouse.

But Nobody Knew

Alexandria's New Charter Is Operative

Alexandria has had a new charter for a week, but city officials weren't aware of it until Thursday.

A bill providing for the new charter, approved by the General Assembly last month, was signed a week ago yesterday by Gov. John S. Battle, officially putting the charter in effect. City officials, however, received no immediate notice of the Governor's action.

Informed that April 11 had been the deadline for signing of legislative bills by the Governor, Alexandria City Manager W. Guy Ancell telephoned Battle's office and learned the charter already was operative.

The charter, broadening the city manager's power and "streamlining" the city government, provides for a number of changes in existing departments, to be effected by the manager.

Policeman Is Fined $150 For Absences

Fines totalling $150 were imposed yesterday on Police Pvt. Ralph W. Harper, of the 12th precinct, on charges of malingering by feigning illness, and conduct prejudical to the department's reputation and good order.

The trial board which found him guilty on those charges exonerated him of another count of failing to report to the police clinic every second day while on sick leave.

Testimony showed that last December 28, Harper had a molar extracted by a private dental surgeon, and was off duty until January 12. On January 22, he reported sick, by telephone, and was off 44 days to March 6. The charges grew out of the latter period.

Dr. James A. O'Keeffe, of the board of police and fire surgeons testified he authorized 30 days of the period as sick leave for Harper, but was unable to remember telephone calls Harper said he and his wife made to the doctor during the period.

Harper contended he was too ill to report to the clinic at the prescribed intervals.

Alexander Pleads Guilty To 2 Murders

Navy Veteran Charged With Strangling Wife, Child in Alexandria

Herbert D. Alexander, jr., in a surprise move, pleaded guilty in Alexandria Corporation Court yesterday to first-degree murder charges in the strangulation deaths of his wife and baby October 22, 1948.

The 24-year-old Navy veteran appeared at his own request before Judge William P. Woolls to withdraw not-guilty pleas to each of the two counts on which he was indicted more than a year ago. He had been scheduled to go to trial next Tuesday.

Asked by Judge Woolls if he were "fully aware" of what he was doing, Alexander nodded calmly. Woolls then referred the case to a probation officer for study—a mandatory proceeding in Virginia applicable to all felonies for which a defendant can be sentenced to more than 10 years.

Alexander, whose earlier pleas of not guilty had been on grounds of insanity, faces either death by electrocution or a prison sentence of from 20 years to life. However, court officials agreed yesterday it is not customary to impose the maximum penalty in cases involving guilty pleas.

The youth was arrested in his apartment at 3908 Elbert ave., Alexandria, after telephoning police: "Come and get me. I've killed my wife and baby."

Winners in Essay Contest Named By Sales Club

Ernest J. Szetela, St. Paul's Academy; Edward J. Hickey, St. John's College High School; Warren Usher, Hyattsville High; George Robillard, Gonzaga High; Betty Jean Porter, Greenbelt High, and Kathleen Lucey, Academy of Notre Dame.

Nearly 1000 students participated in the contest, writing on "Selling as a Career." Winners will receive their prizes at a dinner April 24 at the Mayflower Hotel.

Baby With Detour in Food Pipes Operated on at Walter Reed

Walter Reed Hospital surgeons last night performed a delicate, 3½-hour operation in an attempt to save the life of a two-day-old boy born with a dead-end food pipe.

Although his food pipe is now connected to his stomach, the baby still has eaten nothing since his birth Wednesday, and is on the critical list.

In immediate danger of starving to death because food could not reach his stomach, the boy was flown here yesterday from Panama.

He is Robert Carriker, son of Lieut. Frederick Carriker, an Army doctor on the staff of Gorgas Hospital in the Panama Canal Zone. The boy's mother and twin brother are reported in good condition in Panama.

Walter Reed officials said the boy was born with an unusual impairment known as a tracheal esophageal fistula. The upper part of his food pipe (esophagus) was closed off and dangling. The lower portion led from his stomach into the windpipe (trachea).

Working from 4:30 p. m. until 8:10 p. m., surgeons severed the lower portion of the esophagus from the trachea, opened the stump end of the esophagus and connected the two so that food could pass normally from the throat to the stomach.

The infant made the trip here under oxygen. Lieutenant Karriker, dressed in his white uniform and carrying only a set of X-ray pictures, boarded a Pan American plane with his son at 2:20 a. m. yesterday, switched to an Eastern Airlines plane in Miami and arrived here shortly after noon.

Phone Talks End, Strike Poll Begins

Contract negotiations between the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. and its 3500 CIO craft and electrical workers collapsed yesterday.

The union, Division 36, of the Communication Workers of America, immediately began polling its members by mail on a strike deadline set for April 26. Glenn Watts, president of the union, said there is little doubt but that the rank and file will overwhelmingly vote to strike.

Earlier this week, CWA Division 50, which includes some 2700 operators, also broke off contract talks with C&P and began sending out strike ballots for April 26—a date on which the Communications Workers union plans to pull out more than 200,000 employes of Bell Telephone System companies around the country.

Watts charged that the company was "stalling" and had a "closed mind" on the union's demand for a 15-cent-an-hour raise. "It is apparent to us that only force can make the company move," he said.

C. H. Johnson, vice president and general manager of the phone company, declared yesterday that neither union local "has produced one piece of convincing evidence to justify their demands." He said that since 1939, seven general wage increases have been given C. & P. employes in Washington, and that in addition, employes received regularly scheduled progression increases until they reach their top rates.

The company officials maintained that wage rate increases to employes have substantially exceeded the cost of living increase.

County Asking Review of Hike In Arnold Fare

The Arlington County board may ask all 11 members of the Interstate Commerce Commission to consider rescinding a recent 5-cent fare increase granted the Arnold Lines.

The interstate increase was upheld a week ago by a 2-to-1 vote of a three-man panel of ICC commissioners.

Arlington County Board Chairman Daniel Dugan said yesterday he is polling members of the board by phone to see if they wish to request an oral hearing on the fare increase by a full commission.

Dugan said the rehearing would be asked on grounds presented by the original dissenting Commission member.

Charges by union employes of the line that the boost should be rescinded, since it was obtained by "fraud" might also be cited by the board, Dugan said.

AB&W in Red, Will Seek Fare Increase Soon

$30,000 Deficit Kills Pay Raise Prospects For State-Seized Line

The A.B.&W. bus line, which carries 70,000 passengers in Washington and nearby Virginia daily, will seek a fare increase by the end of this month, it was learned yesterday.

Beverly C. May, general manager of the Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington Transit Co., disclosed that the line has gone into the red for more than $30,000 since the first of the year.

He blamed the deficit on a continuing decline in the number of passengers—despite the fact that the population of nearby Virginia is growing.

This steady loss, May indicated, rules out any immediate possibility of a raise in pay for the company's AFL drivers and maintenance men. Any pay boost would have to be tied into a fare raise, which would have to be approved after a hearing by the Interstate Commerce Commission, May said.

May revealed the company's deficit and intention to seek a fare hike as the company denied reports from its union, Division 1131, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway, and Motor Coach Employes of America, that the company had offered a 10-cents-an-hour raise as a "basis for settlement."

The company executive declared that the last offer to the union by the transit line, made in December, was for a pay boost of 5 cents an hour, with 3 cents more to be added in July, 1950. This offer was withdrawn when the union turned it down, May said.

The union employes have been on technical strike against the company since July, 1949, in a move to win a pay increase. Under a State law, the Commonwealth of Virginia seized the lines and the union employes agreed to continue on their jobs, technically working for the State, until the dispute is settled.

The State law provides that the State shall take 15 percent of the profits for operating the line, but according to May, there has been no profit shown by the company since the seizure.

Sesqui Opens With Pageant This Morning At Capitol

Thousands Expected; Barkley to Speak; Stars to Perform; Fireworks Tonight

The Sesquicentennial Celebration marking Washington's 150th anniversary as the Nation's Capital will open this morning at Capitol Plaza.

A "Salute to Freedom" pageant, preceded by a concert by three service bands, an aerial display and a 35-gun salute, will keynote the series of Sesquicentennial events which will continue throughout the year.

Vice President Alben W. Barkley and Representative Walt Horan of Washington will deliver the addresses at the Capitol Plaza program.

Thousands Expected

Thousands are expected to attend the two-hour celebration, which begins at 10:15 a. m. with music by the Marine, Army and Air Force Bands. The weather forecast was for a cool but sunny day.

A concert and fireworks display at 7:15 p. m. on the Monument Grounds will conclude the day's festivities.

The celebration specifically marks the placing of the District of Columbia's cornerstone at what is now Jones Point, Alexandria, on April 15, 1791. The capital was moved to Washington in 1800.

President Truman will be unable to participate in the program because of the press of state business.

Stage, screen and singing stars, will perform on a stage in front of the Capitol, and special stands have been built for 2000 special guests. An 18-foot plastic and wood reproduction of the Capitol dome's figure of Freedom has been placed above the Capitol steps, with a Sesquicentennial seal as a background.

The flags of the States and territories, and of several patriotic organizations, will fly over the Plaza.

Following the concert, and flights of fighters of the Air Force and the D. C. Air National Guard, the President's Proclamation will be read by Sergt. Roy N. Meachum, jr. of the Army Band.

Thirty-five Gun Salute

The gun salute will follow—one gun for each of the 35 States which had been admitted into the Union when the Freedom statue was raised at the Capitol, as in the ceremony of the time.

"America the Beautiful" will be sung then by choral groups from American, Catholic, Maryland, Howard, George Washington and Georgetown Universities, and the Department of Agriculture. The invocation by Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle will follow.

Singers will include Irra Petina, William Warfield, Muriel Rahn, Ann Crowley as Miss Liberty and Gladys Swarthout as the Goddess of Freedom, wearing a replica of the gown on the figure. Lucille Manners will sing "God Bless America."

Representative Horan, a member of the Sesquicentennial Commission, will speak on the significance of the Sesquicentennial.

Movie stars George Murphy and Edward Arnold will recite as Thomas Jefferson and Daniel Webster, respectively. The Right Rev. Angus Dun, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Washington, will offer a Prayer for Freedom.

Following Vice President Barkley's address, a dramatic profile, "This Broad Land," will be presented, concluding with a musical program and the National Anthem. Narrator for the program will be William A. Wood, actor and a member of the State Department.

The Monument Grounds program, opening at 7:15 with a concert by the United States Navy School of Band Music, will include a one-hour display of set pieces and aerial bombs. Some of the features will be a color representation of the Sesquicentennial seal, the "Spirit of '76" and the Capitol dome.

Three Children Partly Overcome By Coal Gas Leak

Three children were partly overcome yesterday morning by coal gas from a defective furnace in a home at 179 Uhland tr. ne., Fire Department Rescue Squad men reported.

Two hours later, Engine Company No. 12 answered a call to the same address because smoke was coming from the furnace into the house, but found no blaze in the house. Occupants were notified to have the furnace fixed.

The children were Jeanette Peterson, 2, who was unconscious for a short time; Gloria Peterson, 3, and Evelyn Perry, 5. The latter two were made ill, but did not lose consciousness. All three were taken to Children's Hospital, treated, and released.

GAO Bldg. Worker Dies In Fall

A carpenter working on the new General Accounting Office building at 4th and G sts. nw., died instantly yesterday in a fall from the fourth to the third floor levels.

Police said he was Walter O. West, about 58, who came here recently from Danville, Pa. He had been staying with a brother at 14 4th st. ne., they said.

West was constructing forms for concrete on the fourth floor level, police were told, and a co-worker, Howard V. Kelley, 3414 39th ave., Brentwood, Md., handed up a 4 by 4 inch timber to him. West set it across other supports without nailing it, police were told, then stepped on one end. The unsecured timber swung and pitched him about 12 feet to the floor below.

A Gallinger Hospital physician, who pronounced West deat at the scene, haid he apparently landed on his head on a concrete floor, still holding a hammer and nails. Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, said he will conduct an autopsy today. He said death apparently resulted from severe head injuries. West was amployed by John McShain, Inc., contractors.

Press Association Votes Funds for College Education

To encourage journalistic endeavor, the Montgomery County Press Association yesterday voted to present $250 toward a college education to a county high school senior this year.

Tentative plans were made at the meeting in the Stone House Inn, Four Corners, Md., to award $250 to the student selected each of his or her four years in colleges.

The group also plans to select a scholarship student each year until it will be giving $1000 in scholarships annually. Final plans will be announced at the Montgomery County High School Press Convention April 22 at the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School.

The association named Louis Leimbach, newly-elected president, Mrs. Stella Werner, and Ernest Tannen, as delegates to the convention.

Adm. Violette Dies, Once French Navy Leader

Dijon, France, April 14 (AP).—Vice Admiral Louis Violette, 80-year-old French naval leader, died here yesterday. He was navy chief of staff during World War I and was noted for inventions improving the submarine periscope.

Experts Told Of New Airport Traffic Aids

Predictions of things to come in aviation traffic and complaints of progress that hasn't come in reforestation were heard here yesterday by engineers.

S. P. Saint of the Air Navigation and Traffic Control Division, Air Transport Service, told of "bold new steps" being taken to unscramble airport traffic.

They include electronic devices now being designed to permit as many as 80 planes to take off or land each hour at dual-runway airports. Described were "black-box" automatic approach systems, and "picture navigation" to guide pilots through complicated traffic patterns over airports.

Plane "Slides Down String"

Saint spoke at the final day session of the spring meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at the Statler. Some 800 members attended.

The coming "black-box" approach control system, Saint said, engages landing instrumentation in the plane overhead when the pilot coming in throws a switch. From then on, the plane is automatically landed, "just like it was sliding down a string," he said.

"Picture navigation," he explained, charts a picture path for the pilot to follow on his instrument panel, to replace complicated instructions now given the pilots by radio.

Forestry Machines Needed

Another speaker, Anthony P. Dean, chief of the division of engineering, United States Forest Service, complained that though this may be the hydrogen bomb era forestry still awaits the machine age. Mechanization in the timberlands, he said, is trailing far behind.

The net result is that forestry, and particularly the replacing of timber stands, suffer because too much of the work is arduous and costly with hand labor. The drain on the timberlands could be halted, Dean said, if economical and efficient machines were available.

Injunction Issued Against Town's Anti-Picket Rule

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., April 14 (AP).—A temporary injunction was issued today against the ordinance under which 38 strikers at the Victor Products Corp. plant here were convicted Wednesday.

Judge Decatur H. Rodgers of the Morgan County Circuit Court signed the order restraining town officils from enforcing the law which forbids congregating any place which the mayor has declared an emergency area.

Mayor Varnall Barney and the town council proclaimed the area within 500 feet of the Victor plant an emergency area shortly after the CIO United Auto Workers walked out Wednesday.

Thirty-eight pickets were arrested under the law and given 10-day jail sentences and $50 fines. They appealed the convictions to Circuit Court, however, and were released on bond.

It was on the application of four of the arrested pickets that Judge Rodgers issued the injunction.

Teacher, Named As Red, Is Denied Job Restoration

Pittsburgh, April 14 (AP).—Federal District Court today refused to order reinstatement of a high school English teacher who was suspended after being named a Communist.

A special court of three judges ruled Dorothy Albert must exhaust all remedies under the State school code before her case can come under Federal jurisdiction.

Miss Albert, a teacher at Taylor Allerdice High School for 18 years, was suspended by the Board of Education last month. The board will hear her appeal May 17.

Matt Cvetic, former FBI undercover agent, named her as a Communist before the House Un-American Activities Committee. Her suspension followed.

Frank Bloom, Labor Lawyer, Is Dead at 45

Frank Bloom, 45, labor lawyer and former chief trial examiner for the National Labor Relations Board, died Thursday at Garfield Hospital of septicemia. Mr. Bloom had been ill of a kidney infection for two weeks.

Mr. Bloom

Mr. Bloom, who lived at 4501 Walsh st., Chevy Chase, Md., represented the Commercial Telegraphers Union (AFL) and other labor groups here, and served as associate professor of labor law at Howard University.

He maintained a law partnership with Sam Jaffee in the Dupont Circle Building.

As chief examiner for the NLRB, Mr. Bloom was hearing officer in the Bethlehem Steel case in 1937 and 1938, one of the most hotly contested unfair labor cases to come before the board. The hearings, which brought out spectacular charges on all sides, lasted for eight months, with a score of attorneys participating.

Mr. Bloom ruled against the company on charges of labor spying and of fostering a company union, and was upheld by the board and the United States Court of Appeals. It was one of the first such cases to be appealed.

A native of Baltimore, Mr. Bloom was graduated from the University of Chicago and received his law degree there. He practiced law in Chicago for several years before coming to Washington to join the NLRB as a trial examiner in May, 1937.

He was appointed assistant chief trial examiner in June, 1938, and chief trial examiner in November, 1942. He resigned in January, 1947, to become general counsel for the Telegraphers Union.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mildred Bloom, and two daughters, Patricia, 16, and Susan 7. He is also survived by his mother, Mrs. Bertha Bloom of Chicago; two brothers, Dr. William Bloom of Chicago and Dr. Benson Bloom of Tucson, Ariz., and a sister, Miss Sophia Bloom of 4520 MacArthur blvd. nw.

The body will be cremated after private services.

Some Enchanted Evening!

Relief Ball Sparkling Spectacle

IT WAS some enchanted evening at the sail loft of the Naval Gun Factory last night!

That was the scene of the Navy Relief Ball where everything was "South Pacific." In fact, you'd hardly have recognized the historic sail loft.

All four walls, and even the ceiling, of the spacious ballroom were disguised beyond recognition.

A gigantic fish net stretched across one wall with thousands of little fishes clinging to it. The ceiling was a sky of rippling blue cloth sparkling with countless stars. And there were flowers just everywhere.

Palm fronds were everywhere too, even thinly disguising the telephone booth at the end of the hall. Most of the women, and a sprinkling of the men, wore Hawaiian leis made of carnations, orchids torn into little segments and strung together, or little white flowers native to the islands.

A surprising number of the women wore native Hawaiian holokus—long dresses with trains caught lightly over the finger on a loop. Mrs. Marcella Dupont, who went to the Chilean reception as well as the Navy relief ball last night, wore a blue and white holoku. Rear Admiral George Dyer's wife wore a bright yellow one printed with tropical flowers. One of the prettiest of all was worn by Mrs. Philip Walken, who was born in Hawaii and feeling a little homesick for the islands last night. Her holoku was of white broacaded satin and with it she wore an orchid lei.

Miniature 'South Pacific'

A SOUTH PACIFIC village with thatched huts, real palm trees and birds of paradise was transplanted to the stage where a miniature version of the Broadway play was produced.

The overflowing audience of Washington's top drawer society who attended the annual gala ball found it was more of a variety show than a dance.

A message from Admiral W. "Bull" Halsey, Fleet Commander, was read to the guests.

Twenty or more Navy juniors skipped around in colorful sarongs or grass skirts to sell leis—all for the benefit of the relief fund.

From 10 p. m. until well into the morning there was one spectacle after another.

As a bang-up opening there was the red-jacketed Marine Band which made the Sail Loft ring from end to end with stimulating marching music. Then, in almost complete silence the precision Marine Corps Drill team executed a number of intricate maneuvers to the accompaniment of the tap-tap of their shoes on the floor and their white gloves slapping against the rifle barrels.

As a finale, each of the 24th Marines flipped his rifle—bayonet over butt—with one hand, leaving the audience quite gasping with admiration. Even Actors Edward Arnold and Douglas Fairbanks, jr., quite accustomed to Hollywood spectacles, looked impressed by the Marines' showmanship.

Fairbanks as Narrator

THEN it was Douglas Fairbanks' turn. The Hollywood idol, who is remembered most fondly by the Navy as a commander in the reserves, narrated the condensed "South Pacific." Star performers in the cast were Jeanne Warner, television queen, and songstress Peggy LeBaron together with the Navy's best musical talent.

At the same time still another show was in full swing in the cocktail lounge set up in the long room adjacent to the sail loft.

Heading the "tuxedo set" at the ball were the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Francis Matthews, the Undersecretary and Mrs. Dan A. Kimball, and the former Secretary and Mrs. John L. Sullivan.

Shermans, Cates Attend

CHIEF of Navy Operations and Mrs. Forrest P. Sherman and the Marine Corps Commandant and Mrs. Clifton Cates were also among the prominent box holders.

Also, there were Mr. and Mrs. Clark Clifford, Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Eugene Zuckert, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Floberg, Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Bretsch, Mr. and Mrs. Reeve K. Biggers, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mr. and Mrs. C. Thomas Clagett, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, Martin Vogel, Mr. and Mrs. James McSherry Wimsatt, Mrs. Montgomery-Charrington, Mr. and Mrs. Gale McLean, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Parsons, Hilton C. Smith, Carter Barron and Mrs. George Barnett.

Among the non-Navy guests there was Mrs. Morris Cafritz who wore a lovely white satin dress, liberally star-dusted with some shiny brilliants.

Others on Hand

OTHERS in the Navy blue and gold were Vice Admiral and Mrs. A. D. Struble, Vice Admiral and Mrs. Vincent R. Murphy, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Sidney W. Sauers, Vice Admiral and Mrs. E. O. Foster, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Melville Pride, Rear Admiral and Mrs. A. C. Davis, Admiral and Mrs. J. O. Richardson and Rear Admiral and Mrs. Felix Johnson.

And still more were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. H. Conger Pratt, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Oliver P. Smith, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. W. P. T. Hill, Capt. and Mrs. William D. Chandler, Col. J. M. Knighton, Capt. and Mrs. P. E. McDowell, Capt. and Mrs. Harry S. Sears, Capt. and Mrs. Will L. Gates, Comdr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill, Comdr. and Mrs. Louis Pooler, and many, many others.

IF THE smiling face of Admiral Forrest Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations, is any indication, receiving flower leis from two young ladies is an enjoyable task. Tarheels Plan Festivities For Visiting DAR Friends

By Nicha Soure

The Daughters of the American Revolution are receiving a gala welcome from the State Societies.

Teeing off with Mississippi's reception last night, North Carolina follows up with a party on Thursday for the North Carolina delegates and visiting Tarheels. The party will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. McNeill, 3212 Garfield st. nw. The fete will climax a group of smaller events to be held during the first of the week.

On Saturday, April 22, the Daughters will share honors with members of the Greensboro Glee Club who will be in Washington at that time. The Daughters and Glee Club personnel will be special guests at the North Carolina Society at the springtime dance, 10 p. m., in the large ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel.

Receiving at the reception Thursday will be Mrs. Gordon Gray, Mrs. Charles S. Murphy, Mrs. David H. Stowe, Mrs. H. W. Baucom, jr., Mrs. Stella Miller, Mrs. J. Spencer Love, Mrs. William S. Tyson, Mrs. W. H. Hessick, jr., Mrs. John S. Graham, Mrs. Frank P. Graham, Mrs. W. Ney Evans, Mrs. Fred W. Morrison, Mrs. Ed. W. DeArmon, Mrs. T. Lamar Caudle, Mrs. Cornelius Bretsch, Mrs. James E. Webb, Mrs. Lindsay Warren, Mrs. H. B. Baxley, Mrs. William Primm, jr., and Mrs. John K. Slear.

Wives of the North Carolina congressional delegation will assist at the tea table.

The California congressional delegation will be on hand to welcome their California friends at a buffet dinner on Thursday, April 27.

The California State Society's annual "Congressional Night" will begin at 6:30 p. m. in the Washington room of the Washington Hotel. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Clair Engle, Decatur 9119.

THE Massachusetts Society of Washington will gather in the Shoreham Hotel on Friday, April 21, to celebrate its annual Patriot's Day at a dance.

Dave McWilliams will provide music for dancing from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. Tickets will be available at the door and members will be admitted by membership card.

The National Airport terrace will be the scene tonight of the Nebraska State Society's "Aviation Night" party. Dancing will be to Jack Morton's Orchestra from 9:30 p. m. until 1 a. m.

The newly elected officers of the Minnesota State Society are Floyd D. Peterson, president; Mel Amoth, vice president; William D. Jackson, secretary, and Mrs. W. Allan Hunter, treasurer.

THE good ship "Colorado" will be skippered by Admiral John F. Shafroth, USN (ret.), "The Hero of Tokyo Bay," on Wednesday night when it takes Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan and the Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman on for dinner in the grand ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel.

The dinner, preceded by a reception at 7 p. m., is being sponsored by the Colorado State Society. Tickets for the dinner are available from W. Elwood Baker, 720 Shoreham Building.

Greetings will be transcribed from Josephine Antoine, Lowell Thomas, Paul Whiteman, Ralph Edward and other distinguished Coloradans in absentia.

THE Arkansas State Society will honor Brig. Gen. J. P. McConnell, deputy special assistant to the Chief of Staff for Air Corps Reserves, at a dance tonight in the West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel.

The Army Air Force Band will play for the dance and the Air Force Chorus will present special numbers.

The last in a series of Government Department nights, sponsored by the New York State Society, will be held tonight at the Shoreham Hotel.

The "Treasury Department Night Ball" will be from 10 p. m. until 1 a. m. following a reception at 9:30 p. m.

THE Iowans in Washington will be treated to a reception and tea in the Caucus Room of the Senate Office Building (corner of Delaware and Constitution aves.) from 3:30 to 6 p. m. on April 30.

Hosts and hostesses for the affair will be Representative Charles B. Hoeven, president of the society, and Mrs. Hoeven; Senator and Mrs. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, Senator and Mrs. Guy Gillette, Representative and Mrs. Karl M. Le Compte, Representative and Mrs. Thomas E. Martin, Representative and Mrs. Ben F. Jensen, Representative Henry O. Talle, Representative and Mrs. Paul Cunningham, Representative and Mrs. James I. Dolliver and Representative and Mrs. H. R. Gross.

For additional information about the society, call Gertrude L. Gromann, secretary, at Columbia 2000.

IT MIGHT be 24 hours late, but it's the Texas State Society San Jacinto Day celebration all the same.

On April 22, the Texans will gather in the National Press Club Auditorium, 14th and F sts. nw., for their April party. There'll be dancing—or just visiting among friends—between the hours of 9 p. m. and 12:30 a. m.

Hostesses for the occasion will be the Texas Congressional wives. For further information about the dance call the chairman of the dance committee, Mrs. Marjorie Jenkins, at Overlook 3807.

Serving with Mr. Salyers will be Col. Basil Cooper, Paul Keen and Miss Laura Barron, vice presidents; Mrs. James H. Pearson, secretary; William Stevens, financial secretary, and Owen Smither, treasurer.

On May 6, Derby Day, the Kentuckians in Washington will meet at the Shoreham Hotel to watch the running of the Kentucky Derby at Louisville.

PETUNIA!

I'd like to write a sonnet
Or a celebrated ballad
About the way a walnut
Can glorify a salad!

Walnuts ARE a delicious addition to fruit salad, Petunia. And to make sure they'll stay crisp and not discolor the fruit, be sure you add them JUST before serving.

Beyond All Time

No matter what the stars may tell . . . Or what the world may say . . . I shall belong to you, my love . . . Forever and a day . . . Forever through the years that reach . . . Beyond the farthest sun . . . And when the hour-glass is still . . . And all the sands have run . . . I shall belong to you as long . . . As there is any tide . . . And after all our dreams are gone . . . And every wind has died . . . When earth and air are melted and . . . The sky alone remains . . . With idle snows and shadows and . . . With unavailing rains . . . Because I love you with a love . . . That will not pass away . . . And I belong to you, my love . . . Forever and a day

Share Knowledge, Jessup Advises

Philip C. Jessup, United States Ambassador at Large who has just returned from the Far East, said yesterday that the American heritage of philanthropy applies to more than money. It applies to sharing knowledge and technical ability with other people and is based on common interest. "It is certainly not based on condescension," he said.

Speaking before the forty-fourth annual meeting of the Washington branch of the Young Women's Christian Association, at which Mrs. Truman was among the guests, Ambassador Jessup said that in his travels through the East he had been impressed by the fact that there isn't any difference between East and West in terms of human relationships.

"I never had the feeling that as an American I was the object of animosity or distrust," he said, and added that he hopes the students and United Nations representatives from those countries feel they are being warmly welcomed here.

Cites Common Interests

Stressing the common spiritual and moral interest among peoples all over the world, Ambassador Jessup said that the United Nations Charter pretty well sums them up and that is why the UN will continue to appeal to the world.

The sense of solidarity and willingness to share with one another can be spread internationally as well as nationally, he concluded.

Prior to Ambassador Jessup's talk, the luncheon guests were greeted by Mrs. Carlos Romulo, wife of the President of the General Assembly of the United Nations who had been scheduled to speak. General Romulo has been unexpectedly called home by the President of the Philippines.

'Y' Program Discussed

Miss Mabel R. Cook, executive director of the Washington YWCA, spoke about the work of the Y in the past year, and a group of Y girls—dressed as newspaper boys — distributed copies of the "Record Times," a newspaper-style report about activities at the YWCA.

The meeting, held at the Mayflower, was presided over by Mrs. Howard G. Nichols, retiring president.

Among the guests at the head table with Mrs. Truman and the speakers were Mrs. Angus Dun, Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mme. Corea, wife of the Ambassador of Ceylon; Mrs. Tom Clark, Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, Ambassador and Mme. Makin of Australia, Mrs. Charles Brannan and Senora de Thomen, wife of the Ambassador of the Dominican Republic.

Californian Views Fashion Cavalcade

Mrs. Carter Collins of San Francisco, Calif., leaves today after a short visit in the Capital as the guest of Mrs. George Holmes.

Mrs. Collins came to see the Greek Cavalcade of Fashion at the Mayflower Hotel. She will be chairman of the same event when it arrives in San Francisco next month.

As international chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Collins publishes a monthly bulletin on foreign affairs.

Pen Group to Hear Talk on India

Mrs. Helen Woodsmall Eldredge, an authority on life in India, will be guest speaker for the Book Group of the D. C. Branch, National League of American Pen Women, at a tea tomorrow afternoon, 4 to 6, at the Branch Studio on Columbia rd.

Mrs. Eldredge will talk on her vignettes of India, "From a Monastery Balcony," "Amber City of Dreams," "Relic of Tibet," and others, and will have for display objects of art from India.

By Robert Burchette—The Washington Post

MRS. HARRY TRUMAN, Mrs. Stanley Reed and Mrs. Carlos Romulo greet each other at yesterday's 44th annual meeting of the Washington Branch of the Young Women's Christian Association at the Mayflower.

Mrs. Romulo, wife of the President of the UN General Assembly, brought a message to the luncheon guests from her husband who had been scheduled to speak but was called unexpectedly to the Philippines.

Convent Plans Cotillion April 21

Rehearsals are going forward for a cotillion figure to be danced at the Spring Cotillion for the benefit of the Georgetown Visitation Convent. The event will be staged by the Junior Alumnae of the Convent and the Junior College on April 21 in the main ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel.

The Junior College Committee is composed of: Miss Jeanne L'Heureux, Miss Eileen McGolrick, Miss Margaret Maloney, Miss Carmen Trigo, Miss Eunice Schubert, Miss Joan Smith, Miss Jacqueline Manewal, Miss Mary Jane Weiler, Miss Kathleen Conaty, Miss Anne Ferrenbach, Miss Miriam Burgund and Miss Alice Jeane Kane.

The proceeds from the cotillion will be turned over to the building fund of the Convent for the erection of a new classroom building.

The historic Convent which is the oldest Catholic girls' school in the United States was founded in 1799 and last year celebrated its sesquicentennial of which the Spring Cotillion was a highlight. Alumnae from all over the world returned to attend the various functions in connection with this celebration. Miss Helen O'Conor is chairman of the Cotillion

Soroptimists Call Sessions For April 22

A call to the thirty-second regional conference of the South Atlantic Region of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs has gone out to all clubs in the region by the regional director, Miss Ella Werner.

The conference will be held in Washington, at the Willard Hotel on April 22 and 23. The Soroptimist Club of Washington will be the hostess.

Delegates and members of the following Soroptimist Clubs will attend: Alexandria, Arlington County, Asheville, N. C., Baltimore, Fairfax County, Greensboro, N. C., Harford-Cecil Counties, Md., Montgomery County, Prince Georges County, St. Marys County, Staunton, Va., Washington, Westminster, Md., and Williamsburg, Va.

Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin of the George Washington University will speak on "Fellowships" at the luncheon on Saturday, April 22, and Dr. Clifford W. Patton, Reconstruction Liaison Officer, New York Office of UNESCO, will speak at the Saturday business session.

Mrs. Nicholls to Talk

The first vice president of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs, Mrs. Grace Nicholls of Toronto, Canada, will be the speaker at the dinner on Saturday in the Congressional Room of the Willard.

The invocation will be given by Miss Jean O'Connell, Venturist, and the president of the Washington Club, Miss Mary Judge, will welcome the guests. Miss Mary Agnes Sweeney is chairman of the conference.

The business of the South Atlantic region will be conducted, including the election of new officers. Miss Ella Werner, present regional director, will preside.

The conference will be held jointly with the Venture Club of Washington.

British Daughters Plan Founders Day Tea Today

The Daughters of the British Empire in the District of Columbia will celebrate Founders Day today, with a tea at the home of Mrs. Herbert A. Howell, 3113 45th st. nw. Proceeds will go to the welfare and civic fund.

The event will be a white elephant sale and benefit silver tea starting at 2:30 and continuing until 5 o'clock. Assisting during the afternoon hours are Mrs. Karl Dollak, Mrs. Harry M. Kurth and Miss Isabelle Furbank. Mrs. Peter H. Gwaltney, president of the chapter, will assist the hostess.

Georgetown Tour Delayed 2 Weeks

The annual Georgetown garden pilgrimage, sponsored by the Georgetown Settlement House, originally scheduled for today, has been postponed because of cold weather, it was announced yesterday.

The tour is now scheduled for Saturday, April 29, if the weather is fair, or for Sunday, April 30, if rain interferes on the scheduled Saturday.

Mrs. Callander Heads Sorority Chapter Here

Mrs. R. C. Callander of Alexandria was reelected president of the Washington chapter, Gamma Phi Beta, recently. She was also elected chapter delegate to the international convention, which will be held at Glenwood Springs, Colorado, in June.

Other officers elected were: vice president, Mrs. George W. Malloy; recording secretary, Miss Barbara Termohlen; corresponding secretary, Miss Mary Jane Reiney; treasurer, Miss Cecelia Buckner.

Mrs. Callander has announced the following appointments of officers to serve in the 1950-1951 season: membership chairman, Miss Patricia O'Laughlin; magazine chairman, Mrs. Halpert Earp; Pan Hellenic delegate, Mrs. Harry W. Seamans; hostess committee chairman, Mrs. S. B. Payne; hospitality chairman, Mrs. Charles T. Akre; and historian and Crescent correspondent, Miss Millie Anderson.

Other Washingtonians prominent in the sorority who will attend the June convention include Mrs. J. D. Studley, Mrs. Ralph E. Dippell, jr., Mrs. Jack M. Curtis and Miss Edie McChesney.

One on the Aisle—

A Stage and Screen Galaxy's in Town

By Richard L. Coe

WHO'S WHO: One thing April brings to Washington is visitors. Here are some you can catch about town this weekend.

OLIVIA DE HAVILLAND, getting an award for her "mature contribution" to the movies tonight at the Statler from the Women's National Press Club and the hand of President Truman. Main reason my wife is excited about Olivia's appearance on the scene is Olivia's husband, Marcus Goodrich, who wrote that great novel about a destroyer, "Delilah." Little Christine thinks it's one of the best she's ever read and is in a tremendous state about meeting Goodrich. Olivia will have the satisfaction of knowing that her Oscar-winning "The Heiress" is still in town—at the National.

EDWARD EVERETT HORTON scooting about town seeing old friends between performances of "Springtime for Henry" at the Shirlington Theater. If you've never been Eddie do this classic of his, this afternoon and tonight are your chances. Eddie seems to have made no progress in getting someone to write that pantomime role for him I was praying for last summer.

JUDITH EVELYN would be a good person for Olivia to visit at the Gayety's "A Streetcar Named Desire." Olivia is spoken of as a likely screen contender for Blanche, though I for one don't see how a faithful transcription of the play can be made to suit the Breen office. Miss Evelyn is mulling an Ann Arbor offer to follow the closing in Montreal next month of "Streetcar." She's been asked to do Lawton Campbell's play about Queen Elizabeth. I'd like to see it.

MARTHA GRAHAM and her husband, Erick Hawkins, are here for Martha to receive another WNPC award, and I want to ask Martha about "The Cave of the Heart." I'm perfectly willing not to mention Miss Hush so long as Martha sets me straight. This summer Miss Graham and Hawkins will be dancing in France for her Parisian bow, with Katharine Cornell as one of her backers.

HEDDA HOPPER, that fabulous lady, also will be at the Statler, looking in on her club's activities and chatting with old friends about town. The Pennsylvania Quaker girl who startled her family by marrying the late De Wolf "Casey at the Bat" Hopper (and divorcing him 30 years ago) has had a life so fabulous it should make a movie. Hedda's hats are beter known than one of her capsule movie reviews: "'Marie Antoinette'," she wrote, "is only a small flop."

GLADYS SWARTHOUT will be the Goddess of Freedom at this morning's Sesqui program on the Capitol steps. What's more, 'twill be a Goddess decked by Valentina, that sleek lady who does clothes for Dame Gladys as well as for Katharine Cornell who, by the way, will be playing "That Lady" over at Ford's Theater, Baltimore, next week. The Swarthout goddess will come easily to the lady, for she's adept enough to have sung to both the Republicans and the Democrats in one short week last election year. Gladys will have nice company in Ann Crowley, that pretty "Oklahoma!" graduate who will be singing the finale of Irving Berlin's "Miss Liberty." This morning's do gets under way at 10:15.

HORACE HEIDT gets in late this evening, leading 56 of his band and troupe for a month's tour of one-night stands overseas. Armed Forces will get a crack at Horace's Youth Opportunity show, which will visit Frankfurt, Rhein Main, Heidelberg, Berlin, Vienna, Tripoli, Paris and London. Also scheduled are special performances for youth groups and charity organizations. They fly off via MATS tomorrow morning; the briefing's set for 9 which, to an old Army type, means takeoff around dusk.

LAST NIGHT brought the opening of the Washington School of the Ballet production of "Adventures in Oz," directed by Lisa Gardiner and Mary Day. There are twin casts for this production, which will be repeated this afternoon at 2:30 at Roosevelt High auditorium as the Recreation Department's third Sesquicentennial offering. In both casts June Tushin plays Dorothy and Joan Goldstein is Toto, with several other young lassies doubling in both. The bright program note remarks: "To the ladies: The small folk behind you ask you, 'please take off your hats!'" . . . Big folk, too.

ED MOORE'S WGAY amateur theater program shifts this weekend to Sunday afternoon at 5:05 on WOL, with Jeane L. Dixon sharing the mike for what they're calling "On Stage."

GLEN ECHO would have the ladies know that Monday nights in the Spanish Ballroom are "Ladies' Nights," with no admission charge for gals. Sammy Fero's band plays for dancing each night, Sunday excepted, at 9.

MOVING DAY: Bing Crosby, with Coleen Gray in his arms, moves this morning from the Warner screen to the Metropolitan in "Riding High," a Damon Runyon yarn. Opening at the Warner is an Alfred Hitchcock chiller, "Stage Fright," with Marlene Dietrich and Jane Wyman

Postlude

Serkin Reaches Greatest Heights

By Paul Hume

Of the piano music of Joseph Haydn, Igor Stravinsky has written:

"It is not easy to conceive how a pianist could establish his reputation by taking Haydn as his war-horse. That is undoubtedly the reason why that great musician has not won a renown among our interpreters that is in keeping with his true worth."

Last night Rudolf Serkin played the first program in honor of the 15th anniversary of the Library of Congress. To open his recital he offered the E Flat Sonata of Haydn. The work dates from the composer's sixty-second year, and is a tremendous conception of what piano music of the late classical period can be.

In fredom of harmonic structure, richness of themes, and boldness of key relationships it is a masterpiece of keyboard writing. In it Serkin rose to his greatest heights.

His realization of the spacious lines of the first movement was equaled by the way in which he contrasted complimentary themes of the finale. He outlined nobly the daring middle movement, a passage in E Major set in the midst of an E Flat sonata!

Turning to Bach, Serkin played the Fifth French Suite in G Major. With utmost romaniticism for music of the baroque period, he handled the suite well, on an instrument less yielding than the harpsichord for which it was intended.

An overwhelming version of Beethoven's C Major sonata, the "Waldstein" followed.

JERRY SLAGLE SAYS DON'T COMMIT SUICIDE!
When you buy a used car be sure it's a Hudson "Safety Car" from OLD DOMINION MOTORS. HUDSONS have been declared the safest cars in America by the Society of Industrial Engineers. We have one of the largest selections of 1948 and 1949 model Hudsons in the area. Hudsons are safest because only Hudson gives: • Triple safe brakes combining mechanical, hydraulic and emergency. • Mono built body and frame with step-down design giving the lowest center of gravity. • Center-point steering and many other features.

Francis: I Read You Like a Book

SYNOPSIS: Having surmounted a bad experience in the nuthatch because he knew Francis, an Army mule who could talk, the shavetail hunted up the animal, and told Francis he has been shifted into Intelligence. The lieutenant called it a ghastly mistake, but Francis calmed him down and the lieutenant went back to camp.

By David Stern

And Maureen Van Gelder arrived at Headquarters.

In the jungles of Burma the only thing rarer than an iced mint-julep is a white woman.

Maureen Van Gelder was more than this. She was beautiful. She was smackdab, hit-you-in-the-pit-of-the-stomach, take-your-breath-away beautiful.

The lady fell in love with me. . . .

Every moment when I was not occupied with my new assignment in G-2 I spent with Maureen. I was a happy man.

But it was not until I had known Maureen for several weeks and felt complete trust in her that I confided my great secret. I told her about Francis.

"My dear, that's ridiculous," said Maureen in a voice which would have melted the barrel of an M-1. "That's utterly and entirely ridiculous."

"But it's true," I said.

"You officers!" said Maureen. "You like to have your little jokes."

"You must listen to me, Maureen. You know I trust you."

"Of course you do, my pet."

"Do you trust me?"

"Trust you?" The young lady ruffled my hair. "I adore you."

My heart did a double Immelmann and went into a glide. "You have such beautiful eyes," I said.

Maureen moved closer and rested her head on my shoulder.

"Do you like your new work?" she asked.

"I was telling you about Francis," I said.

"I thought it was cute."

"What was cute?"

"Why, your little story, my dearest."

"Maureen," I said, "this isn't a story. Francis is a real mule. And he can talk. I want you to meet him."

"Meet him!"

"Yes, please come," I said.

Maureen was about to refuse. Then suddenly she changed her mind. She had the attitude of an adult preceding a child into a dark room to prove there is no danger.

We found Francis tethered to the banyan tree.

Maureen looked at the mule and shivered.

Francis stiffened.

I sensed a situation in the making. "Yes."

"Oh!" said Maureen, her delicately beautiful face clouding with horror. "Oh! Such a creature! Such an unprepossessing creature!" "I didn't know a mule could look like this and live. Heavens above!"

"Do you like your new work?" she asked

Suddenly words poured out of Francis like pressurized steam. "Look like this and live! By the tail of my great-aunt Regret who won the Derby!" The mule spat. "I've seen better-looking dames than you in my time!"

"What was that?" gasped Maureen.

"Lady, that was an indignant mule!"

"The animal . . ." Maureen seemed to stagger. "The animal . . . it really can talk!"

"Most assuredly I can talk." Francis was furious. "What's more, I happen to have four legs instead of two. As I see it, that makes me worth exactly twice as much as you."

"And why not!" spat Francis.

"Watch your manners, Francis!" I ordered. "Miss Van Gelder is a lady. I insist you treat her with respect."

"Tell her to show some for me," said Francis. "Tell her I have feelings, even if I am in the ranks."

"But this is marvelous," gushed Maureen. "Simply marvelous. It's the most exciting thing that ever happened to me. The most!"

"What's marvelous?" demanded Francis.

"Why, that you, a mule, can talk."

"You can talk," snapped Francis. "And nobody seems excited about it. Though, of course, in your case it may be a dubious asset."

"Francis!" I commanded.

"This is just the most thrilling thing that ever, ever happened to me," said Maureen. "And it's so intelligent, too."

"Why do you keep referring to me as it?" the mule asked.

"But how should I refer to you?"

"My name is Francis," the mule said. "And whatever my intelligence may be it is sufficient to see through you, young lady. Through you like a book."

Romanian Reds Reject U. S. Note of Protest

Bucharest, April 14 (AP).—The Romanian government today rejected a United States note protesting closing of the American information office here. Romania called the American library "an espionage center."

Bucharest asked both the American and British legations to close their information services, including the libraries, March 3. No reason was given.

For 350 MBS Stations

Start of Baseball To Tangle Network

By Associated Press

INSERTION of big league baseball game of the day play by play in its week-day afternoon schedule will complicate the MBS program lineup considerably.

The games will be sent to 350 stations of the network's total of 540. Among the 190 exceptions are big league cities where other broadcast arrangements have been in effect for many seasons.

Whenever there is a game, the regular afternoon features, Ladies Fair and Queen For a Day, will go on record right after the final out on the 350 stations. The Bob Poole Hour will be omitted. On nongame days the schedule will revert to the regular lineup. The 190 nonbaseball stations will have these features available at the regular times.

This situation also will hold true after April 30 when daylight saving starts, except that the baseball game will be sent simultaneously to all stations taking whether on daylight or standard time.

The over-all result means that MBS, in addition to the relays on separate hookups under daylight and standard times to meet local clock hours, also will be splitting itself into baseball and nonbaseball networks each afternoon except Sunday.

IF TELEVISION gobbles up the movies, Charles Laughton can go right on reading the Bible to the public. But his wife, Elsa Lanchester, finds her prospects not nearly so certain. She says she anticipates a little trouble with the censors.

Laughton, on tour or on television, has all the world's great books to draw upon. He just reads. But Elsa's professional material, aside from movie scripts, consists largely of songs. "And my problem," she said, "would be that only about half of these songs could pass the (television) censors."

Changing them, she fears, would rob the ditties of their charm, and, anyway, Else calls censorship a joke.

"If I wanted to make myself up like an idiotic blond, I could sing anything and get away with it. On the other hand, I could sing 'Mary Had a Little Lamb' and make it positively pornographic."

It isn't that the words in her songs are "suggestive." Elsa admits it's the way she sings 'em, and the wiggles that go with 'em, that render her tunes just a little too sophisticated for juvenile TV audiences.

A RECENT Hooper rating shows the tremendous inroads of television where there are the most sets sold. In New York City, where more than a quarter of the population has television, a survey of all homes—as contrasted to "radio only" or TV homes—shows that nine of the most popular programs on the air are television programs. That includes the five most popular programs, (Milton Berle, Godfrey's Talent Scouts, Toast Of The Town, "Lights Out" and The Goldbergs, in that order). Next in popularity is Jack Benny, on that old-fashioned radio.

In Los Angeles, far behind New York in set sales, the first 11 most popular programs are still radio programs. The only two television programs to show up in the first 15 are a feature film which is a regular feature Sunday nights on KTLA (in twelfth place) and Milton Berle (in fourteenth).

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

What's a Few Billion Among Friends?

I wrote an item recently about the horrors of weekend driving. I blamed the situation on the inadequacy of our streets and highways (which could be cured with the expenditure of a few billion dollars) and on the bad manners of the Sunday driver (which, apparently, nothing will ever cure).

Allen Wagner of the American Road Builders' Association suggests that I dismissed the first reason too lightly.

"It'll take more than just 'a few' billion, Bill," he writes. "Latest Government estimates put it at 41 billion."

Al goes on to observe that unless we go all out for a whopping program of wider and straighter roads, the last half of this century is going to bring even greater traffic snarls than the first half. As he puts it:

"There's more involved than just Sunday drivers, a spin in the country, or joy riding. Our safety, security and economic life are tied up in the adequacy of our highway system.

"If we don't do something about it, our grandchildren will still be driving high-powered cars on horse-and-buggy roads."

This will not hold true, of course, if scientific progress continues at its present pace and meantime blows us all up with an H-bomb.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Pretty black-and-white kitten." (Emerson 6303).

"Two lovely, well-behaved black kittens with blue eyes; 7 weeks old." (Georgia 7542).

"Two male kittens, 2 months old." (Oliver 8350).

"Three cute, black, female puppies; their mother was a fox terrier." (Lincoln 3-1820).

"Female Irish setter wants home with large yard." (Alexandria 8747 evenings).

"House-trained kitten, ideal for shut-in." (Franklin 2491).

IRATE SUBSCRIBER

"I am burned up," writes W. M. O'C., "by a letter printed recently in one of your contemporaries.

"The writer hooted at the idea that District residents can't vote. He said we can, too. We can vote in the States we originally came from.

"Apparently he is under the impression that nobody was ever born in the District. Either that, or he doesn't consider native Washingtonians on a par with free Americans.

"In my case, I moved here from one of the States. When I found that I had to lie to keep my right to vote, I lied. I passed myself off as an 'absentee' voter.

"I guess the election officials in my home State are familiar with the situation here. Nobody challenged the fiction that I still maintained a residence in the State, and so I got away with my lie for several years.

"But then I failed to vote in a couple of elections. According to the laws of my State, I lost my 'permanent' registration. To qualify as a voter again, I must go back there and register again, in person, and swear that I am still a resident of an address now occupied by strangers.

"But I no longer have any ties in that State, have never been back, and have no intention of going back.

"So please tell me how I am eligible to cast a ballot under the scheme proposed by this whimsical writer of letters-to-the editor? And if you'll permit me one last question: Even if I did vote for State candidates, how would this give me an audible voice in the conduct of municipal affairs in the District?"

This column does not have the space to become involved in a controversy over District suffrage. But if any reader has an answer to these specific questions, I'll be glad to print it.

PERSONAL NOTES

Ralph L. Boyce, 4726 S. 29th st., Arlington, Va.: No, I don't think I get any "credit" for the removal of the stop sign. I got several letters complaining about it, and called the Park Police to ask why the sign was erected. They gave me convincing reasons, so I didn't print anything on the subject. But apparently they got many other complaints, because shortly afterward the sign was removed.

The mailman with my monthly bills

PUN FUN

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The current issue of the postal magazine "Post Haste" observes: "The most inflammable kindling wood is a chip on the shoulder."

Manpower Is Atlantic Pact Issue

By Drew Pearson

With United States-U.S.S.R. relations getting no better as a result of the United States plane-over Latvia incident, it's important to take a look at the recent Hague conference and see how the North Atlantic Pact is working.

Pearson

That pact was founded on the idea that the United States would furnish the arms, Europe the men—for the defense of western Europe.

It wasn't given publicity at the recent Hague meeting, but that principle isn't really working out. In brief, western Europe is hanging back about supplying the men.

The French, usually considered the great reservoir of military manpower, told Hague conferees they had an army tied up in Indo-China, where Communist guerillas are killing French officers at the rate of one half a West Point graduating class per year. It would be political dynamite to increase the French army now, they said.

Other smaller countries also did not want to overtax their military budgets, all of which paved the way for two important proposals:

1. Bringing Spain, together with Franco's 500,000-man army, into the North Atlantic Pact.

2. Arming a west German army of 150,000 men.

Thumbs Down on Spain

Neither proposal got anywhere.

The Spanish proposal, long advocated by the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff, was vigorously opposed by British Defense Minister Emmanuel Shinwell, who explained that the British Labor government had only a margin of six votes in the House of Commons, and that bringing Spain into the North Atlantic Pact would lose Premier Attlee about 40 votes. Political opinion in British Labor circles, he said, was adamant against Dictator Franco.

So the Spanish proposal was dropped.

Note — Secretary of Defense Johnson has told friends that the Truman Administration is not anxious to resume full-scale relations with Franco until he gives Protestants the right of free worship. Spanish Protestants are now virtually second-class citizens, it being difficult for a Protestant to win promotion in the Spanish army or in other government posts.

No German Army

The plan for a 150,000 German army was made by the British, who argued that such a force could not be a threat to France unless equipped with an air force. The British proposed giving the Germans land-army equipment instead.

But the French said no. A German army, they argued, would do a right-about-face, and go over to the enemy in case of Russian attack. So the idea of a German army was also dropped.

That left western Europe still considerably shy of the armies considered necessary to hold back a Soviet attack, and with some private talk among European defense chiefs that the United States should keep an army permanently on the Continent.

Pugnacious Senator

Washington's pugnacious GOP Senator Harry Cain started to beat up a reporter half his size the other day, but changed his mind when the little fellow stood his ground.

The near-brawl was staged in Cain's office after a difference of opinion over whether the Senator was "expendable."

The reporter, Frank McNaughton, had rated Cain among the eight most expendable Senators—an opinion with which most newsmen heartily agree. Cain, however, did not agree, and angrily called McNaughton to his office.

"I had in mind to pull a trick on you that would just break your health," he stormed, his face livid with rage.

Lunging out of his swivel chair, the Senator started around the desk. McNaughton jumped up, prepared to defend himself.

"If you've got any tricks up your sleeve, you go ahead and pull them," challenged the mild-mannered little reporter.

But Cain changed his mind, ordered McNaughton out of his office instead, then proceeded to air his wounded vanity on the Senate floor, where he told amused colleagues it wasn't true that he was one of the Senate's most expendable members. The more he talked, however, the more the Washington Senator convinced his listeners the opposite.

Exactly the reverse happens to be true. McNaughton is an able, modest, sincere newsman.

Then Cain sank to a new low in statesmanship. Lashing out from behind his congressional immunity, Cain called McNaughton a "4-F in war and a 4-F in peace."

"McNaughton has undoubtedly encouraged other men to die, but he has never stood on the sidelines and watched them die," harangued Cain.

"I lost even what had been my desire to laugh in the face of this pigmy," he sneered. "I did not even want to bat him around physically because that would have been like punching a bag of mush."

Senators sat silent, shocked at the vituperation of their Republican colleague from Washington.

Merry-Go-Round

Perle Mesta, Madame Minister to Luxembourg, is back in town after only six months overseas—officially for consultation with Secretary Acheson. Real reason, however, is to see if she can talk President Truman out of an ambassadorship. After all, Eugenie Anderson of Red Wing, Minn., is Ambassador to Denmark . . . The Joint Chiefs of Staff have sent Secretary Acheson a stiff memo asking that he stop the shipment of steel from western Germany to Communist China. High Commissioner McCloy had given his O. K. to the shipment of 15,000 tons of steel rails to China from German factories. Reminds them of the days when we sent oil and scrap iron to Japan . . . The CIO is bringing 20 groups of unemployed from major United States cities to urge prompt government action to relieve growing unemployment.

THIS...

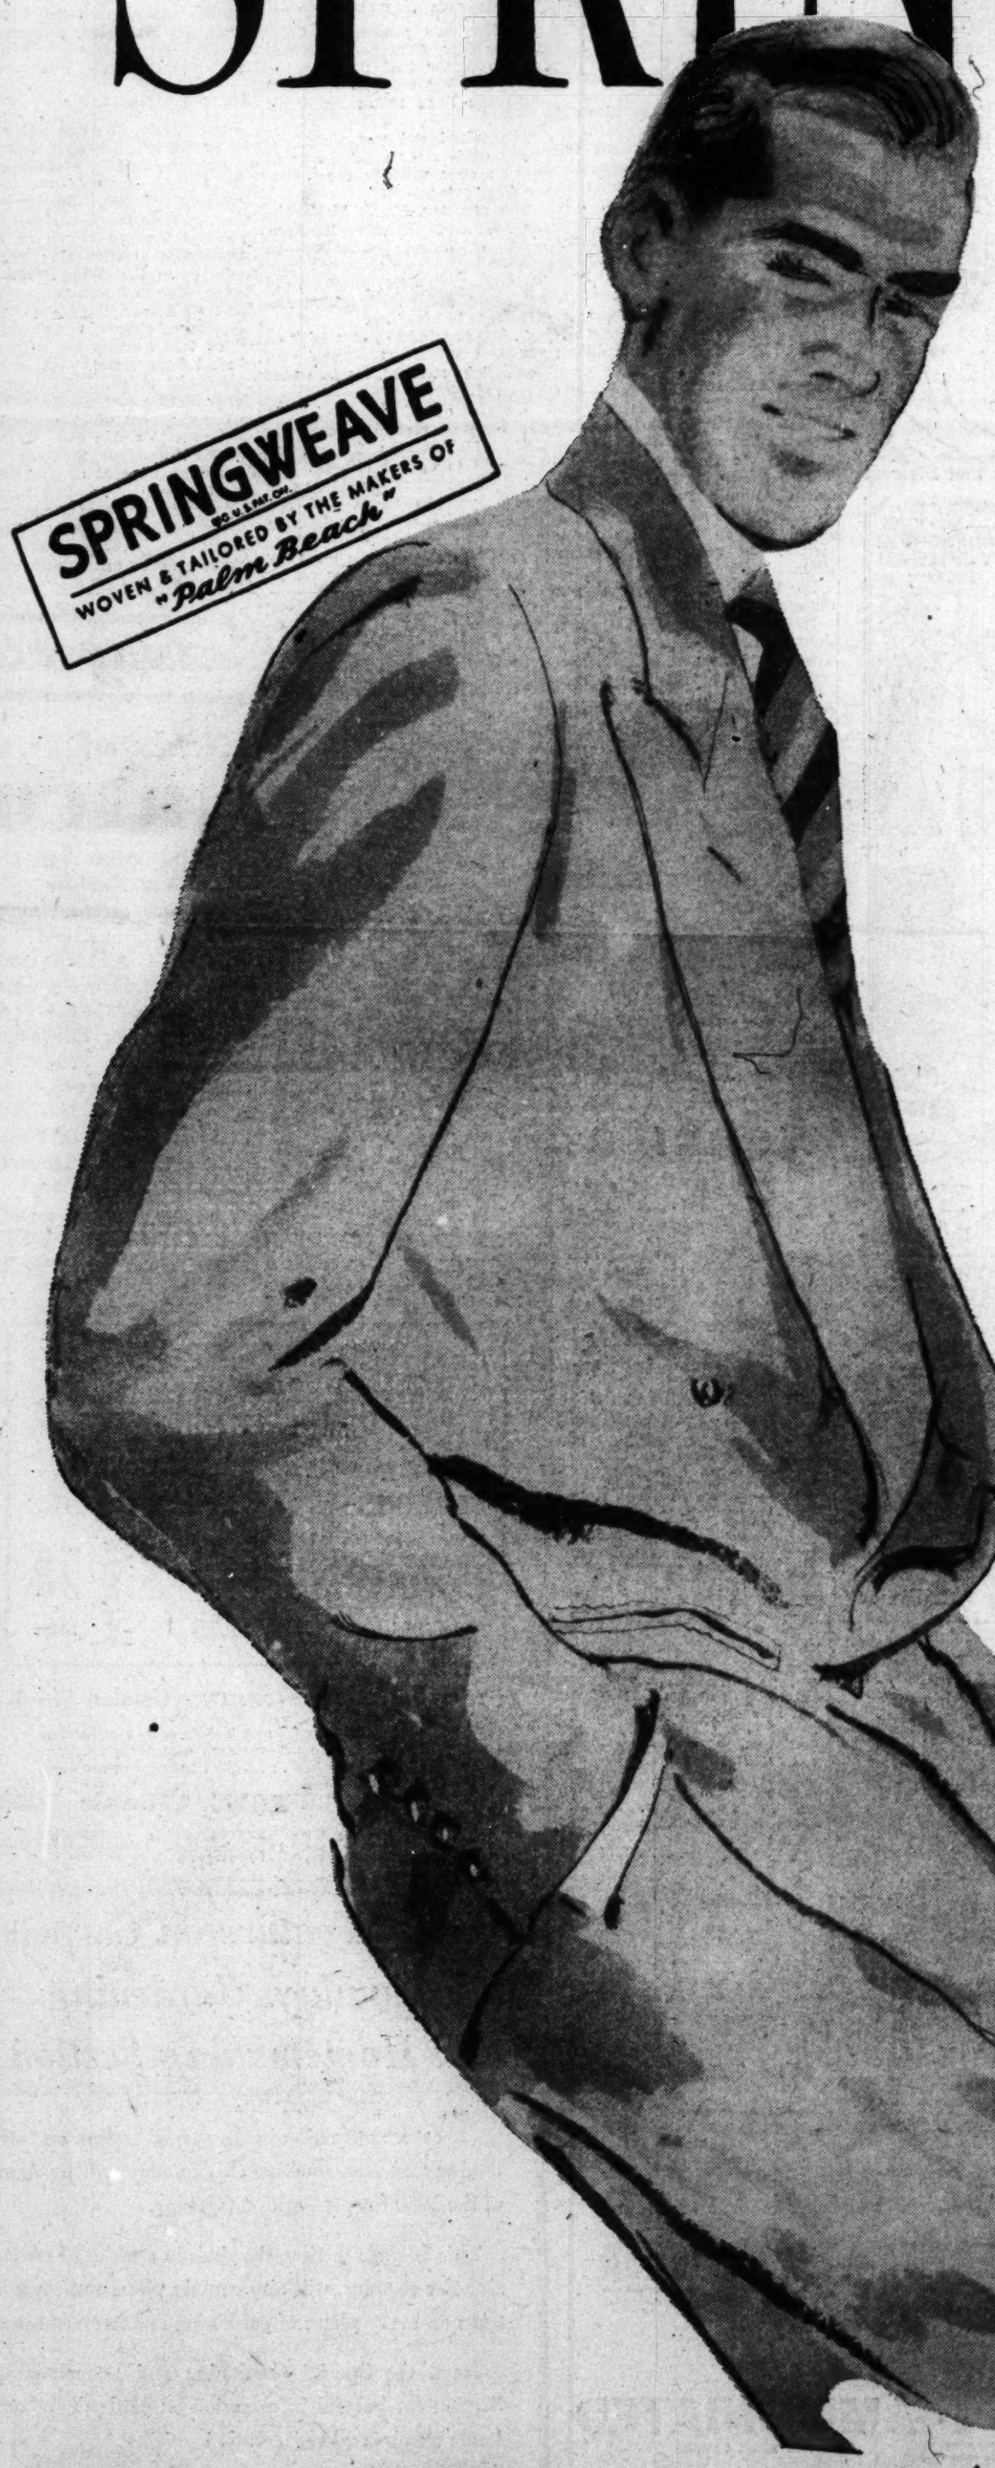
ENJOY THE LIGHTER SIDE OF LIFE IN

SPRINGWEAVE*



From The Hecht Co. ... For Modern, Active Men

High button shoes and heavy serge looked fine on grandpa. But the modern male likes light hearted, light shouldered freedom in his wardrobe. He likes the cool-under-the-collar feeling of Springweave (by famous Palm Beach). Breezeweight fabric is tailored with the same style and careful fit you expect in the finest heavy woolen. The result is a suit that's cool, comfortable, fashion-right. A suit that holds a crease like magic, hangs like a dream instead of a nightmare. It's perfect for today's balmy weather or the rising Washington temperatures ahead. You'll want to wear it from early Spring until late Fall. And when you see The Hecht Co.'s collection of interesting Springweave colors and patterns, you'll bury your old "baggy knee" tropicals in moth balls. A wide choice of browns, greys, blues. Solid shades and distinctive weaves. In single and double breasted models . . . to fit every taste . . . at The Hecht Co.
